CITY'S ECONOMY CUTS TAX BILLS BY $44,000,000

Christmas Pay Days Start Today.

The steady drive for economy in the operation of the city government from 1931 through 1934 has saved $44,283,492 in Chicago taxpayers' bills on the basis of the high spending level of 1930. This was announced yesterday, and at the same time came the news that in keeping with the holiday spirit all city and school employés would receive their December salaries, amounting to eight million dollars, before Christmas.

The pay announcements were made by Mayor Kelly and his appointee, James B. McCahey, president of the school board. The mayor set the machinery in motion for payment of full December salaries, totaling four million dollars, for police, firemen, and other city workers, next Tuesday.

Mr. McCahey said that salaries for teachers and other school employés up to Dec. 7 will be paid today and that another pay day will come Dec. 21. The total school pay roll will amount to another four million dollars.

Contrast to Last Year.

The pay situation at the turn of this year is as bright as last year's was gloomy. In December of 1933 the school teachers were six full months behind in their pay, with civil service workers nine months behind, while city employés were three months in arrears. Now they are all paid up to date.

The school pay rolls have been brought up to date by a federal loan of $22,300,000 last August, when the new board of education, acting on a program of Mayor Kelly, brought its credit to a sound basis through retrenchment following years of waste and profligate spending by school trustees under the thumb of a former Republican administration.

The city's pay rolls were brought up to date by Nov. 1 of this year for the first time in three years. Mayor Kelly asserted that the improvement was due to economy and balanced budgets. Figures on the savings were given out earlier in the day by City Controler Upham.

Comparison with 1930 Figures.

The reduction in expenditures of $44,283,492 in the last four years is calculated on the basis of 1930 expenditures, which were $58,768,069 for the city's corporate or operating fund. Had this high tide of spending been continued the total expenditures from 1931 through 1934 would have been $235,072,272. Actually, however, the city spent or contracted obligations in this period of $190,788,780.

The total savings in the taxpayers' bills from economy in the city's corporate fund for the four year period amount to $68,319,416. In this connection the 1930 tax extension of $51,961,825 is used for computation. If this extension had been continued through the four year period the total bill would have been $207,847,300. But the extensions, taking $30,960,000 as an estimate for 1934, were $139,527,884.

The difference between the tax saving of $68,319,416 and the reduction of $44,283,492 in expenditures is accounted for by the fact that the city has sources of revenue other than taxation.

How Savings Are Accomplished.

The major factors in the savings in running the public services in the city are reduction in personnel and cuts in pay. Last year, for example, the police and firemen took a 52 day pay deduction, while employés in other classifications received a 78 day deduction. Other savings have resulted from consolidation of departments and the slicing of appropriations for materials and supplies.

In addition, Controler Upham pointed out that the bonded indebtedness of the city has been reduced from $136,256,900 when Mayor Kelly took office in April of 1933 to $125,240,000 as of Jan. 1, 1935. Outstanding tax warants of the city have been reduced from $103,380,000 from Jan. 1, 1931, to $75,045,000 as of Jan. 1, 1935.

Figures for comparison of savings in the schools on the same basis as the reductions accomplished by the city government were not available yesterday, although here the decrease, too, is substantial.

Mayor Kelly announced that the city council will hold a special meeting Tuesday for the purpose of exempting by ordinance 30 parcels of property from the terms of the contract by which the Reconstruction Finance corporation lent $22,300,000 for payment of teachers' salaries.

Reveal Chicago Pair Executed to Stir U. S.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 15 [Saturday].—(AP)—Little Helen Priscilla Stam, orphaned infant daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. John C. Stam, Chicago missionaries slain by Chinese bandits, was brought to Wuhu today, the China inland mission station here was informed.

The message said the little girl was in good health.

The Rev. George Birch, a Canadian missionary, who brought the two month old infant to Wuhu, advised the mission station she was found in a deserted house in Tsingteh following the bandit raid.

The child was rescued, Birch said, by a Chinese Christian pastor, who had risked his life in the search for her.

Slain in Public Execution.

Birch brought the first details of the ghastly tragedy which befell the Stams. The pastor said the captors of the young missionaries killed them in a public execution, with the apparent intent of embarrassing the Chinese government in its relations with the United States.

As Priscilla arrived at Wuhu under the protection of her rescuers, she smiled contentedly from her improvised crib unaware of the tragedy in which she had figured.

Birch reported that the group, consisting of the baby, several Chinese associates, and himself, had been en route to Wuhu ever since the pillaging of Tsingteh last Sunday.

The babe's life was saved, he said, by volunteer nursing and feeding by Chinese mothers along the way.

Second Couple Safe.

The safety of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Kofield of Bend, Ore., also appeared assured as news was received they had been evacuated from Tunki by Chinese soldiers and were on their way to Wuhu. The Kofields, who had been feared in the hands of the bandits, took refuge at Tunki after fleeing Tsingteh.

Government troops were understood to be pressing their pursuit of Fan Chih-Ming, outlaw leader, whose band was believed to have been responsible for the Tsingteh raid. Besides the Stams, several Chinese were reported to have been kidnaped in the same attack. Homes, mission stations, and business houses were looted.

The Chinese magistrate of the city was reported missing. It was not known whether he had been slain in the raid or had fled when the bandits took possession of the city.

LOSES WIFE, BUT MOURNS FOR OLD BUDDY OF BRASS

Thaddeus Slawinski made no protest yesterday when Judge Rudolph F. Desort of the Superior court granted a divorce to Mrs. Bernice Slawinski of 2852 West 22d street, who charged her husband with desertion.

The judge awarded the wife custody of a son, Thaddeus Jr., and granted her $75 a month alimony. Slawinsky nodded assent.

"But I want my brass spittoon," he announced. "I can't get along without it."

"He means the cuspidor," said Mrs. Slawinski. "He can't have it."

"Just what," asked Judge Desort, "do you want with a spittoon, Mrs. Slawinski?"

"I never did want it," she replied. "I sold it."

Slawinski wearily dragged his way out of the courtroom. There was something about the droop of his shoulders that seemed to say that this, without a brass goboon, was going to be a lonely Christmas.

Woman's Yawn Rate Is Slowed to 8 a Minute

Round Grove, Ill., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Harold McKee tonight cut down her yawns to eight a minute.

It was the first encouraging sign since the 35 year old farm wife began her strange, involuntary marathon of yawning at 4 p. m. last Sunday.

For five days—120 racking hours—she yawned and yawned and yawned, helpless to stop the fearful seizures except when sedatives gave her brief spells of rest.

Spasms Are Slowed.

It was ten or twelve yawns a minute at first, but as consulting physicians were called in today by Dr. H. L. Pettit of Morrison, Ill., the doctors noticed that the rate had slowed down to approximately eight spasms a minute. They hoped it was a sign normal health was returning.

Telegrams of advice, inquiry, and solicitude have poured in upon the attending physician until Dr. Pettit, constantly at the woman's bedside, today had to shut himself off from inquiries. He has ascribed Mrs. McKee's ailment to extreme mental and physical fatigue caused by worry and work in caring for her husband and child, both ill.

Mrs. McKee's malady, although rare, is not unprecedented in medical annals. The records of the American Medical association showed two similar cases.

Girl's Seizure Puzzles Doctors.

In 1888 a physician treated a 15 year old girl who started yawning immediately after a tooth was extracted. For days she kept it up, then added a fit of sneezing, which complicated matters. After five weeks she recovered and the cause of the phenomenon never was found.

In another instance a session of yawning was accredited to pressure against a nerve, exerted by a caked substance in the patient's ear. The nerve set facial muscles working into a protracted yawn.

Dr. Pettit has prescribed a rest and privacy for Mrs. McKee.

The McKee family is on the relief rolls. The woman's husband is suffering from a chronic ailment, incapacitated for several months, and medical aid is provided by the Whiteside county authorities.

HITLER'S TRAIN STRIKES BUS; 14 KILLED, 7 HURT

Chancellor Helps Pick Up Bodies.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—Fourteen persons were killed at 7 o'clock this evening when an express train in which Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler was a passenger struck an auto bus at a level grade crossing near Kirck Lintein. The dead were all bus passengers. The seven other bus passengers were seriously injured. The victims were officially described as "theatrical performers."

Passengers on the express train escaped injury. Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, minister of economics and president of the Reichsbank; Gen. Werner von Blomberg, minister of defense; other cabinet members, and Wilhelm Brueckner, Hitler's aid, were with the chancellor.

Traveling at High Speed.

The train, a special carrying Hitler's official party to Berlin from Bremen, where the Scharnhorst, a new 18,000 ton North German liner, had been christened, was traveling at a high rate of speed as it crashed into the bus on a grade crossing.

The bus drove through the lowered gates onto the tracks. A heavy fog is said to have blinded the driver. The train smashed into the vehicle squarely, demolishing it. The engineer brought the train to a stop a mile from the scene of the accident.

Hitler left the train and walked to where the wreckage of the bus and bodies lay. Saluting the dead first, he then assisted railroad employés in picking up the scattered remains.

Special Stands By for an Hour.

Hitler's special stood by for more than an hour before proceeding to Berlin.

The locomotive was so badly damaged by the collision that another engine was attached to bring the Nazi officials to Berlin.

The train arrived in the capital at 11:30 p. m. The chancellor, looking tired and with face drawn, hurried to a waiting automobile and was driven to the chancellery. The auto was guarded by 15 motorcycle policemen.

Inspect Liner Europa.

At Bremen Hitler and other members of the cabinet first inspected the Europa before the liner started its Christmas run to America. The officials also inspected the Admiral Scheer, Germany's second pocket battleship which was recently placed in commission.

Later the Nazi dignitaries took part in the launching of the Scharnhorst, the largest liner built in German shipyards since the Europa was constructed. The new vessel, which has a speed of 21 knots, will be assigned to the far east service.

Trafic Minister Baron von Eltz-Ruebenach, who christened the Scharnhorst, said it would be followed by a sister ship, the Genisenau. A third liner also will be built later for the far east service.

"Narrow Escape" Stirs 15,000.

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Minister of Propaganda Paul Joseph Goebbels gave 15,000 Nazis gathered in the Sportspalast here some bad moments tonight when he announced Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's "narrow escape in a train disaster" near Bremen today.

At the end of a two hour review of events of the last year, Goebbels asked the 15,000 to rise and give a moment's thought to Der Fuehrer, who had "narrowly escaped."

The audience jumped up apprehensively, but after the propaganda minister gave assurances that the leader was unhurt the crowd burst spontaneously into the Horst Wessel song [the Nazi party anthem].

Goebbels said the National Socialist revolution was over and that a period of evolution and consolidation had begun.

Asks "Why a Kaiser?"

"Why a kaiser?" he asked. "Nobody is available for the job except a poor shadow."

With his usual vitriolic sarcasm the propaganda minister scourged detractors at home and abroad, especially "American Jews who imagine they can bring Germany to her knees through withholding raw materials."

Goebbels added that Germany's inventive genius has risen to the occasion and after a couple of years the country will be wholly self-supporting, and "thus good comes out of evil."

"If we did nothing more than to break the Jews' world power, it would suffice to make us immortal," he said.

Police Slayers Pay for Crime in Death Chair

Walter Dittman and Armando Boulan died in the electric chair at the county jail shortly after midnight this morning.

Before a group of witnesses who gathered at the execution chamber they paid the penalty for their murder of Policeman Earl Jensen of the Oak Park force. Among the spectators was Roy Jensen, brother of the slain policeman.

The trial, conviction, and execution of the two slayers exemplified the swift justice now meted out in Cook county as a result of the drive on crime led by State's Attorney Courtney and the judges of the Criminal court.

Die Blaming Each Other.

The killers went to the chair blaming each other for their crime. Both confessed being robbers. Both admitted being present when Jensen was slain. But Dittman, who was 29 years old, insisted to the last that he was innocent—that Boulan had fired the fatal shots.

Boulan, 28 years old, met his death declaring that Dittman had been the slayer.

Boulan, the more resigned and composed of the two, was the first to be led to the execution chamber and strapped into the chair. He died at 12:10 a. m. Dittman was pronounced dead at 12:20. The execution was the first directed by Sherif John Toman, who took office Dec. 3.

Dittman's family, six of whom came from their Aurora homes to spend the last hours with him, claimed his body, and will take it to Aurora for burial. Boulan's body will be buried by the Society of St. Vincent De Paul.

Seized After Gun Battle.

It was the afternoon of last Sept. 1 that Policeman Jensen was killed.

While patroling Harrison street near Carpenter avenue in Oak Park he saw an automobile containing three men whose demeanor aroused his suspicions. He halted them. Two of the men got out of the car. One drew a pistol and shot Jensen through the head.

The killers' auto had hardly cleared the scene before the police radio was calling all cars with the gunmen's descriptions, supplied by witnesses. They were sighted by a squad at Grove avenue as they turned eastward into Jackson boulevard and there began a running gun battle that ended when the killers' machine crashed into a tree in Columbus park at Van Buren street. The three men jumped from the wreckage and fled, but police bullets stopped Dittman and Boulan. Their companion, Norman Lawrence, 19 years old, was captured later.

Justice Moves Swiftly.

On Sept. 4 the Oak Park police placed a formal charge of murder. On Sept. 6 Dittman, Boulan, and Lawrence were indicted. On Oct. 26 Dittman and Boulan were convicted by a jury. Lawrence was acquitted. Judge Hugo M. Friend sentenced the convicted pair to death on Nov. 1.

Then began efforts by Dittman's attorney, William Scott Stewart, to save him. On Dec. 8, however, the Illinois Supreme court denied a writ of supersedeas. On Thursday Gov. Horner refused executive clemency. Yesterday the Supreme court again refused to review the case.

During the day Dittman spent most of his time with his family. His wife, Ann; his mother, Mary; his father, Louis; his two sisters, Mildred and Clara, and an aunt, Mrs. Ida Dittman, came from Aurora to be with him.

Boulan received only one visitor, a young woman whose name was not revealed.

RESCUE CRAFT CAPSIZES NEAR WRECKED SHIP

11 Are Saved from British Freighter.

BULLETIN.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 15 (Sunday).—(AP)—The master of the S. S. Ascania advised offices of the Cunard-White Star line today that 15 members of the crew of the disabled British steamer Usworth were lost during rescue operations. The fourth officer and a member of the crew of the rescue ship Jean Jadot also were lost.

The Ascania reported it had rescued nine of the Usworth's crew and that the Jean Jadot, a Belgian liner, had rescued two.

The Usworth had a heavy list to port, the message said, and was drifting east by southeast.

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Mountainous seas took a toll of eight lives today in a mid-Atlantic gale when a rescue lifeboat from the Belgian freighter Jean Jadot capsized alongside the foundering British steamer Usworth.

Two of the dead are known to have been members of the lifeboat crew.

Eleven of the Usworth's crew were saved. Two of them are aboard the Jean Jadot and the others are on the Cunard liner Ascania.

Reports of the tragedy and the heroic rescue of the survivors were radioed from the Jean Jadot and the Ascania and relayed to New York by Mackay radio from the Black Diamond freighter Black Gull.

Seas Buffet Rescuers.

Heavy, pounding seas which battered lifeboats to matchwood and ripped rescue lines from the numbed hands of the exhausted, half-frozen crew aboard the Usworth made the rescue work hazardous.

Seas swept over the small freighter from steam to stern as she wallowed helplessly in the trough of the towering waves.

Early in the day her captain radioed that his men no longer could assist their rescuers. He pleaded for lifeboats to be sent out at once.

The Usworth still was afloat after the crew had been taken off. The Jean Jadot and the Ascania continued to stand by.

Capt. Sadie Gonthier is in command of the Jean Jadot. The commander of the Ascania is Capt. J. G. P. Bisset.

First reports of the Usworth's plight reached New York in a Mackay radio report relayed by the steamer Black Gull after the sinking ship had broadcast the appeal:

Gale Slows Rescue Ship.

"Please do your best to get us off."

The message said the "situation is looking precarious," and added that the ship was "listing more."

At 5:12 a. m. today the Usworth sent another message urging speed by the rescuers.

"Please try man boats as impossible to fling any more lines—coils being washed away—crew worked out," this message said.

Distress signals sent out earlier had given the Usworth's position as approximately the middle of the Atlantic on the northern ship lane.

The Black Gull at 5:40 a. m. sent an offer of assistance to Capt. Bisset of the Ascania, but said he could not guarantee early arrival as his ship was making only five knots in a heavy head sea.

Capt. Bisset replied:

"Thanks. Don't think you can be any assistance. Doing everything possible. Very bad weather."

The Usworth is a freighter of 3,525 gross tons, owned and managed by the Dalgliesh Steam Shipping company, Ltd., of Newcastle, England. It was built in 1926.

Capt. Bisset has been master of the Ascania for two years. It is his first command. Formerly he was staf captain of the Berengaria.

Three Passengers Aboard.

He is 45 and is rated as an authority on sea terms and has written a book, "Ship Ahoy," in which most of them are explained and discussed.

The Ascania is a 14,000 ton liner. It is New York bound from Southampton and Le Havre and is due Tuesday.

The Jean Jadot is the property of the Lloyd Royal Belge line. It is 6,500 tons and was built in 1929. There are accommodations aboard for twelve passengers, but on the present trip from Antwerp to New York it is carrying only three.

The Usworth is the second ship to be disabled in the gale which has been sweeping the North Atlantic for more than a week.

On Monday the Japanese freighter, Victoria Maru, was boarded by heavy seas which smashed her bridge, killing the captain and first mate and washing the third mate over the side.

Meanwhile maritime officials at Marseilles today announced they had abandoned hope for the missing French freighter Schiaffine 24, with a crew of twenty-one.

The ship left Marseilles Sunday and no report of it had been received since. Parts of the vessel and a life belt were found on the coast of France.

TELLS RESCUE STORY

BY CAPT. SADIE GONTHIER.
[Of the Freighter Jean Jadot.]

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

S. S. JEAN JADOT, Dec. 14.—[By Wireless.]—Sorry, I'm too tired to write a long story.

The Jean Jadot, Belgian liner, was endeavoring to tow the British Usworth, disabled at sea on a voyage from Montreal—her steering gear smashed hopelessly.

Yesterday noon we fell into a most exceptionally severe storm, during which it blew at hurricane force and during which our cargo shifted.

We were parted for ten hours when a message came for help.

The Usworth then was totally wrecked on deck and the crew had to be taken off at the earliest.

Although the sea had not abated much, we launched a boat with volunteers while the S. S. Ascania sprayed fuel oil all around.

Boat Is Swamped.

The boat got safely alongside the wreck, but when she had embarked only eight men she was swamped.

She got afoul of the cargo derricks hanging over the side and drifted away.

One big wave capsized the boat and all occupants were thrown into the water and fuel oil.

We managed to rescue eight of our own men and two from the Usworth.

We lost two men plus six from the Usworth.

Later the Ascania took off the remaining survivors.

The weather was still bad when everything was finished.

CONSUL KIDNAPED IN MANCHUKUO; RUSSIA PROTESTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 15.—[Saturday.]—Nicholas Rayvid, soviet Russian consul general at Harbin, Manchukuo, handed a strong protest to Diplomatic Commissioner Shih Li-pen of Manchukuo today following the kidnaping of Teodor Rovenko, a soviet consular officer.

The protest charged that Rovenko was seized, bound, blindfolded, thrown into a cellar and brutally beaten in an attempt to force him to divulge information concerning the consulate. He was released, it was asserted, after he was warned that if he revealed anything he and his family would be killed. Rovenko, found in a serious condition, was taken to a hospital.

Mongol Cavalrymen Mutiny.

TOKIO, Dec. 15 [Saturday].—(AP)—Mongol cavalrymen nominally attached to the Manchukuo army garrisoned at Tsienkiatien mutinied today and wounded and imprisoned several Japanese officials and residents, a dispatch to the newspaper Nichi Nichi from Mukden said today. Japanese infantry and armored cars left Tungliao, 30 miles to the west, to deal with the mutiny.

POLAND CUTS OFF CONCERT OF RADIO STATION IN PARIS

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

WARSAW, Dec. 14.—Polish listeners-in were surprised last night by a dramatic announcement by the Warsaw radio station during transmission from Paris of a concert of French music that transmission was discontinued at the request of the public.

Fifteen minutes after the program started the station received protests by telephone against the station in Paris which had announced the concert in five languages, but not Polish, although only Spain and Poland had arranged for this transmission. Polish music by Chopin and others was played by local performers in place of the Paris concert.

The official Gazeta Polska remarks that the German station at Frankfort-am-Main always announced concerts in Polish, although never requested to, and its concerts are not even transmitted to Poland. The French, it adds, cannot even pronounce names of Polish stations correctly, and use the German names for Polish towns.

BUTLER WARNS OF A JAP WAR TO 'END DEPRESSION'

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Gen. Smedley D. Butler, retired marine corps officer, declared tonight that "interests" in the United States "soon would advocate war with Japan—as a means of combatting the depression."

Butler, who recently disclosed an alleged plot for a Fascist march on Washington with himself designated as its head, spoke under the auspices of a newly formed "discussion group."

"Japan is minding her own business on the other side of the Pacific and not interfering with ours," the general asserted. "If we want to stay out of war, we will stay on this continent and stop running around in the east."

An audience of three hundred applauded when Gen. Butler declared he would "never go outside of the United States again to fight for anything or anybody." He described the marine corps, where he served for a third of a century, as "the greatest bunch of bill collectors this nation has ever seen."

SERBIA ACCUSED OF ATTEMPT TO 'BULLY' HUNGARY

Seeks to Dominate Quiz Into Terror Plot.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Dec. 14.—Internal dissension in the Hungarian government as well as in the Jugo-Slav government has been stirred up by the league of nations council's resolution on the Serb-Hungarian dispute arising from the assassination of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia. This was revealed here today.

Prime Minister Goemboes refused to permit the Hungarian representatives at Geneva to accept the resolution last Monday, whereupon they appealed to Regent Horthy, who authorized acceptance when it was put up to him that war would be the alternative.

It is now known that acceptance of the resolution, which ordered Hungary to investigate and punish all officials found guilty of complicity in the murder plot, was practically an ultimatum to the Budapest government. It was given 20 minutes to accept by telephone.

Reveal Little Entente Threats.

Another element of trouble is being added to the precarious central European situation by what is described in diplomatic circles here as the bullying attitude of Czechoslovakia and Jugo-Slavia toward Hungary in its carrying out of the inquiry into whether aid was given the Croat plotters on the life of King Alexander.

Already Belgrade and Prague are threatening the Hungarians that if they do not severely punish officials who are alleged to have issued Hungarian passports to Croat plotters, the little entente countries—Jugo-Slavia, Czechoslovakia and Rumania — will take direct action against the Hungarians.

In diplomatic circles here this attitude toward Hungary is deplored. The Hungarians claim they cannot proceed with the investigation into possible complicity of some of their officials until they are given a more precise documentation.

It seems certain now that the Hungarian inquiry will not be such as to satisfy the Jugo-Slavs or Czechs, and open expression is given here to fears that the trouble in central Europe is only beginning.

Seek Ouster of Minister.

Hungarians read with fear threats in Jugo-Slav papers that unless they take severe actions against officials alleged to be culpable in aiding the Croats they can expect trouble. It is also understood that the little entente powers are trying to force the Hungarian government to throw out Koloman de Kanya, foreign minister.

Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria is the guest of the Hungarian government for three days. Today he discussed with Goemboes the central European situation as it stands after Geneva's censure of Hungary.

According to well defined reports, Goemboes is acting as intermediary to restore good relations between Chancellor Hitler of Germany and Premier Mussolini of Italy, who quarreled after last summer's Nazi attempt to take over Austria. It is said here that Goemboes in any case will make another visit to Rome before Mussolini and Foreign Minister Laval of France try to settle Franco-Italian differences.

Free State Citizenship Bill Passes Committee Stage

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The Free State's citizenship bill, designed to separate Irish nationality from connection with the British empire, passed the committee stage tonight after an all day session of the dail eireann. The vote was 38 to 20.

JAPS SEIZE AMERICAN FOR TAKING SHANGHAI MANEUVER PICTURES

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Dec. 14.—A tense situation was created here today when members of a Japanese naval landing party seized and detained A. H. Buchman of Cleveland, O., who is employed by the China press, for taking photographs for his paper of routine Japanese maneuvers in the Hongkew district, adjoining the international settlement.

Buchman, who is aged 20, was detained at the Japanese naval headquarters building for three hours. The Japanese demanded that he surrender his camera and films.

A representative of the United States consulate and a United States marshal who had been sent to negotiate finally gave the camera to the Japanese, who agreed to return the camera and unobjectionable films after they had been developed.

"ENEMY" FLEET NEAR SINGAPORE; READY TO ATTACK

British Planes Prepare to Bomb Raiders.

SINGAPORE, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The "attack" on Singapore, powerful link in the chain of Great Britain's far flung defenses, approached its climax tonight.

The "enemy," a flotilla of eighteen British destroyers and the aircraft carrier Eagle, concentrated in the China sea somewhere to the eastward for its large scale assault on the fortified naval base this week-end.

Fleet Maneuvers Off Shore.

Preliminary skirmishes last night gave the port its first experience of warlike atmosphere. Guns flared and roared and searchlights punctured the darkness, while the attacking fleet maneuvered off shore.

As the hour for the major assault drew near the royal air force prepared to go aloft in an attempt to bomb the raiders before they are able to threaten the port.

Four thousand troops were held in readiness to repel an invasion by landing parties from the "enemy" fleet.

Siam Views Activities.

While British military and naval experts watched closely to determine the vulnerability of the naval base in time of war, a military mission from Siam, Great Britain's neighbor on the Malay peninsula, observed the activities with interest.

(High Siamese officials in London denied Japan has contemplated construction of a canal through the Siamese Isthmus of Kra, which would minimize the importance of Singapore's control over eastern trade routes.)

2 ARMY AVIATORS ESCAPE DEATH IN BLAZING PLANE

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 14.—(AP)—A battle for life with a blazing airplane 3,000 feet above San Francisco bay was fought and won by two army aviators today while thousands looked on breathlessly from downtown skyscraper windows and vessels along the waterfront.

Lieut. F. L. Anderson, pilot, and Sergt. Duncan R. MacVean, mechanic, from Crissy field, were flying in a three plane V formation when a long, trailing black smudge shot rearward from their ship.

Dipping sharply, Anderson cut away from the formation and zigzagged, maneuvering against the flames.

First MacVean jumped and released his parachute. Anderson dived over the side. As Anderson jumped the flames enveloped the plane. It fell in the bay, exploded and sank.

MacVean struck the waters north of Yerba Buena Island. Anderson landed in the bay between the island and San Francisco. They were rescued by motor launches.

NEW JAP ORDERS SEEN GIVING LIFE TO NAVAL PARLEY

Tokio Acts to Dodge All Blame for Breakdown.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 15.—[Saturday.]—Important instructions believed to contain considerable concessions on the part of Japan are being sent to Japanese delegates in London today in connection with the tripower naval conversations there.

Neither the foreign office nor army and navy officials would divulge the orders. The government spokesman, however, said there is now a dim ray of hope for success of the London parley.

The newspaper Asahi asserted it understands the government is instructing Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador to Great Britain and chief naval parley delegate, to request a continuance of the negotiations, to announce that Japan is ready to submit figures on a common maximum limit, and to insist that notification of abrogation of the Washington treaty has no connection with the present conference.

Japs Fail to Pass Buck.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—A last minute Japanese effort to escape single responsibility for the breakdown of tripower naval conversations here failed today.

Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, one of the Japanese delegates, secretly visited Admiral William H. Standley of the American delegation, and urged the Americans to abandon their intention formally to terminate the conversations the day Japan denounces the 1922 Washington naval treaty.

This the Americans refused to do, standing pat on their original decision that the end of the negotiations here and Japan's denunciation of the treaty, expected Dec. 20, must be simultaneous.

Will Fix Blame.

In the eyes of the Americans, that will place the blame for the wreck of the conversations—as well as the future of peace in the Pacific and the fate of all further efforts to maintain established principles of naval limitation—squarely on Japan, and her demand for naval parity instead of the present 5-5-3 ratio.

In his talk with Admiral Standley today, Admiral Yamamoto declared the American stand is not fair. He insisted Japan alone should not be blamed.

Meanwhile, the Japanese delegation continued awaiting instructions from Tokio as to what its next moves should be. A possibility was suggested that Admiral Yamamoto might be instructed to remain after the Americans departed to discuss the problem of future converstions with the British.

YOUTH HELD FOR ROBBERY.

Bernard Whitaker, 19 years old, 4557 Wentworth avenue, was held to the grand jury in $10,000 bonds on a robbery charge by Judge Lambert K. Hayes in the Boys' court yesterday.

France Is Cautioned to Arm Troops on Full Basis of War

PARIS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The chamber of deputies today was urged to provide funds to arm France's troops immediately "on full fighting basis."

"One does not face artillery and machine guns with bare breasts," Deputy Marc Rucard said as he presented the report of the chamber's army committee recommending an emergency appropriation of 800,000,000 francs [about $52,800,000] for the army.

For "Modern Battle."

The entire sum the government asks should be spent on "indispensable equipment for modern battle" within the year, the report contended, since "industrial mobilization could not give immediate results" in case of war.

The report, prepared after the committee heard France's military leaders assert Germany was heavily rearming with the most modern weapons, said:

"The committee wishes to state clearly its desire to see our soldiers supplied with the necessary fighting equipment as quickly as possible."

Type of Arms Listed.

The several types of armaments listed in the order of the urgency of their need were:

[1] Equipment indispensable for troops to hold their own in modern battles; [2] armored equipment (guns, armored cars and the like); [3] improvement and repair of existing equipment; and [4] completion of stocks of munitions and other war materials.

Particularly recommended was the development of armored cars and perfected observation machines for the infantry, and artillery apparatus for defense against gas, air, and gun attacks.

SPANISH COURT MARTIAL ACQUITS PRESIDENT'S SON

JACA, Spain, Dec. 14. — (AP) — Luis Alcala Zamora, soldier son of President Niceto Alcala Zamora, was acquitted after a brief court martial hearing tonight on charges of insubordination.

Zamora, arrested after the radical revolt in October, was charged by his commanding officer with creating a disturbance in the garrison by demanding that he be discharged from the service upon expiration of his year's term. The incident took place immediately after the minister of war had issued an order that all soldiers be held in the army until the rebellion was over.

The commanding officer said the accused had been a good soldier until that incident. A military prosecutor told the court after hearing the evidence that he did not consider Zamora's act a crime, but merely an indiscretion at a delicate time which was exaggerated in the mind. Zamora was defended by his brother, Niceto Jr. President Zamora had agreed that the boy should be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

BRITISH UNION JOLTS PLAN TO GIVE LEAGUE A WORLD AIR FORCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Advocates of an international air force to police the world took another setback today when Sir Austen Chamberlain, former foreign secretary, threatened to resign from the league of nations union should its general council vote to give the league such a force. The union shelved the resolution.

Sir Austen opposed the suggestion on the ground that an international air force would defeat the very purpose of the league by turning it into an instrument for war instead of for peace. He said the league would become belligerent if war broke out and he warned that advocates of such a police force, such as France, wanted to be able to use it in event of war by a simple majority vote of the league. This, he asserted, would lead to canvassing throughout Europe.

11 DEBTOR LANDS DEFAULT TODAY; FINLAND TO PAY

U. S. Will Get 1.4 Mills on Each Dollar Due.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Uncle Sam will net 1.4 mills on the dollar trying to collect war debts due tomorrow from 12 debtor nations.

Representatives of foreign governments almost stepped over one another during the afternoon in carrying regret notes to the state department. The day's delivery brought the total of default notices to eight. Three more are expected tomorrow.

Only one of the debtor nations was not in the "defaulters parade." With a proud chin well in the air Minister L. Astrom of Finland brushed past his colleagues to make the announcement his nation was paying in full.

This payment of $228,538 was the only cash to come in from the $154,729,976 due tomorrow. Finland made the payment in dollars, which are now 39 per cent cheaper than when the United States generously made the loans.

Debtor Nations Listed.

The debtor nations, exclusive of Finland, and the amounts due are as follows:

Belgium	$ 3,109,453
Czechoslovakia	1,682,812
Estonia	531,350
France	22,308,312
Great Britain	117,670,765
Hungary	50,210
Italy	2,141,593
Latvia	220,683
Lithuania	121,466
Poland	6,616,039
Rumania	48,750

The table does not include amounts previously due and unpaid.

France, Great Britain, Belgium, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Lithuania, Poland, and Hungary have already delivered notes of regret. Others are expected tomorrow from Latvia, Estonia, and Rumania.

The majority of the defaulting nations shamefacedly sent regrets through secretaries of the various legations. An exception was France, whose ambassador, Andre de Laboulaye, presented his note in person.

Envoys Retire Hastily.

The notes were accepted in chill formality. Each representative announced to Undersecretary Phillips he had a note from his government without stating the content. Mr. Phillips took the notes and bowed. The representatives retired hastily.

In the case of Minister Astrom of Finland there was some variety. He announced he was happy to present a note from his government paying the obligation due in full. Mr. Phillips declared he was happy to accept the note on behalf of the United States.

Tomorrow will mark a new low in debt collections. When previous instalments fell due several of the defaulting nations offered "tokens" ranging from 6 to 50 per cent of the amounts due in acknowledgment of their obligations. There will be no tokens tomorrow.

PROMISED, SO WILL PAY.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Finland "promised to pay" the war debt she owes the United States, and she's paying—because "it's the only honest thing to do."

Thus Risto Ryti, quiet spoken governor of the Bank of Finland, explained to the Associated Press today his government's action in sending to the United States the amount due on the national war debt.

Finland will make formal payment tomorrow, the day the instalment comes due, although, Ryti said, she is well aware she may be the only nation to do so.

"It is only natural that we should," he said. "We signed a contract. We promised to pay. It's the only honest thing to do."

Head of Finland's Bank.

Ryti, whose careful management of the Bank of Finland has steered the nation into financially clear waters, made it plain that he spoke only for Finland.

"Of course, our debt is small," he said, "and strictly speaking, it isn't a war debt."

"But we are able to pay, and glad to pay. We see no reason why we should make an exception between our war debt to America and our other debts."

He turned then to speak of the war debt issue in general.

"It would stimulate confidence," he said, "if all nations paid. But I do believe it has become necessary for America to make some readjustments."

SERMON SPURS WOMAN TO PAY A DEBT OF $500

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 14.—(AP)—A minister's sermon today enriched the city's conscience fund by $500.

The money came from a woman whose conscience was troubled.

The $500 given to the city treasurer by the Rev. Dr. Merril T. McPherson, who said he received it in an envelope handed his maid by a middle aged or elderly woman whose name he does not know.

"Last winter in one of your sermons you said: 'If you owe any man anything pay him before you seek God,'" said a letter that accompanied the bills. "I thought it over and thought I may owe some personal tax from years ago. Would you, as a man of God, take this money and put it in the personal fund, city hall?"

Negro Good Will Airmen Crack Up in a Back Yard

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Dr. A. E. Forsythe and Alfred Anderson, Negro good-will flyers, cracked up in a back yard in suburban Woodbrook today. They escaped with minor injuries. Their plane, however, was so greatly damaged it appeared likely the air tour would be abandoned. Trouble developed soon after the ship took off and the pilot made an attempt to land in a street. Prevented from doing so by trafic, he maneuvered the plane into a nearby back yard, narrowly avoiding crashing into a line of bungalows.

STATION ATTENDANT ROBBED.

Husband of Irene Franklin Murdered She Will Tell Jury

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Persisting in the belief that Jerry Jarnegin, song writer, was murdered and not a suicide, his widow, Miss Irene Franklin, film and musical comedy actress, asserted today that she has a "definite suspicion" she plans to take before the grand jury.

She indicated she has had private detectives working on the case which authorities termed a suicide. Miss Franklin refused to amplify on her suspicions.

"My husband was murdered," she flatly declared. "I know, as do all his friends, that Jerry did not commit suicide. The murderer wrecked two lives—my daughter's and mine—and took the life of the one most dear to me."

Deputy District Attorney Vernon Ferguson said if any new evidence appeared in the case an official investigation would be launched.

"All evidence at the inquest pointed to suicide," the attorney said.

SEWANEE'S DOG DIES AFTER 17 YEARS AS A COLLEGE PERSONAGE

Sewanee, Tenn., Dec. 14.—(AP)—After 17 years in college Fitz, the dog with a charge account, died today.

His demise left a lot of sad eyed students and at least one downhearted faculty member, for Fitz was a tradition as well as a dog and since the years of the war no student entered Sewanee without making his ecquaintance.

Though he was the friend of all the university, the big collie was especially fond of Dr. George Baker, dean of the college of arts and sciences, whose classes he had attended faithfully since 1922.

"He understands French and German as well as he does English," once said the dean, who called him "Mon Fils."

There was a pious as well as a studious side to his nature. Until the spring of 1933 Fitz went to chapel each morning at 9 o'clock. But last year the chapel time was changed to noon, and he never went again.

USHERS DIRECT 1,000 TO SAFETY IN THEATER FIRE

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—A few words from a theater manager and the coolness of 16 ushers tonight kept an audience of approximately 1,000 persons from becoming alarmed when fire started in the Strand theater in the center of Times Square.

The motion picture house emptied in five minutes. Not one of the patrons was injured. Two employés, almost overcome by smoke, slid to safety down a cable from the theater's projection room.

Walking onto the stage, Zet Epstein, the manager, quietly said: "Ladies and gentlemen, there is a small fire; there is no danger. Will you kindly follow the ushers?"

The ushers, standing at exits, immediately began calling instructions. Trafic in the square was halted as fire apparatus from several fire stations rushed to the scene.

GOODS OF WOMEN TAX RESISTERS SOLD IN BERMUDA

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The annual auction of goods belonging to two suffragist leaders who won't pay their taxes took place today. The police conducted the auction to satisfy the tax arrearage which the women refused to pay as part of their campaign to force extension of the franchise to the women of Bermuda.

The sale took place on the veranda of Cavello Hill, the Somerset home of Mrs. J. S. Morrell and her mother, Mrs. Terence Misick, the two tax resisters.

Both women have refused to pay taxes for four years, and the same pieces of furniture have been auctioned each year. Mrs. Morrell's contribution is a cedar table and Mrs. Misick's an antique chair and card table. Each year fellow members of the Bermuda Suffrage society buy the articles and give them back to their original owners.

AIMEE M'PHERSON TO QUIT ACTIVE POST IN TEMPLE

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Retirement of Aimee Semple McPherson as active pastor of Angelus temple of the Four Square gospel was announced today.

AIMEE McPHERSON.

Although she will retain the title of pastor and leader of a congregation estimated at more than 15,000 members, Mrs. McPherson will be succeeded in active pulpit duty by Mrs. Rheba Crawford Splivalo, former "Angel of Broadway," who acquired homiletic eloquence as a Salvation Army worker in New York.

Until a few days ago Mrs. Splivalo was California state director of social welfare, under appointment of the late Gov. James Rolph. For nearly two years she has served as supply pastor at the temple. In that period she has done more preaching at the temple than Mrs. McPherson has.

Mrs. McPherson has been away from temple duty for various reasons—illness, long trips for her health and on evangelistic tours. She is planning a journey to the orient.

14 TOWNS URGED BY TVA TO BUILD POWER SYSTEMS

Comes After Failure to Buy Private Lines.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The Tennessee Valley authority publicly announced for the first time today that it would enter into direct competition with existing private electric power facilities. Fourteen municipalities of northern Alabama were urged to build their own distributing systems because litigation and adverse rulings from the courts had delayed the purchase, by TVA, of the Alabama Power company's facilities.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt disclosed at his press conference that he had discussed with utility operators the possibility of squeezing water out of utility stocks if this could be done.

Plans Investment Survey.

The President said he told the power magnates, at a White House conference this week, that the amount of capital necessary to generate electricity was a question of fact. If this fact can be determined, he added, it is a simple matter to determine what the investment return and the rates should be. If existing capital is higher than the generation requirements, it is just unfortunate.

Mr. Roosevelt said the utility operators revealed a disposition to work together rather than at cross purposes by running to the courts.

Since the inception of the government's 360 million dollar social experiment in the Tennessee valley TVA directors have insisted that they would not duplicate existing transmission lines and distributing systems, but would buy them "at fair prices" to avoid competition. This asserted policy was maintained even while negotiations to purchase the Knoxville, Tenn., properties were being carried on under the threat of building a municipal plant with a PWA loan.

Statement Changes Policy.

In the statement issued today by Director David E. Lilienthal, however, the TVA comes out into the open and says it will not be blocked in the extension of its public power program by the opposition of private interests. The 14 cities were advised not to defer any longer their original plans to build municipal systems.

"The TVA has spent a whole year endeavoring to protect the investors of the Alabama Power company from losses which would be incurred in competition between community electric plants of the Alabama Power company," Lilienthal said.

"In this effort the authority has had the full coöperation of the communities involved. The elected representatives of the communities and the people themselves have exhibited great patience and a fine sense of fairness. These efforts to prevent competition have apparently failed."

Court Rules Against TVA.

The latest setback sustained by the TVA in its efforts to purchase the private properties was a ruling by Federal Judge W. I. Grubb, at Birmingham, Ala., on Nov. 28, who held that the government had no constitutional right to go into the power business.

Lilienthal's statement mentions the fact that Judge Grubb denied a motion of preferred stock holders for a temporary injunction to restrain consummation of the purchase for one million dollars of the Alabama Power company properties. It adds that "no order in any wise restraining the conveyance of these properties to TVA has ever been issued." The statement, however, makes no mention of the ruling on Nov. 28, when Judge Grubb denied a motion of the TVA to dismiss the stockholders' suit.

The TVA lost out in its efforts to acquire the Tennessee Public Service company's properties at Knoxville when the Circuit court refused to dismiss a suit brought by the preferred stock holders of that company. The date for consummation of a contract expired the next day and TVA officials admitted there was no hope of going through with it.

Knoxville, however, has an allocation of $2,600,000 from Public Works Administrator Ickes and can proceed with its original plan to build a municipal plant and buy current from the TVA.

Some of the Alabama cities also planned originally to build their municipal plants with PWA easy money and their applications presumably will now be sent to Mr. Ickes in view of the TVA statement of policy.

PWA loans for the construction of municipal power plants, in competition with private enterprise, were held unconstitutional by Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves at Concordia, Mo., on Sept. 20.

Envoy Bullitt Stops Here, Capital Bound from Russia

William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador to soviet Russia, and Senator Hiram Johnson of California passed through Chicago yesterday on their way to Washington, D. C. Although close friends, neither knew the other was aboard the Baltimore and Ohio's Capitol Limited, on which they departed, until so informed by reporters.

"What," exclaimed Ambassador Bullitt, "Hiram Johnson aboard this train? What luck. Are you sure? I must dash right down and see him now."

Evades Queries on Russia.

Thus did the ambassador escape further questioning about Russia's affairs. To other questions, however, he had affably pointed out that an ambassador does not talk about such things as politics, economic affairs and domestic relations of the country to which he is sent.

Mr. Bullitt, who traveled from Russia via China and Japan, arrived in Chicago on the Milwaukee road's Olympian. He will stay in Washington until Jan. 15, and then will return to his post, he said.

Wife Accompanies Senator.

Senator Johnson, who was accompanied by Mrs. Johnson, declared that the economic situation is unquestionably better.

"What appalls me," he commented," is the large number of unemployed and the large number of persons on relief rolls. In the coming session of congress we should devote closest attention to lessening the burden of relief and finding employment for more people."

PRELATE DECLARES RUSSIANS WANT TO RETURN TO CHURCH

The people of soviet Russia would return at once to the church for religious solace if permitted to do so, Metropolitan Theophilus, head of the Russian Orthodox church in the United States, declared here yesterday.

"Religion is not dead in Russia," he said. "The people in certain districts still worship. If the present administration were changed the people would go back to their former church life. I do not believe, however, that an alliance between the church and state is a good thing for the church. That is best demonstrated in this country."

Metropolitan Theophilus is staying at the Russian Holy Trinity cathedral, 1121 North Leavitt street, where he will conduct a pontifical high mass tomorrow. After a nation-wide tour he will return to his headquarters in San Francisco.

ASKS NRA TO CUT DEALERS' MARGIN ON CHARITY COAL

Howard O. Hunter, regional representative of the Federal Emergency Relief administration, revealed yesterday that he is trying to induce NRA authorities at Washington to reduce the $1.88 a ton dealers' margin on relief coal. This margin, which is 40 per cent higher than was ever paid before competitive bidding was abolished by NRA, is costing the state relief commission $5,000 a day in excess expenditures.

The estimated 1,500,000 tons of relief coal required for the "price fixing territory" of Chicago and environs will cost the commission a total of almost $1,000,000 more than on the basis of last year's prices because of the boost in dealer margins. There is an additional increase of several hundred thousand dollars caused by the higher coal production cost under the codes, but this is not being attacked.

E. A. Davenport Celebrates 50 Years with Pullman Co.

E. A. Davenport of River Forest, assistant general passenger agent of the Pullman company, yesterday celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his connection with the concern. Fellow employés and officials gave Mr. Davenport flowers and a desk set at an afternoon reception in the company offices at 79 East Adams street. B. A. Crawford, president of the company, congratulated him on his long service.

POWDER PROFIT DISPUTE DELAY CHARGED AT QUIZ

Officer Avers 3 Months' Time Lost.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The senate munitions committee was told today that three months time was wasted at a critical period during the world war because of a disagreement over profits on the famous Old Hickory powder plant, on which the Delaware du Ponts ultimately realized a 39,231 per cent return on investment.

Col. C. T. Harris of the army ordnance bureau, assigned to the committee hearings to prevent the disclosure of military secrets, was asked by Chairman Gerald P. Nye [Rad., N. D.] how much "quibbling" was encountered by the government in negotiating private contracts during the war.

Harris replied that, though there was not very much, the difference of opinion between the du Ponts and the war industries board over profits on the Old Hickory plant caused the loss of three months during the war.

Charges "Serious Effect."

"It had a serious effect on our preparation," the officer said. "It didn't have a fatal effect, but it might have."

The du Ponts emphatically disputed the statement that they made a profit of nearly two million dollars at no financial risk to themselves through the construction and operation of the Old Hickory plant.

Members of the well known munitions family heatedly challenged the assertion and termed "ridiculous" the statement that the figure represented 39,231 per cent return on investment. They contended that after deducting taxes and other outlays the profit dwindled to a mere $281,346.

The du Ponts also declared that the responsibility for the delay during the war did not rest upon them.

Persist in Assertions.

Alger Hiss, committee investigator who conducted the examination, and committee members nevertheless persisted in their assertions that enormous profits were realized at little or no financial risk to the du Ponts.

The plant in question, known as the largest powder plant in the world, was built near Nashville, Tenn., in 1918 at a government cost of about 85 million dollars and an operating cost of about 25 million during the few weeks it run just before the armistice ended its career.

Hiss disclosed that the contract with the government had been carried out through a subsidiary company capitalized at $5,000.

Asserting that the profits were paid in dividends to the stockholders, Hiss produced minutes of a meeting of the board of directors of the subsidiary showing dividends of $80 a share were declared in 1919. He remarked that the original subscription had been one dollar a share and that 5,000 such shares had been issued.

R. G. PECK NAMED TO NRA'S BOARD OF ADJUSTMENT

Robert G. Peck, president of the Aridor company, manufacturers of household utilities, has been appointed to the NRA state adjustment board, it was announced yesterday by Frederic Roberts, acting state compliance director for NRA.

Another member, who will act as chairman, is expected to be selected next week by Mr. Peck and the only remaining member of the original board, Charles Sand, vice president of the Illinois Federation of Labor.

The board has not met for several weeks, since Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond resigned. A week ago the chairman, Prof. Andrew A. Bruce of Northwestern university, died.

New Minor Planet Named in Honor of Vassar College

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Dec. 14.—Special.]—A minor planet of the twelfth magnitude, observed for the first time in July, 1933, has been named Vassar in honor of Vassar college. The Berlin Recheninstitut, which catalogs these minor planets, has notified the discoverer of the asteroid of its permanent name. Dr. George Van Biesbroeck of the Yerkes observatory found the planet on a photographic plate made on July 27, 1933.

5 OLD FEATURES WILL BE PART OF PERMANENT NRA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The permanent NRA which President Roosevelt will recommend to congress will include five salient features salvaged from the present Blue Eagle machinery, it was learned today.

The five points of the present NRA which the President is almost certain to ask congress to carry forward are: Government supervision of codes as contrasted with self-government of industry, wage and hour controls, collective bargaining requirements, creation of a stronger labor board, and prohibition of child labor.

Fair Practice Rules Doomed.

This program will require also that most of the fair trade practice rules, including price fixing, will be junked by the simple process of having them excluded under the new NRA law. Price and production control is expected to be continued only in natural resource industries, notably coal and oil.

Four major steps looking toward the accomplishment of this program occurred here today.

First, President Roosevelt announced that the government, contrary to the pleas of industry for self-government, will continue its supervision and administration of the NRA system.

Second, W. A. Harriman, NRA administrative officer, revealed that he and S. Clay Williams, chairman of the NRA board, believe that price fixing and other trade practices can be dropped without endangering the wage level and that wage and hour controls should be continued.

Green Sees President.

Third, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, called on President Roosevelt to throw the weight of his organization behind virtually the same program as that outlined by Harriman and Williams. Green said his organization favored continuation of the NRA's wage and hour, collective bargaining, and child labor controls.

Fourth, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins obtained from a conference of state labor officials an agreement to promote state laws which will impose a 40 hour week and an eight hour day on industry, a device which would write NRA regulations directly onto the statute books.

RECEIVER FAVORS BUYING MODERN SURFACE CARS

Spending of 19 Millions Up to Court.

Walter J. Cummings, co-receiver of the Chicago Railways company (the north and west side street car lines), yesterday indorsed the proposal that the companies comprising the Chicago Surface lines immediately expend about $19,000,000 held in their renewal and depreciation funds for rehabilitation of their lines and equipment, particularly through the purchase of modern, noise-insulated, quick starting street cars.

Any such expenditure, however, will require the approval of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. All of the Chicago street car companies have been in receivership in his court since 1927, when their franchises from the city expired. They have been operating since under short term extensions. Mr. Cummings said that subject to the approval of his fellow receiver, Guy A. Richardson, head of the Surface lines, who is out of the city, he believes that Judge Wilkerson should be asked to authorize the expenditure as soon as possible.

Expects Many Objections.

"There undoubtedly will be manifold objections to spending the money, which will have to be disposed of before Judge Wilkerson can approve the proposal," said Mr. Cummings. "But I believe all of these objections can be met.

"As receiver of the Chicago Railways company it is my first duty to conserve the property for the benefit of the security holders. I should feel derelict in my duty if I allowed the lines to become obsolete while under my care, particularly while this fund, earmarked for the purpose, is lying idle."

Mr. Cummings' statement as to the technical feasibility of purchasing modern cars was given weight by his experience before he took his present post as chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company. For many years he was engaged both in the building of street cars and in operation of street car systems in the Chicago suburban area and elsewhere.

Two Streamline Models Tested.

One of two experimental models which have been running on the surface lines since last spring was built with an aluminum alloy body by the Pullman Car and Manufacturing company. The other, which has a body of new lightweight alloy, was built by the J. G. Brill company. Both cars are streamlined, with automatic electric brakes and acceleration control for quick starting and stopping, rubber insulated wheels and other modern features.

The two cars represent an expenditure of more than $500,000 in experimental building not only by the car companies, but by electrical manufacturers, steel and aluminum companies and many other concerns which contributed materials. Test operation has ironed out the "kink" which developed in the experimental cars, and models are now ready for mass production, he said.

Some of the objections to expenditure of the renewal funds grow out of the long and complicated financial history of the Chicago street car companies. The funds were set up under a 20 year franchise granted the companies in 1907, which provided that 8 per cent of gross receipts should be paid into them.

Expect Bondholders to Balk.

In his order of July 18, 1928, fixing the order and priority of liens of various street car security holders, Judge Wilkerson declared that the original renewal and depreciation funds are subject to liens in favor of the first mortgage bondholders primarily, and junior security holders secondarily.

In addition, lawyers familiar with the tangled street car situation hold that the money cannot be spent without either a new transit settlement and franchise, or by negotiations between the city and security holders which, they say, would be fully as difficult as a complete settlement. So long as there is a legal possibility that the street car lines may some day lose their right to operate on city streets, which would reduce the value of their equipment to junk prices, the security holders will balk at any equipment expenditures, they hold.

MRS. VANDERBILT ASKS CHRISTMAS VISIT BY GLORIA

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Nathan Burkan, counsel to Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, asked the appellate division of the Supreme court today for an order staying the decision of Justice John F. Carew on the custody of Mrs. Vanderbilt's daughter, Gloria, pending the outcome of the appeal.

Justice Carew's decision, rendered after a long and sensational series of hearings, gave the chief custody of the child to Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Gloria's aunt.

The application was made, according to Mr. Burkan, so that Mrs. Vanderbilt may see her child at Christmas without prejudicing her appeal.

Mrs. Vanderbilt would prejudice her appeal if she were to take advantage of the provisions of Justice Carew's order, which, among other things, provided that ten-year-old Gloria is to be with her mother from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. on Christmas day.

Mr. Burkan explained that relations between Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Whitney are sufficiently friendly, despite the bitter court fight over the custody of the child, for the mother to expect to be allowed to see her daughter on Christmas if the order is stayed.

Jones in answering his wife's original complaint explained that Miss Compsen merely had been an old high school acquaintance.

INDICT PAY OFF MAN FOR HUEY AS TAX EVADER

Eighth of Long's Aids to Face Charge.

New Orleans, Ala., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The United States grand jury today indicted Seymour Weiss, treasurer for Senator Huey [Dictator] Long's political organization, on charges of attempted evasion of income tax payments.

Weiss, who is head of the Roosevelt hotel where the "Kingfish" maintains his executive suite, is the eighth leader in the Long tribe to be indicted in the government's prosecution of alleged attempts at tax evasion. The grand jury investigation of the returns made by Long and his political henchmen has been going on for months.

Indicted on Seven Counts.

The senator's "pay off man" was indicted on seven counts of attempting to defeat and evade the payment of income taxes for the years 1929 to 1933, inclusive. According to the government's figures, Weiss owes $26,389.36 in income taxes.

The indictment charges that Weiss underestimated his income for the five year period by $176,972.26. He filed for only $55,123.47 of his net income of $232,095.73, according to the government.

Weiss was named as Long's political campaign treasurer by witnesses who appeared last year at the senate hearings held in New Orleans on the allegedly fraudulent election of John H. Overton to the United States senate which was accomplished by Long's support.

Refuses to Testify.

Witnesses told of the large sums of money kept in the safe of the Roosevelt hotel. When Weiss was called to the stand he flatly refused to answer questions about financial affairs which were put to him by Samuel T. Ansell, counsel for the senate committee.

Ansell was later denounced by Long in speeches on the senate floor and Ansell consequently filed a $500,000 libel suit against the senator. Ansell claimed his character had been defamed by Long's circulation of his speeches through the mails.

SMALLEST RAILROAD LOSES DAMAGE SUIT; HENCE NO DIVIDENDS

Galesburg, Ill., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The Galesburg and Great Eastern, said to be the world's smallest railroad, was loser today in a verdict returned by a jury which heard evidence in a damage suit brought by Russell Leach of Galesburg. The suit was for $10,000, but the jury awarded Leach $375 damages—to cover doctor and hospital bills incurred after he was injured when his automobile was struck by the railroad's motor car.

Leach claimed that Chris N. Hoeg, in whom are combined the duties of conductor, engineer, brakeman, station agent, section crew and secretary treasurer of the company, failed to sound a warning at the crossing where the crash occurred. Hoeg testified that he blew his horn but Leach was driving too fast to hear it.

The railroad is 10 miles long and operates between Victoria and Wataga in Knox county. Last year the road declared a 6 per cent dividend, but none will be declared this year, and thus it will be possible to pay the $375 out of earnings, it was said by officers.

ASSESSOR'S STAF ORDERED PLACED ON CIVIL SERVICE

The county civil service commission was ordered by Superior Judge James J. Kelly yesterday to hold a competitive examination for all clerks and deputies in the assessor's office. The commission was instructed to ask the county board for the necessary funds. The court acted on a taxpayer's suit for mandamus.

The order affects 100 regular employés and about 500 others who work in the office at times of peak activity. The state law which established the assessor's office in 1932, specified that the employés were to come under civil service, but funds for the examinations have never been forthcoming. It was estimated that twenty-three separate examinations must be held to cover all classes of employés.

Assessor John S. Clark was pleased when told of the order. "I'll welcome civil service," he said. "I have always advocated it."

CITY NEGLECTING AIR FUTURE, VIEW OF RICKENBACKER

Lake Front Plane Landing Vital, Asserts Ace.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Chicago is sadly neglecting potentialities for having the outstanding air transportation terminal facilities in the United States. This is the opinion of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker whose world war flying record and active participation in commercial operations since 1922 give his views real weight.

"The city's birthright, its incomparable water front and harbor, five minutes from the financial, trade and pleasure centers of the city, is being wasted," Capt. Rickenbacker said yesterday. "All the air trafic which is clogging the airport at 63d street and Cicero avenue should be flowing through terminals right on the water front.

"There is not one valid objection that I have heard which should prevent realization of the possibilities offered by the harbor. No other city in the world is so favored.

Cuts Time Gained in Air.

"I don't need to remind you that it takes from 50 minutes to an hour to drive out to the airport. Nor is it necessary to say more than that flying time from Chicago to Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, or even to Pittsburgh is no more than the time necessary for a round trip by taxi between any loop hotel and the field.

"For years I've wondered why, even though the big multi-motored transport planes had to land at the airport, that passengers and air mail were not flown from there to the foot of Randolph street, or to 8th street—it's just a matter of choice. The equipment—amphibian planes—which would make this possible has existed for a long time.

"Of course any such shuttle service would be only a temporary expedient. I know that the Chicago Plan commission, backed by Mayor Kelly and federal department of commerce officials, has planned an island airport off 16th street.

Should Be "Air Hub of U. S."

"I'm told now that certain groups in the city have objected to this plan, mainly because of motor noise, and that the project is hanging fire. I want to say that regardless of any opposition the time soon is coming when Chicago will have an island airport within ten minutes of the city's office and trade area. The city must have that if it is to keep its place as the 'air hub' of the nation."

Geared engines which cut down propeller speeds and prevent propeller "clatter," and the use of highly supercharged motors which are not opened to full throttle at takeoff already are eliminating most of the noise formerly made by airplanes, Capt. Rickenbacker pointed out. When landing, the modern airliners, which cruise at altitudes of 8,000 to 12,000 feet, have their motors throttled down almost to silence. Other improvements which cut down noise will inevitably be made in the near future, he said.

Favors Milwaukee Service.

Combination of a passenger and mail "commuter" service between Chicago and Milwaukee with the airport shuttle activities would give residents of the Wisconsin city air connections with the major transport lines here, Capt. Rickenbacker went on. It also would make possible the flying of the majority of the air mail exchanged between the two cities now going by rail.

Amphibian craft have been used on a Lake Michigan air line for three years with complete success.

Kohler Aviation corporation began flying in 1931, and the same route, from Milwaukee to Grand Rapids via Muskegon, is now flown by amphibians of Pennsylvania Air lines. The ships are Loening biplane amphibians powered with 650 horse power Cyclone engines. The carrying capacity is six passengers, 200 pounds of mail, pilot and co-pilot.

The planes dock at the foot of Wisconsin avenue, Milwaukee, in good weather, or at Milwaukee County airport in bad. The same landing places could be used by a commuter service operator, with a Chicago base at the 8th street ramp built by the south park commissioners and open to all.

A. SAPIRO, CHICAGO LAWYER, TO TRIAL AS U. S. JURY TAMPERER

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—A federal jury was chosen today for the trial of Aaron Sapiro, Chicago and New York attorney, and Sam Roth, former banker, on charges of attempting to corrupt jurors and conspiracy in the 1932 D. V. Bennett company mail fraud trial. Trial was set for Monday.

After the 1932 trial, which resulted in conviction of Murray Harwood, Sidney Paris, and others for using the mails fraudulently to promote stock sales, jurors charged that Sapiro and Roth had attempted to influence their decision.

Both men denied the charges. Their first trial last month resulted in a mistrial.

REPORTS $10,000 JEWEL ROBBERY IN LOOP HOTEL

Isidore Kinstler, New York jewelry salesman, reported to police yesterday that two men "kidnaped him" as he left his room in the La Salle hotel, imprisoned him in another room nearby and robbed him of $10,000 in cash and jewelry.

Kinstler told Detective Charles Lindstrom of the Central station that he had just left Room 527 to check his briefcase containing the jewelry and was passing Room 520 when the two men pulled him inside. They bound him hand and foot with electric wire, he said, stuffed a towel in his mouth and tied him to the bed. Then they took $460 from his pockets, seized his briefcase, which held $900 in checks and nearly $10,000 worth of rings, watches and unset diamonds, and left.

The victim wriggled free and notified hotel officials, who learned that the room where the robbery occurred had been engaged Thursday by a "George Boyd of Los Angeles," who checked out hurriedly just after the robbery.

Kinstler said he arrived here Wednesday from Detroit. He lives in Brooklyn and works for a jewelry house in New York, he said. The jewelry was not insured, he told police.

RIGGING DECISION GUIDES COURSE OF INSULL TRIAL

Argue Today on Admission of Evidence.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The course of the Martin J. Insull embezzlement trial in the Criminal court, both as to time and character of proof, now hangs on the decision of Judge Cornelius J. Harrington on the admissibility of evidence concerning the stock market activities of the Insull companies in 1931.

Arguments on the defense motion to exclude this testimony will be heard at 9:30 o'clock this morning. The issue is whether it has been shown in the record of this case that Martin Insull was aware of these transactions, all of which were testified to in the federal mail fraud cause and characterized by the government as "market rigging."

If the state wins this point two government experts will take the stand to close the evidence for the prosecution. These are Robert Knittle and Wayne Murphy.

Experts' Testimony in Doubt.

If the defense wins, the accountants probably will not be allowed to testify and the state will conclude its case at once. The necessity of meeting this evidence, according to Attorney John E. Northup for the defense, will considerably prolong the defense case.

In his capacity as director of Utility Securities company, the Insull stock trading concern, Martin Insull bears practically the same relation to what the managing officers of that concern were doing as Stanley Field or Edward J. Doyle bore to the affairs of the Corporation Securities company. The rule applied in the federal court in their cases was that directors could not be bound in a criminal case for actions of which they had no direct knowledge. Such direct knowledge has not been shown in this case.

The state evidence yesterday was confined to the reading of records of Corporation Securities and Insull Utility Investments, Inc., to show the steady depreciation in market value of these stocks during the period in which Martin Insull made the $344,720 investment in them on behalf of the Middle West Utilities company and subsidiaries.

Reports Tell Story of Crash.

The weekly report sheets that went to the executive committees of both companies, of which Martin Insull was a member, were read. These told the tragic story of the crash of the Insull financial structure.

The difference between the cost of the stock and the market value grew each week, the directors were shown. This depreciation amounted to $134,407,715 during the week of Oct. 1, when Insull had to furnish cash for his own stock market account and get these securities out of the hands of bankers and brokers. This was the depreciation for Insull Utility Investments stocks held by the company.

The depreciation for the Corporation Securities stock for the same week was $88,717,871.

FOUR MIDLOTHIAN SCHOOLS CLOSED; TREASURY EMPTY

Four grade schools in Midlothian, whose 919 pupils and 22 teachers live in Midlothian, Posen, Robbins, and Crestwood, in the southern part of Cook county, closed yesterday for lack of funds, it was announced yesterday by Otto F. Aken, county superintendent of schools. Six weeks ago two grade schools in Steger closed for the same reason. The Tinley Park school, when it is shut for the Christmas holidays next Friday, will do so with an empty treasury.

Supt. Aken said that these three groups of schools, as well as a number of others, will not be able to reopen after the holidays unless they get financial aid from the state or the federal government. All of them are in arrears in the payment of bills and teachers' salaries.

FAIR'S BUILDINGS FOUND UNFIT FOR PERMANENT USE

Engineers who have conducted a survey of the buildings of A Century of Progress have decided that it would not be practicable to retain permanently any of the structures on the Exposition grounds, it was reported yesterday.

Investigation has shown, it was said, that the plumbing and wiring in the buildings are of a temporary nature, that the sewer system is a makeshift, and the heating system inadequate.

FIGHT ON HIGHER STATE SALES TAX MADE CERTAINTY

Schnackenberg Insists No Boost Is Needed.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Opposition to the suggested increase in the state sales tax by the Republicans in the Illinois legislature was made certain yesterday by a statement from Elmer J. Schnackenberg, minority leader of the house of representatives.

Schnackenberg, who had remarkable success in checking some of the proposals of the administration during the last regular session, now says that unless Gov. Horner is anxious to maintain an unprecedented surplus in the treasury there is no necessity for additional taxation in any form to meet the most recent of the series of relief fund crises.

Cites Available Funds.

His statement pointed out that available funds for 1935 amounting to an estimated 34 million dollars may be transferred to relief soon after the new assembly convenes on Jan. 9 if Gov. Horner will accept this program, a program that probably will be supported forcibly by the Republican minority and may win some Democratic votes.

"In setting up a program for the financial requirements of the unemployment relief load in 1935," read Mr. Schnackenberg's statement, "it seems that the general assembly at the beginning of the session early next month should not act either precipitately or lavishly.

"Rather it should proceed cautiously along business lines. In the first place it should use the existing $10,000,000 surplus in the state treasury and then take the new revenue coming from liquor sources, which should amount to upward of $9,000,000 in 1935.

Urges Liquor Revenue for Relief.

"Last spring the governor vetoed a bill to use this liquor revenue for the emergency support of schools. Can he now have any reasonable objection to using it for unemployment relief?

"Present figures indicate that the sales tax will raise nearly $45,000,000 in 1935. Not more than $30,000,000 of this should be necessary to maintain the state government. The balance of about $15,000,000 may be used for unemployment relief.

"It should not be assumed at so early a date that the federal government's requirement that Illinois raise $36,000,000 for unemployment relief purposes be taken as final. Recent tendencies in Washington warant the belief that this figure may well be modified downward.

Demands End of Waste.

"The general assembly should insist that waste and extravagance in the present relief distribution be discontinued. In this matter the governor should take some steps now as he should have done almost a year ago when it was called to his attention. He should lead energetically in the suppression of this waste. At least $10,000,000 could be saved in that way during the coming year.

"This suggested course will put the state on a 'pay as you go' basis in meeting this tremendous problem. It will avoid another huge bond issue such as the $30,000,000 one approved by the voters in November. It will not reimpose the state property tax. It will not cripple the operations of the state government."

SECURITIES WORTH HALF MILLION VANISH FROM TELLER'S CAGE

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The strange disappearance of $590,000 worth of United States certificates from a cage at the United States Trust company was reported to the police today and Deputy Chief Inspector John J. Ryan went in person to investigate.

In spite of the large sum, there were only fourteen certificates. Five were of $100,000 denomination and the other nine were of $10,000 denomination.

The certificates were delivered from the First Boston corporation before noon today. The police were not notified of their disappearance until 1 o'clock.

The disappearance of these bonds recalls a somewhat similar disappearance slightly more than two years ago when five $100,000 Liberty bonds vanished from a teller's cage of the Continental Bank and Trust company.

Police were convinced that the thief had stood before the teller's grating and fished out the securities with a stick.

CAFES WILL ADD 2% SALES TAX TO EATING BILL

A decision that Chicago restaurants will begin collecting a 2 per cent tax on their sales was reached last night at a meeting of the Chicago Restaurateurs held in the Hotel Sherman.

Loop eating places not represented at the meeting will be visited today by a committee and requested to coöperate, according to Henry Heibel, executive secretary of the association. This committee is composed of Martin Harding of the John P. Harding chain, chairman; N. D. Gianoulis of the Raklios restaurants, S. J. Goldenberg of Thompson's, and Al Carder.

"If we get the coöperation of all the restaurant owners," said Mr. Harding, "collection will begin on Monday. It is possible we may have to delay the start until Tuesday. Our object is to get the people to recognize that there is an occupational tax, that it is a cost in doing business, and that it cannot always be absorbed in regular prices."

Utilities Lose $2,405,269 Tax Suits; Plan Appeal

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki yesterday entered a judgment of $1,733,708 against the Commonwealth Edison company and a judgment of $671,561 against the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company. The judgments represent disputed portions of the 1931 personal property taxes assessed against the two utilities. Attorneys for the utilities announced their intention of appealing the ruling.

EX-JUDGE HAYES OPENS FIGHT TO CANCEL ALIMONY

Wins Leave to Carry Case Into Court.

Howard Hayes, former Municipal judge, was granted leave by Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday to file a petition for cancelation of alimony payments to his divorced wife, Mrs. Grace Houston, 1400 Lake Shore drive. The hearing on the petition was set for Jan. 16.

HOWARD HAYES.

The petition, drawn by Attorney John W. Day, sets forth that Hayes already has paid $40,000 to his former wife, whom he married Sept. 15, 1917, and with whom he lived only nine months. The couple had no children.

When she won a divorce April 30, 1918, Hayes was ordered to pay $225 a month alimony. He continued these payments until March, 1933, when Judge Finnegan reduced the payments to $100 a month.

In Court Many Times.

Since then Mrs. Houston, who was permitted to resume her former name, has on several occasions cited her former husband into court for being in arrears, and in each case the court action ended in settlement.

Hayes, in his petition, sets forth that he now is married to his fourth wife and has three minor children to support. The original alimony payments were based on his salary as a Municipal judge, he says, but he was defeated in the last election and his income from his law practice is greatly reduced.

It was established at a hearing last year that Hayes had no income besides his salary as a judge, the petition says. It holds that Hayes already has paid more than sufficient money to his divorced wife, and asks that he be relieved of paying any more.

Says Wife Lives Stylishly.

After filing the petition Attorney Day expressed his belief that Mrs. Houston has an independent income.

"She is living in a sumptuous apartment at a fashionable address," he said, "which could not be maintained on the $100 a month she has been receiving from my client." Hayes lives at 4840 Kimbark avenue.

Mrs. Houston's attorney, William Leigh, speaking for her, denied she had any other income and added Hayes' move would be "fought to the limit."

Hayes was Mrs. Houston's second husband. At a hearing last year her first husband, J. Sherman Houston, testified he had paid several $225 monthly alimony instalments to her after she married Hayes, in accordance with a court order entered when she divorced Houston in May, 1910. After learning of her remarriage, Houston said, he arranged to pay only for the board of his two sons in the Hayes home.

ASKS RULING ON NEVADA DIVORCE OF S. REYNOLDS

Opposes Plan to Divide 25 Million Estate.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Distribution of the late Smith Reynolds' 25 million dollar estate as proposed by his family was opposed today by Mrs. Annie L. Cannon of Concord, grandmother and coguardian of the young tobacco heir's first child, Anne Cannon Reynolds II.

Mrs. Cannon filed a petition in Forsyth Superior court asking that the proposed settlement be declined and a master appointed to take testimony and report on the validity of the Reno divorce obtained from Smith Reynolds by her daughter, Mrs. Anne Cannon Reynolds Smith.

Her bill contains a specific request for the court to pass upon the bearing of the divorce on the legitimacy of little Christopher Smith Reynolds, son of Libby Holman, as an heir to the tobacco fortune. Mrs. Smith has contended her Reno divorce from Reynolds was illegal because he was a minor with guardians in this state at the time it was granted. She claimed his marriage to Miss Holman is therefore void.

In her petition Mrs. Cannon accused her brother-in-law, C. A. Cannon, president of the Cabarrus bank, of being an unfriendly guardian of Anne II. and declared that for the last ten years a state of "armed neutrality" has existed between the two branches of the powerful towel manufacturing family.

The grandmother also asked the court to pass finally upon the validity of the New York will of Smith Reynolds which she declared was made while he was still a minor and a resident in fact of North Carolina. This will left the bulk of the money to his brother and sisters.

BULLFIGHTER FRANKLIN FILES $200,000 ACTION OVER MOVING PICTURES

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Sidney Franklin, the American matador, filed a $200,000 libel suit against the Fox Film corporation and the Movietone News today because, he said, a movie titled, "Throwing the Bull," subjected him to "public scorn, derision, ridicule, and contempt."

Franklin's suit, filed in Supreme court, described the plaintiff as a matador de toros "or professional bull fighter," actor, lecturer, and author of "world-wide reputation."

He said he posed for pictures with the understanding they were to be used only for newsreel purposes. Instead, he alleged, the defendants sold the pictures to Bray Pictures corporation and they were incorporated in a movie which referred to him as "the Brooklyn bull thrower."

LETTERS PILE UP FOR SANTA IN THE NEW POSTOFFICE

1,500 Already Filed by Districts of City.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Somewhere in the new postoffice there is a Santa Claus. So certain of this are thousands of youngsters that already 1,500 letters have found their way to a headquarters there for Santa's mail, and 4,000 more are expected before Christmas.

JOHN T. McGRATH.

Yesterday a reporter searched the corridors and found, sure enough, the postoffice Santa, portly and smiling over the bushel of letters that cluttered his desk. He didn't have on a red suit, but he had white hair, and ruddy cheeks, and eyes that crinkled at the corners. He had just one attendant who was busy filing letters in pigeonholes.

Reads All the Letters.

"I'll let you in on the secret," the attendant whispered. "That's really Assistant Postmaster John T. McGrath, but he pretends he is Santa Claus every Christmas and has for fourteen years. He reads all these letters and files them, but he doesn't stop there. He gets as many Chicagoans as he can to see that poor children's requests are satisfied on Christmas morning."

The postoffice Santa himself explained how he has made it easy for his "clients" to call on their adopted families.

"People like to feel they're helping their neighbors," he said. "So I am dividing all the letters according to districts, forty-two for the city. Then when any one with the Christmas spirit asks for letters, all I have to do is ask them where they live, and give them the name of a neighbor."

Santa Pays for Stamps.

When letters arrive stampless, Santa Claus pays, due to a postal regulation. That means Mr. McGrath buys the stamps right out of his own pocket. Some of these stampless ones he reads, and when he does his eyes stop crinkling at the corners. Here is one from a small boy on Meade avenue.

"Dear Santa: You didn't find our house last year, so I am writing you early. Rachel my sister needs a doll so badly. You see, Rachel can't walk and she never will walk. She gets tired of sitting all day with no toys. I am a tough guy so I would like a cowboy suit."

Buddy, who is 12 and lives on West 64th place, reminded Santa that his Dad hadn't been working for two years, and anyway he was sick because he was gassed in the war. "We got six in the family and I'm the oldest. Please remember my brothers and sisters," he added.

HOLDUP VICTIM SEIZES GUN AND SHOOTS BANDIT

Facing the leveled pistol of a bandit last night, Victor Gustafson, manager of a filling station at 101 West 79th street, could do nothing but obey the intruder's demand to "stick 'em up."

But Gustafson made sure that his hands were near a small rifle which hung in a cabinet behind him. As the bandit relaxed his vigilance to take $13 from the cash register Gustafson seized the gun and fired.

The bandit fell wounded in the neck, but his companion rushed in with a shotgun and forced Gustafson to carry the wounded man to a car outside. The machine sped away east in 79th street, but almost immediately crashed into a car driven by Howard East, 5535 Everett avenue.

At the same time a police squad car appeared. The uninjured bandit attempted to flee on foot, but was caught. He gave his name as Thomas O'Connell, 23 years old, of 7814 Eberhart avenue. At the Auburn Park hospital the wounded man said he was James Whalen, 26, of 8006 Calumet avenue.

FRANCE WORRIED; UNEMPLOYMENT FIGURE IS RISING

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Dec. 14.—The alarming increase in unemployment in France continues at an accelerated pace while the general economic situation is going from bad to worse.

Unemployment statistics issued today covering the week ending Dec. 8 shows a rise of 9,658 over the previous week and 115,223 over the corresponding week of 1933. The total number of unemployed is 384,841. These are registered wholly unemployed and it is generally agreed that the actual total is about four times the official figure. Observers expect unemployment to reach the half million mark by the end of February.

The industrial production index is pursuing a steady downward trend which indicates contraction of trade. Bankruptcies have reached an all time record.

PACKAGE LIQUOR STORES ASK FOR HIGHER LICENSES

Members of the Illinois Package Liquor Stores association, meeting yesterday in the Straus building, voted to ask the city council to raise their license fees from $600 to $1,000, and at the same time lower the fee charged small grocers to less than $200 and to restrict them to the sale of beer only.

The reason for the request, said Abe Marco, president of the association, is to stop the practice of small stores and delicatessens holding cut rate sales on package liquor. To compete with other stores, Marco said, many small stores handle package goods at a loss.

The association also asks a law prohibiting bars from handling package goods and the retention of the $600 fee for all establishments selling liquor by the drink.

250 CLUB WOMEN HEAR ARGUMENT FOR VIVISECTION

Shown Methods Used at University.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Doctors associated with the University of Illinois College of Medicine, 1853 West Polk street, yesterday spent several hours instructing some 250 club women on why the cause of vivisection or animal experimentation should be upheld. Anti-vivisectionists are trying to repeal the Arvey ordinance, which provides that unclaimed dogs at the city pound may be turned over to research institutions.

After a lecture the women, who were members of the ninth district (north side) of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, toured the grounds of the medical college. Their tour included the animal hospital and operating rooms on the top floor of the school.

Operating Rooms Are Shown.

The women exclaimed over the cleanliness of the room where the dogs were kept in separate compartments. A physician pointed out one which had undergone a brain operation but apparently was normal again. In one of the nonsterile operating rooms they observed a dog in a deep anesthetic sleep while an intern sat by, measuring his spinal fluid pressure. He explained that the experiment, that of reducing such pressure by intravenous sugar injections, would be of great aid in cases of skull fracture and brain tumor if successful.

Several operating rooms were shown, where the dogs and other animals are brought in after shots of morphine, anesthetized, and operated on with sterile instruments by doctors "scrubbed up" for the operation as if their patients were persons.

Hogs Used in Experiment.

In a lecture auditorium previously they had listened to Dr. Robert W. Keeton explain how hogs were used in obesity diet experimentation before it was applied successfully to obese women, pointing out that the anti-vivisectionists' complaint that dogs were used when other animals could be substituted was not true.

Other speakers included Dean D. J. Davis of the college; Dr. Clara Gottschalk, program chairman; Dr. Frank Jirka, state director of health; Dr. Paul Schroeder of the Institute for Juvenile Research, and Dr. Maurice Visscher, head of the physiology department of the college.

Smith Curbs County Board 'Advertising' in Preserves

Clayton F. Smith, new president of the county board, said yesterday that hereafter county officials will do less advertising of their names in the signs erected in the forest preserves. The names of the county commissioners appearing on approximately 400 signs will be erased and the slogan, "Help Prevent Fires," painted in their place, he said. He added that fifty small signs bearing his name and advising the public to direct any criticisms or suggestions concerning the preserves to him, will be placed throughout the preserves.

PASTOR'S WIDOW, ON TRIAL, DENIES SHE KILLED HIM

Insists Story $10 Paid for Slaying Is False.

Lebanon, Ind., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Although she told a story of mistreatment by her husband, the Rev. Gaylord Saunders, the widow of the Wabash, Ind., Methodist Episcopal minister denied at her trial in Circuit court here today that she was guilty of his murder. He was pastor of the Wabash church until three days before he was found slain in an automobile parked in the fashionable north side apartment house district in Indianapolis.

Mrs. Saunders specifically denied that she gave $10 to Ted Mathers, 19, friend of Saunders, to have her husband slain. Mathers also is to be tried on a charge of murder.

At the prosecution's first question Mrs. Saunders began to sob.

She was asked if she still cherished the memory of her slain husband.

In an uneven voice, she answered, "I do."

Never Ceased to Love Him.

Q.—When did you cease loving Gaylord Saunders? A.—Never.

Q.—On the night that your husband and your party of friends danced at the Seville tavern in Indianapolis, you left and went to his apartment, did you not? A.—We did.

Q.—I presume you kissed him for the last time that night, did you not? A.—I did.

Q.—Did he hold you close in his arms and talk affectionately to you while you were dancing? A.—He did when he talked any.

Q.—How about that trip to North Manchester? Did you not draw a gun on your husband then? A.—No, I could not kill him.

Q.—How about that talk with a doctor about various poisons? A.—I don't remember such a conversation.

State Refers to Revolver.

The prosecution repeatedly recalled she was in possession of a revolver on her return home from a trip to North Manchester.

Q.—Could it not have been, Mrs. Saunders, that you intended to shoot your husband with the gun? A.—Certainly not. I loved him too much.

Q.—Do you know anything about firearms? A.—Not a thing.

Q.—Was this gun loaded? A.—Certainly, it was, I—.

Q.—O, you loaded it. I thought you knew nothing about guns. A.—Well I sat on the edge of the bed in the bedroom of Mrs. Balke [her nurse] and fooled with it until I got it loaded.

Q.—Where did you find the cartridges? A.—They were lying in a drawer alongside the gun.

Q.—And that was just two weeks before he was killed? A.—It was.

Confessions Recalled.

The state stressing her signed confession called attention to certain parts of a confession signed by Ross E. Curts, Wabash youth, who admitted he concealed the gun with which the minister was slain. One line in Curts' statement said, "She told me she had Ted kill Saunders."

Q.—You saw that line when you signed a statement at police headquarters in Wabash? A.—My mind was so dazed I was in a mental fog.

Q.—How about that sentence: "On one of my trips to Indianapolis I talked to Ted about having my husband killed"? A.—I signed in confusion.

Q.—Do you know who killed your husband? A.—I do not.

The widow declared she held no affection for young Mathers and denied a love affair with the youth might have motivated the slaying of the pastor. After seven character witnesses had been called, court adjourned until Monday morning.

Kibitzer at Pinochle Game Hands Out Too Much Advice

The Wilson Club hotel at 1124 Wilson avenue has come to be recognized as a place where good pinochle players abound. There is usually a brisk game in progress and Thursday night was no exception.

Max Adelman and Frank Coleman, each worthy of the other's mettle, were engaged at ten cents a hundred and double for spades. Peace and quiet were the order of the evening until another guest, Harry Hemmes, 54 years old, entered the arena.

Adelman cringed and began to give off low, pitiful moans peculiar to the pinochle participant at bay. He made no secret of the fact that he considered Hemmes a kibitzer and a menace.

Promises to Give No Advice.

Hemmes smiled and extended the hand of friendship. No suggestions were coming from him, he told Adelman, and took his stance behind Coleman.

"Three hundred," Coleman bid.

"Three-fifty," Adelman announced boldly after a glance at the widow.

Coleman shook his head, dropped his cards, and was about to pass. Kibitzer Hemmes tapped him on the shoulder and said distinctly: "You've overlooked 60 queens, you chump."

Coleman gathered up his hand, bid 400, won the hand and game. Adelman, who had been making hissing noises much like an overstrained boiler, gave a great cry of rage and fell upon Hemmes. After a determined attack he retreated with broken glasses and bruised face. Then he appealed to the police.

Judge McCarthy Is Stern.

Hemmes appeared yesterday morning before Judge Justin F. McCarthy. The judge shook his head gravely and assessed a fine of $2 and $3 costs.

"I can't pay, your honor," Hemmes pleaded. "I'll have to go to jail."

"Then go work it out," the judge told him. "Your offense is great."

Judge McCarthy turned to Adelman. "An old pinochle player myself," he said.

Both turned with peaceful smiles to watch a bailif lead the kibitzer away.

HIS CHRISTMAS WISH GRANTED; STAYS IN PRISON

Fred Woods, 73 years old, yesterday was granted his peculiar wish to spend Christmas in the Joliet penitentiary. Although he is eligible for parole, he has no sponsor and if released now would have to take shelter in the Hope hall at 6036 Ravenswood avenue.

"I'd rather stay here where I know my way around, at least until spring," Woods said. "Then somebody may give me a job as a landscape gardener."

Prison authorities said that if Woods does not desire a parole he may stay until his sentence for larceny is completed. He has served five years of a one to ten years sentence.

Woods' ideas about where to spend the holidays are radically different from those of Morris Rader, another convict. Rader escaped from the Joliet prison yesterday. One of a gang sent outside the walls to repair a road, he slipped away and was not missed until the detail was taken back through the gates. Rader, who is 32 years old, was sentenced two years ago in Will county for larceny with a gun.

MODEL MAKING URGED FOR TIRED BUSINESS MEN

If more business men made model ships, trains and engines in their basements there would be fewer suicides. That is the opinion of C. B. Burns, in whose machinery plant at 28 North Clinton street the annual show of the Chicago Society of Model Engineers is being held.

"Practically all of these working models, all of them built to scale," he said, "were made in home workshops. Men tired by the complexity of their businesses and by depression troubles find relaxation in model engineering."

On view in the show are models of nearly every famous railroad engine in the world. The railroads coöperate by furnishing blueprints of their equipment. Other models are of destroyers, speedboats, marine engines, racing yachts and gasoline and steam engines. Many were made by leaders in business and civic affairs who do little or no engineering outside their hobby.

Window Washer Ransacks Home; Gets $2,000 Gems

Mrs. Isabelle Winslow, 647 Sheridan road, reported to the police last night that burglars had broken into her home and stolen $60 and jewelry valued at $2,000. The jewelry included three diamond rings. Shortly afterward Lyman Pierce, 24 years old, a Negro window washer, was arrested in his home, 4621 South Michigan avenue, and confessed stealing the jewelry which was recovered.

FRANK LANSER NAMED DEPUTY CITY SEALER

Appointment of Frank N. Lanser, manager of the fuel division of the Better Business bureau, as deputy city sealer, was announced yesterday by Mayor Kelly. The position was formerly held by James L. Igoe, who recently resigned.

Earlier in the day the Better Business bureau made public a report pointing out that prosecutions of short weight and short measure cases were fewer in 1934 than last year, and charging laxity in the office. Te report did not contain any hint of scandal in the department, but intimated that its administration could be improved.

SCIENTISTS TELL WAY TO "GROW" LOVE IN GARDEN

Describe Action of Pigment in Corn, Pumpkins

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Scientists today outlined a way by which love and hate might be grown in a vegetable garden along with beans and carrots.

Likewise, the annual exhibit of scientific work of the Carnegie institution of Washington described a manner by which sorrow and joy might be planted along with beets and cabbages.

Scientists Look to Plants.

These emotions, it was explained, depend chiefly on gland secretions, and some of the gland secretions which govern emotions have been found by scientists to originate in yellow pigments of plants. When the plants are eaten they help to manufacture in the body the hormones or glad secretions that govern emotional behavior.

At the same exhibit astronomers showed the latest evidence that the universe is expanding, with the farthest "edge" now visible through telescopes racing away from the earth at 24,000 miles per second.

One of the hormones which governs female sex activity was traced by scientists to "xanthophyll," one of the yellow pigments of plants. This yellow pigment, and another, "carotene," are found in tomatoes, corn, pumpkins, tea leaves, carrots, egg yolks, and butter.

Show Growth of Universe.

Another hormone that governs emotion is adrenalin, secreted in large quantities by the ardenal gland when a person feels anger. These same pigments also manufacture some of the vitamins.

In the astronomical part of the exhibit it was shown that the known universe is growing 48,000 miles larger in diameter every second, if it is expanding in the way that astronomers think it is.

Latest evidence that the universe is expanding, much like a blownup balloon, is a faint nebula or star cloud that apparently is speeding away from the earth at 24,000 miles per second.

Lindbergh Named Trustee.

The Carnegie institution announced that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Dr. Thomas Barbour, director of the Harvard museum, Dr. Richard P. Strong of Harvard medical school and Dr. Alfred Lee Loomis, New York banker and physicist, had been elected trustees to fill four vacancies. Former President Herbert Hoover and Andrew W. Mellon were reëlected trustees.

JURY CONVICTS 2 MORE ARSON RING MEMBERS

CRIMINAL COURT

Raymond Radtke, embezzlement, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Dennis E. Sullivan.

William Cline, larceny of an automobile, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Hugo Friend.

Steve Gerlach, 45 years old, a real estate dealer, and Andrew Ratkovich, 47 years old, were found guilty on the charge of burning the building of another yesterday by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge John C. Lewe. The case marked the 14th and 15th consecutive convictions won by the state since the opening of the investigation into Chicago's million dollar arson ring.

The defendants face terms of one to ten years in the penitentiary if their motions for new trials are overruled on Dec. 19.

Testimony showed that Gerlach and Ratkovich purchased a mortgage on a two story building at 3128 Wentworth avenue for $3,000. The building, which was insured for $4,000, was burned last Jan. 8.

The state charged that Valentine Notari, alleged arsonist, who was granted a separate trial so he might testify for the state, was hired by the defendants to burn the building for 20 per cent of the insurance. The charge of burning the building of another was invoked, as the charge of arson cannot be brought if the building fired is tenantless.

YOUNG ROBBER'S MOTHER DRAWS PRISON SENTENCE

Mrs. Ann Dean, 37 years old, mother of a convicted member of the Sunday gang of robbers, was sentenced to serve one year to life in the penitentiary for receiving stolen property yesterday by Judge Joseph A. Graber. Her son, Thomas, 15 years old, received a like sentence for burglary on Wednesday.

Police Captain Thomas Duffy told the judge that the Dean home was full of property stolen by the Sunday gang, that Mrs. Dean was wearing stolen clothing, and enjoying a program over a stolen radio at the time of her arrest.

MOUNTAIN TURNS INTO A VOLCANO; STIRS HONDURAS

Governor Says Size of Peaks Grows.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The upthrust of Mount Erapuca and its transformation into an active volcano was reported today by Gov. Santarosa of Copan province in a telegram to the federal government.

Gov. Santarosa reported that the earthquakes throughout his district, which began twelve days ago, were continuing without cessation. His report said:

"Earthquakes radiating from the central part of this district seem to be centered on the outskirts of the city of Copan in the Merendon mountain range.

Size of Mountains Increases.

"We believe that Mount El Carmencito, close by, is increasing in size and that the same is true of Mount Erapuca, the latter becoming a perfect volcano such as caused the destruction of ancient Copanti in 500 A. D.

"The earthquakes are also causing a change in Mount La Bufa, which in 1908 erupted occasioning the strong earthquake on Aug. 28 of that year.

"These previous activities and the present phenomena have caused a panic in the city of Copan and throughout the district, since the subterranean disturbances are believed to center here.

Asks for a Commission.

"Please dispatch a technical commission to assist in preventing a disaster to the public and to calm the population."

Elsewhere in Honduras, the population was endangered by floods following a week of relentless rainfall. Rivers have overflowed their banks in La Cieba district, tearing away many bridges and railroads and flooding the banana plantations.

More damage was caused in Truxillo district, where agriculture was badly hurt by the rain.

23 POLISH JEWS FORBIDDEN TO ENTER PALESTINE

JERUSALEM, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Twenty-three Polish Jews who yesterday came to Palestine as tourists were refused permission to enter the country by the immigration department and sent back to Egypt, their last stopping point. Today the Egyptian government deported the entire group back to Poland.

At the same time five young Jewish girls who had entered Palestine illegally outwitted the immigration officials just as they were being arrested and carried off to prison. While on the train bound for jail they were married to their fiancés despite the opposition of the guards.

By marrying native Palestinians they became citizens, thus escaping deportation and possible prison terms

STEVENS ALIMONY SUIT DROPPED IN SUPERIOR COURT

For lack of jurisdiction, the suit of Mrs. Jessie Stevens, 4118 South Parkway, to collect $8,400 in back alimony from her former husband, James W. Stevens, 81 years old, 1260 Lake Shore drive, retired hotel and insurance official, was stricken from the call of Superior Judge Francis B. Allegretti yesterday.

The suit is against Stevens' personal receiver, appointed from the Circuit court. Mrs. Stevens' attorney, Joseph E. Winterbotham, said he was convinced the Superior court cannot hear the suit. He was uncertain whether a new suit would be filed in the Circuit court.

Waukegan to Vote Jan. 5 on Aldermanic System

County Judge Perry L. Persons of Lake county yesterday entered an order calling an election on Jan. 5 in which voters will determine whether Waukegan is to abandon the aldermanic form of government for the commission form. The order was issued on presentation of a petition signed by 1,229 voters. The commission form of government, which had been in force for 20 years in Waukegan, was abandoned for the aldermanic form three years ago.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr. came to his death by fracture of the skull caused by external violence.

This will be the contention of the state in its trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for murder.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz today announced he had mailed a statement covering this contention to Defense Attorneys Frederick A. Pope and Lloyd Fisher. No mention of a weapon or intent was made.

The information was given as a result of a court order issued today by Supreme Court Justice Thomas A. Trenchard, commanding the state to answer this question:

"What does the state contend was the cause of the death of the said Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.?"

1,000 HORSEPOWER PLANE MOTOR IS GRANTED RATING

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Development of a new nine cylinder air cooled radial airplane motor of approximately 1,000 horse power at sea level and 750 horse power at 7,000 feet with mild supercharging, was announced today by the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft company of East Hartford. The new engine has one of the lowest pound per horse power ratios ever achieved in a standard engine. The ratio is 1.5 pounds per horse power. Its rating was granted yesterday by the department of commerce.

The new engine is a refinement of the Hornet motor rated at 700 horse power at sea level which is a standard motor of the military air services and is widely used commercially. In its new form the Hornet becomes one of the most powerful radial type motors built in the world. The Gnome-Rhone company of France recently perfected a 14 cylinder two-row radial motor of 1,000 horse power at sea level, but it has not been officially rated.

FLOODS DRIVE 300 FROM HOMES IN CALIFORNIA TOWN

Deluge Rushes Down Six Canyons.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Three hundred residents of Montrose were driven to the safety of higher ground and numerous roads were buried in mud and gravel today when sudden floods, loosed by cloudbursts, roared down half a dozen canyons in La Crescenta valley.

There was no loss of life, however, and little serious damage to homes. A recurrence of last New Year's disastrous deluge, in which more than thirty persons were drowned and property damage soared into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, had been feared.

Cut Half Mile Path.

The torrential rains sent water rushing along the path of the New Year's day flood in walls ranging from six to ten feet high. They cut a path half a mile wide as they spread out on the flat hillsides and swept through Montrose and on their way to empty into the Los Angeles river.

The order to Montrose residents to evacuate their homes and get to safety immediately was issued by county flood control authorities. J. R. Mimi, deputy county flood control engineer, warned residents at the time that a wall of water was rushing down Pickens canyon, the mouth of which is only a short distance from the main streets of Montrose.

Heaviest in Forty-five Years.

Though the rainfall, which is the heaviest southern California has experienced in forty-five years, continued, Montrose residents were able to return to their homes tonight when it was announced that the threat of danger had lessened considerably.

Though six nearby canyons were turned into swirling rivers, the water never reached Montrose in proportions large enough to destroy homes. It did, however, cover some of the streets with mud and rocks, blocking traffic.

TELLS OF FINDING OTHER WOMAN'S CLOTHES IN HOME

"I got home from the hospital a month ago to find another woman's clothes in my closet," Mrs. Dorothy Zipperle, 7611 South Peoria street, testified yesterday before Superior Judge Francis B. Allegretti. She was in court to ask temporary alimony pending settlement of her separate maintenance suit, filed by Attorney Norman Becker, against Dudley Zipperle, 1502 West Garfield boulevard, owner of a meat market at 5512 South Ashland avenue.

"When I left the hospital after 16 days," she said, "I arrived home to find the locks changed. I got inside, though, and saw a lot of dresses and women's underwear that did not belong to me. My husband tried to prevent me from taking them, but I got out with these." She held up an earring and a fragment torn from a silver evening gown.

Zipperle, who was represented by Attorney George Spatuzza, was ordered to pay $12.50 a week temporary alimony and to return his wife's clothing to her.

Divorces Broker and Wins Alimony of $300 Monthly

Superior Judge Francis B. Allegretti yesterday granted an uncontested divorce to Mrs. Josephine Wathier, 35 years old, 1524 Jackson boulevard, daughter of B. A. Railton, wholesale grocer, from Roy A. Wathier, a broker, whom process servers say they have been unable to find. An order for $300 monthly alimony was entered. Mrs. Wathier testified the marriage took place Sept. 14, 1921, and that Wathier deserted her Oct. 8, 1933. She was awarded custody of their two daughters, Virginia, 11 years old, and Joan, 8.

Conflict with Italy Is Grave, League Warned by Ethiopia

GENEVA, Dec. 14.—(AP)—A new sore on the world's political face—the friction between Italy and Ethiopia in Africa—was called to the attention of the league of nations' council this evening.

The government of Emperor Haile Selassie at Addis Ababa telegraphed the council to give the African power's version of recent border clashes in which both Italian and Abyssinian forces suffered casualties, and to say:

"In the presence of the aggression of Italians, the Abyssinian government calls the attention of the council to the gravity of the situation."

Makes No Appeal.

Unlike Jugo-Slavia, which asked the league to take steps against Hungary for her alleged "complicity" in the assassination of King Alexander at Marseilles, Ethiopia made no appeal under any article of the league covenant.

She merely stated her case and declared grave the situation growing out of Italian "aggression" along the still disputed line separating Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland.

Officials of the league said the message would be distributed to all states members of the council and all members of the league. No other specific action will be taken, they said.

League circles deem the note a warning that unless the Italians cease fighting, Addis Ababa will formally appeal to the league to invoke some article of the covenant.

TWO BORDER INCIDENTS.

Two separate border incidents in the past two months have strained relations between Rome and Addis Ababa. Vigorous diplomatic protests followed both incidents.

In November an armed group attacked the Italian consulate at Gondar, near Lake Tana, killing one member of the consulate guard and wounding two. Italy asked and got apologies and indemnities. Last week Italian native forces clashed with Abyssinians armed with machine guns and cannon at the Italian outpost of Ualual, in Italian Somaliland, according to Italy. The African government claimed Italy's forces penetrated 75 miles into their territory, precipitating the clash.

Casualties in the latest clash, Italian advices said, were 140. Of them 110 were said to have been Abyssinians, 30 Italians.

Italy made vigorous representations to Addis Ababa. Emperor Haile Selassie's government replied in kind. A suggestion that the issue be arbitrated was rejected by Italy.

British Jury Acquits Waiter in 'Trunk Murder' Mystery

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Tony Mancini, the stammering waiter, was acquitted by a jury of a charge of murdering Mrs. Violette Kaye, professional dancer whose dismembered body was found in a trunk at Brighton. Mancini testified he placed the body in the trunk, but denied he had slain the woman. He said he found Mrs. Kaye dead in bed on returning home from work. She had been beaten to death, he testified. He said he disposed of the body because he feared he would not receive fair treatment from the police.

Tiber Goes on a Rampage; Several Villages Flooded

ROME, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Old Father Tiber went on his biggest rampage since 1929 today, causing serious damage along the upper reaches of the river. A week of rain accompanied by a warm south wind which melted the snows in the Apennines valley raised the level of the river to flood stage over its entire length. Several small communities near the headwaters were inundated. Similar flood conditions prevailed on the River Arno at Florence, where part of the town was flooded.

MACHADO FLEES GERMANY TO FOIL SEIZURE FOR CUBA

Heads for Swiss Border as Havana Acts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—Gerardo Machado, former dictator-president of Cuba, was on the move again tonight as his successors to power in the island republic started machinery here to extradite him on charges of murder and other crimes allegedly committed during his régime.

Machado, who fled from Cuba when a revolution which had been brewing for several years broke about him in August, 1933, left Hamburg for the Swiss border by automobile when it appeared that German police might act any minute to seize him for an extradition hearing.

The former president reached Hamburg earlier this week from the Dominican republic with the announced intention of seeking the "water cure" at some German resort for an intestinal ailment from which he had been suffering.

Havana Acts for Extradition.

Yesterday, however, the government at Havana is understood to have requested its legation here to obtain Machado's extradition. The departure today occurred shortly after a visit from German police who apparently advised the exiled Cuban to get out of the country before the legation acts.

The first attempt to extradite Machado was made when he was in New York, to which city he had gone from Canada, his first haven from his tormentors. He disappeared from New York and next turned up in the Dominican republic, from which he sailed recently on the German steamer Frieda Horn.

ABC Gets Allies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Dec. 14.—The ABC revolutionary society was joined today by the Autentico and Cuban revolutionary parties in opposition to the government of President Carlos Mendieta and particularly Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of the army.

The occasion for the alliance was the raid on the ABC newspaper Accion Wednesday night in which nine members of the staf were kidnaped and given liberal quantities of castor oil. The raid, it is charged, was carried out by Batista's agents as part of an attempt to terrorize the government's opponents.

The Autenticos formerly supported Batista, but when he transferred his allegiance to Mendieta from Ramon Grau San Martin last January they deserted the army chief.

The government meanwhile continued to clamp a strong military hand on the nation to forestall any armed revolt which may be in the offing.

ESCAPED PRISONER, KIDNAPER, IS SLAIN; FIND BODY IN FIELD

Yakima, Wash., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Martin Hogan, 23, abductor last Sunday night of Clarence Farrell, Ellensburg theater man, was found dead today in the stubble of a ranch near Sunnyside.

Hogan was gripping one pistol tightly in his right hand while an automatic lay by his side. Two shells of the weapon in his hand had been fired, Deputy Sheriff Jack Runyan said.

Officers were undecided whether Hogan was a suicide or might have been killed in a fight with the man or youth who liberated him from the county jail at Ellensburg Sunday night.

As the two fled through darkened streets they saw Farrell leaving his theater. They commandeered his car and forced him to drive at break neck speed over icy roads, Hogan threatening to kill him.

11 YEAR OLD GIRL PROVIDES CLEW IN TULSA DEATH

Hears Shot, Sees Fleeing Man in Woods.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The story of an 11 year old girl that she heard the shot which killed Sidney Born Jr. last Sunday night and that she and her father saw an unidentified man running from the scene tonight brought a fresh sensation in Tulsa's tragic events of the last fifteen days.

Another development was the announcement that a special grand jury to investigate all angles of the Born death and the slaying of John F. Gorrell Jr. on Thanksgiving night will be asked in a petition to be filed in the County District court tomorrow. Phillip Kennamer, 19, son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer, has confessed to the killing of Gorrell and is held on a murder charge.

Police Believe Suicide Theory.

The city police have concluded that Born was a suicide but the persistent feeling throughout Tulsa is that he was slain. An attorney for an insurance company, in which Born took out a $1,000 policy less than a year ago, said tonight that he was convinced the youth was murdered. The company would not have to pay a suicide's policy.

The girl who heard the shot which killed Born is Mary Elizabeth Abshire, daughter of F. W. Abshire, an oil company salesman, and granddaughter of Mrs. Mabel Bassett, Oklahoma state commissioner of charities and corrections.

Out in Woods.

She told Sherif Charles Price that she and her father were in a wood near the spot where Born's car was parked. The Abshire girl, who is widely known as an imitator of bird calls, said she was practicing a few calls when she heard a pistol shot.

Her father did not hear the shot, the sherif was told, but a moment later they saw a man crashing through the underbrush. The man was described as of medium build, and well dressed, with his face muffled in his overcoat collar.

Abshire was in Mexico tonight and is expected back here within a few days.

The girl had told her mother about the shot but thought nothing more of it until today. Sherif Price said that he believes the girl may be able to identify the man if he is found.

BAIATA AND 3 AIDS IN SWINDLE PLOT PLEAD INNOCENCE

Four men indicted for an alleged plot to loot the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank, 111 West Jackson boulevard, and the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company of Springfield, were arraigned yesterday before Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court, and entered pleas of not guilty.

The defendants are Joseph Baiata, ex-convict and alleged leader in the plot; Abraham Karatz, former lawyer of St. Paul; W. W. Ehlers, who was set up in a brokerage business by Baiata, and Otto Van Derck, 23 years old, clerk in the bank. Van Derck's confession recently brought the arrest of the others.

The case was continued until Dec. 21 for assignment to a trial judge because of the absence of two defendants who are at liberty on bond. They are Dave [Long Count] Barry, fight referee, and Hayden Sanders, once assistant cashier of the bank. A seventh defendant, Gustav Lindquist, former insurance commissioner of Minnesota, is a fugitive.

ROBBERS TERRIFY CROWD IN STORE; FLEE WITH $1,400

Six bandits threatened thirty or forty persons with shotguns and pistols yesterday afternoon while robbing the Berkowitz department store, 6330 Irving Park boulevard, of $1,400, which the store had on hand to cash checks of employes of the state hospital at Dunning.

Four of the bandits entered the store and shouted that they were there to hold it up. Many of the women patrons and clerks screamed, but the bandits paid no heed and ordered all to group themselves near a counter. One employe was sent to get the money out of the cash drawer in every department.

One woman whose name was not obtained had fainted. Others who were in a beauty parlor connected with the store were panic-stricken, as the bandit who stood guard repeatedly pointed his pistol at them.

TRUE BILLS NAME 2 IN STAMP PLOT; ONE STATE AGENT

Charles Mayer, an investigator for the state department of finance, and Irving Projansky, 5040 North Ridgeway avenue, a liquor dealer, were reported named in true bills yesterday charging them with larceny and conspiracy to defraud the state through the theft and sale of liquor revenue stamps.

Mayer was assigned to see that newly printed stamps went through correct state channels. Instead, the state charged, he gave approximately $1,000 worth of stamps to Projansky, who is accused of selling part of the stamps and splitting the proceeds with the investigator.

Ex-Policeman Found Guilty 2d Time in Shooting Case

Raymond Griffith, former policeman assigned to the Chicago avenue station, at a retrial of an assault charge before Judge Gibson E. Gorman in the South State street court Wednesday, was again found guilty and was placed on six months' probation, it was learned yesterday. At a previous trial he was convicted and sentenced to five days in the Bridewell, but won a new trial. He was accused of having wounded Desk Sergeant John O'Malley while shooting at Policeman Joseph Hoban during a quarrel in the Chicago avenue station on Oct. 5.

PREPARES TO FIGHT

SEEK U. S. FUNDS, NEW LAWS FOR WAR ON CRIME

School to Train Men Is Proposed.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The justice department, mobilizing for a war on crime, today undertook to formulate a draft upon congress for more money and new laws.

Backed by pledges of public support given at the crime conference, law enforcement officials checked personnel and equipment and estimated funds needed to expand and improve the division of investigation.

Into the study obtruded plans for a national school to train criminal trackers and to register gun purchasers and gangsters.

Officials arrived at no definite estimate of the money needed, but indicated that the division of investigation, under J. Edgar Hoover, probably would be the nucleus of the institute of criminology which some officials hope will become a "West Point" of crime war training.

Firearms Records Urged.

Joseph B. Keenan, assistant attorney general and a key man in the national offensive against law-breakers, proposed rigid control of small firearms by registering buyers at stores where the weapons are purchased. He predicted such legislation would be submitted to congress.

Keenan said this would reduce crime by at least one-third and would result "in the greatest roundup of gangsters in history."

Another proposal being considered would require known gangsters to register with police authorities when they move from one city to another.

An advisory committee will be named to help Attorney General Cummings plan the crime school. It was indicated today that probably no recommendations for a school would be made to the next congress, but that the division of investigation might be expanded and improved while those in charge determined the best means of conducting the school.

Modeled on West Point.

One official suggested a college, modeled after West Point, to which young men would be appointed by governors for a two-year course.

He proposed that police work be professionalized so that youths would make criminal work a career instead of a job.

Some expressed belief that the school should be financed by private funds and it was understood efforts had been made to get private support. The general opinion, however, was that congress would be asked to provide the money when a definite plan had been worked out.

SENATOR M'ADOO BETTER; RESTS IN ARMY HOSPITAL

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Senator William Gibbs McAdoo of California is suffering from "an irritation of the intestinal tract" and will remain under observation in Army hospital here several days, physicians said tonight.

The senator was stricken yesterday while on a flight from Manila to Iloilo in connection with a senatorial investigation of Philippines independence act terms and was flown back here for treatment today.

"Following treatment at the hospital his condition improved materially during the afternoon," said a statement issued by Sternberg General hospital. "At 10 p. m. [Friday] he was sleeping quietly. There was no manifestation such as to cause immediate alarm."

South Holland Dry Vote on Nov. 6 Held Invalid

South Holland, which voted in the Nov. 6 election to ban liquor sales, is not dry after all. County Judge Jarecki yesterday upheld the petition of Andy Gouens and four other voters who charged the election was invalid because it was not held with an election of village officials, as required by law.

FIND SKELETON OF GIRL AS MAN ADMITS MURDER

Police Speed Trial of Painter After 6 Years.

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Albert H. Fish, 65 year old house painter who confessed that he had kidnaped and slain Grace Budd in 1928, will be surrendered to Westchester county for trial on murder charges as soon as the evidence against him is completed, it was announced today.

Tracked down after six years of effort by Detective William King of the missing persons bureau, Fish confessed yesterday that he had taken the Budd girl to a house in a lonely section near Elmsford, in Westchester county, killed her, and left her dismembered body behind a stone wall on the grounds.

Search today along this wall by the police resulted in the finding of a skeleton of a child of 10 years.

Seek Help of Dentist.

The skull which apparently belongs to this skeleton had been found near the wall by the New York police Thursday night, when they visited the grounds with Fish as their guide, following his confession.

A dental chart, indicating that Grace Budd had undergone treatment at the old New York hospital, was found by the police. The dentist who did the work will be asked to inspect two gold fillings in the teeth of the skull.

It was expected that this would result in a positive identification of the skull as that of the Budd girl, in view of the closeness with which all other facts of Fish's confession have coincided with the physical circumstances of the case.

Trial in January.

Meanwhile, it became known, investigation of the prisoner's activities here will continue to discover whether he has been linked with any other cases involving the disappearance of children.

District Attorney Frank H. Coyne of Westchester county, who interviewed the prisoner at police headquarters, said the case might be presented to the grand jury which meets in White Plains on Tuesday, and that the trial probably would be held after Jan. 1.

Evidence in the hands of the Westchester police includes a cleaver and a saw, found near the skeleton, and about twenty pearl beads, believed to have formed part of a necklace worn by the child. The searchers also found several shoes, including possibly those worn by the girl.

INNOVATION AND RECOVERY.

How closely we follow tradition! When early mankind faced a tribal famine or plague the "head man" was called upon to do something. His response usually took the form of a burnt offering, accompanied by a cabalistic dance to appease the wrath of the unknown cause of the misfortune. As we became more civilized—and more skeptical—other panaceas were invented by the "head man's" successors—the rainmakers, socialists, syndicalists. Even in 1934 there exists a vague impression that economic recovery can be effected by that mythical thing called the state, and bureocracy assumes the rôle of the "head man" to dictate the gymnastics through which in some mysterious manner we will find wealth by curtailing production and progress through the destruction of initiative. After we finally stagger forward to regained prosperity we will find, if we look back, that invention and novelty have led the way, not because of burocratic leadership but in spite of political price fixing blunders and other political obstructions. Few of us, however, look back.

Because novelty is now fighting its way to public recognition we see signs of a better future. Notwithstanding the wreck of the fabric of American aviation by the totally uncalled for cancelation of mail contracts and blacklisting of some of the best brains of the industry by the postal department, Douglas, Sikorsky, Boeing, et al. have brought aviation over land and sea to a point where we can visualize a future development resembling the automotive progress of the last generation.

Despite archaic laws, which as administered by the interstate commerce commission have for years frowned on novelty and exiled genius, our railroads are learning that the public will patronize streamlined trains when fares are placed within its reach. Transportation innovations of every description are squeezing themselves between the fingers of the dead hand of government control. The enormous field of improved railway freight transportation, with its possibilities of contract carriage to weld together the interests of shipper, carrier, and consignee, is as yet untouched.

We are commencing to learn that there is such a thing as improved steel as well as steel and aluminum alloys; that strength and weight are not necessarily complementary. Such discoveries bring forcibly to our attention that it is not necessary in the movement of commerce to take along a weight of container greater than that of the article transported.

Perhaps no modern device has greater potentialities than the internal combustion engine. Through its further development we will eventually find that it will probably supplant central power stations—which appear to have passed their apex—in small manufacturing establishments and on farms. And in spite of the handwriting on the wall a misguided government proceeds with such developments as that of the Tennessee valley, the Fort Peck reservoir, and plans to harness the St. Lawrence river.

The depression caught radio engineering at a critical time in its history. Its untold latent commercial capacities have been eclipsed by its use as an entertainer. Even in the latter field there is room for improvement and a wider demand as the program makers become more experienced.

We can visualize the utilization of small, high pressure turbine engines in factories and larger office buildings as creating a demand for capital goods. Perhaps it is the automobile that has taught us the value of personal or business independence of public utilities with their government owned financial liabilities.

We feel that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has done its share in modernizing the newspaper through the introduction of color in both daily and Sunday issues, thus increasing employment, increasing circulation, another way of saying the same thing, and through increased advertising offering its improved services as the ambassador to the public of the novelties that will be produced with the consequent benign circle of increased business and increased employment. It is through the displacing of traditional methods, speeds and living generally that a happier condition will result; certainly not through the regimentation of our social structure by burocracy, price fixing, and political tinkering.

WAR DICTATORSHIP.

President Roosevelt has appointed a committee, with Bernard M. Baruch at its head and with Gen. Hugh Johnson second in command, to prepare a bill for a war industries act. Their commission is to draft a congressional grant of authority empowering the President in the event of war to take over the operation of industry with control of industrial profits, wages, prices and rents. Mr. Baruch was chairman of the world war industries board of which Gen. Johnson was a member.

Senator Nye finds himself aggrieved. He is chairman of a senate committee instructed to investigate the munitions business and recommend legislation controling it. He suspects the administration of going over his head to protect departments of government involved in his inquiry.

A bit of history will give a sidelight. In Harding's administration Senator Borah was discovered warming up on the subject of naval limitations and about to start carrying the ball unaided. The administration surmised that he really had something and decided to take it away from him. It was given to Mr. Hughes, then secretary of the state department, and the Washington naval conference was called. The United States arose to unexpected heights of altruism and gave up the superior part of its fleet. Mr. Balfour, as another Nelson, was made an earl and, from what is now happening in London, it appears that Japan was made an enemy.

The full consequences of taking the ball away from Mr. Borah will require still more time to develop. Just now it seems that it might be a bit of good fortune to have the treaty abrogated peaceably, but the administration of the time was thought at the time to have acquired much merit and to have shown a commendable spirit.

Mr. Nye is now in Mr. Borah's shoes, but he does not retire to the side lines with good grace. He is fretting over the loss of the ball. War dictatorship, such as is to be proposed in the administration bill, seems to affect many well disposed people pleasantly. They must admit that any war would bring the dictatorship instantly and automatically. Wages, prices, rents and profits throughout the country would be subject to executive order. Herr Hitler's totalitarian state would at once create itself. A government which wanted to bring about the change could do so by picking a quarrel say with Haiti. An attack by the goldfish would give absolute control to the American government discovering that it had been so attacked and desiring the control.

War profits arouse much popular resentment. In war or peace the munitions maker rates with the man eating shark, and when the better disposed people pitch into him the incidental consequences which may prove to be the main consequences get little consideration.

The title of the bill should be: "An act to establish absolutism in the United States."

CUBA LIBRE.

The Associated Press reports from Havana that men armed with machine guns and pistols raided the plant of Accion, a newspaper in opposition to the present government, and compelled several members of the editing and writing staf to accompany them to the outskirts of the city, where they were forcibly fed castor oil.

Probably the full ironic pungency of this incident can be savored only by those of our readers who lived through the days when Cuban patriots were fighting in ragged guerrilla bands against Weyler, the so-called Butcher, and the army of tyrannic Spain. Then Cuba Libre was a slogan thrilling American hearts, indignation filled to overflowing the ingenuous spirit of the American people, and our manifest destiny to bring liberty and progress to all the oppressed of mankind hung like a shining cloud over the battle. No doubt our intervention was precipitated by the mysterious blowing up of the Maine, but it would have come sooner or later without that decisive provocation, for our mood was one of confident altruism and ardent faith in the blessings of liberty.

So our soldiers presented them to the Cuban people on the point of the bayonet. American youths died by thousands in battle and fever camps and hospitals that Cuba Libre might join the glorious sisterhood of free nations. The idealist will still believe the price was not too high, but some at least of the glamor of that chivalric gesture has faded. The blessings of liberty seem to be less cherished by the American people today than in the naïve '90s, but even if that seeming is false, their consequences and their present enjoyment in Cuba Libre wear a strange appearance. The Cuban people may be enjoying them as the people of Haiti have enjoyed them since the expulsion of the French, but that development will not add much to the glory of international altruism.

POLITICS AND CRIME.

At the conference on crime the discussion on prison sentences and abuses of pardon and parole was especially illuminating in the emphasis placed upon the part played by political influence in the defeat of justice. This is a factor of the problem of crime control THE TRIBUNE has persistently stressed. The alliance of crime and corrupt politics is the strongest and most pervasive force for the defeat of good government, and useful as improvements in substantive law or procedure may be, the main attack must be upon this force. This fundamental fact has not been forced by those responsible for the administration of the law, and its public acknowledgment at the conference on crime control seems to be a step forward. If it creates and directs a new strategy in the campaign against crime, we shall make better progress. The alliance of crime and corrupt politics occupies the key position in the battle and it must be crushed before victory can be won.

Editorial of the Day

MORE FOREIGN WHEAT.

[Spokane Spokesman-Review.]

A New York financial and trade authority reports that foreign grain exporters are sounding out officials at Washington on the prospect of increased sales of low grade wheat in the United States for cattle feeding. "Current reports are that the French have 18,000,000 bushels they would like to sell at 60 cents a bushel here if the 10 per cent tarif applicable to wheat unfit for human consumption is granted."

Another reminder that we are in a topsy-turvy world, with the United States importing instead of exporting wheat and other grains, and Canada, France, Argentina and other countries eager to dump their surpluses into markets that ought to be protected for our own farmers.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

ANGELS OF THE DAWN.

No. 1. The Old Scissors Grinder.

The old scissors grinder man sat in the kitchen working busily on a butcher knife. By way of opening the conversation and feeling sure what his remarks would be I decided to beat him to it.

"Times are mighty hard, I'll bet," I said lightly.

"Nope," said the scissors grinder, to my great surprise. "I've had three pairs of scissors, two butcher knives, and a couple of old fashioned razors this very mornin'. And a lady gave me a cup of coffee and a pair of her husband's shoes. Lookit!" He stretched out his feet and revealed a pair of shoes about four sizes too big, but good, warm shoes at that.

"Then you think the depression is about over?" I observed.

"Yes, sir," said the old scissors grinder. "Why, people are beginning to use knives again. Not very long ago I couldn't get much to do, because people didn't need to have their kitchen knives sharpened. You see, they bought their meat in the shape of hamburger, all chopped up. You don't have to carve a hamburger and slice off the drumsticks and breast and things. And they didn't cut their bread; it comes nowadays already sliced. And they buy most of their stuff in cans and eat it with a spoon."

"All of which," I said, "must be detrimental to the knife sharpening industry."

"You sed it!" replied the old scissors grinder. "I went many a day without doin' a nickel's worth of work. Didn't even get a pocket knife to sharpen. People don't use 'em any more. If they want to sharpen a lead pencil they go over to the corner of the office where there's a little dingus on a table made to sharpen pencils in. This here machine age is mighty hard on business, I'm a-telling you. And I got a wife and three chilurn an' all of 'em in school. Since the depression started it's been mighty hard goin'.

"So the machine age has been hard on you?" I asked.

"You sed it!" replied the old scissors grinder, grimly. "Why, in the good old days before they invented these durned little scraping machines to shave with men used the good old fashioned razors and I had lots of business keepin' 'em in good shape. Some men had a razor for every day in the week, and they were as fussy about 'em as an old hen with her chickens. And then, of course, the women used the razors when their husbands were downtown to sharpen pencils with and cut their corns and to take out bustings when they were making dresses, and, of course, that didn't help the razors none. So I got lots of trade thataway. But today! Well, sir, when I first struck that ready sliced bread I felt like goin' right over to the lake and throwin' my whole sharpenin' outfit in an' a-sayin' 'there goes nothin'.'

"O' course, things are still pretty bad in my business yet, but they're lookin' up. People are gettin' out their old fashioned razors, because they hate to be buyin' blades all the time for the face scraping machines. People are eating more at home, and so they're usin' kitchen knives more, and the knives have to be sharpened. O' course, them inventors, darn 'em, are bringin' out all sorts of patent knife sharpeners, but they don't put the edge on knives like I can do. Here, just look at this big butcher knife o' yours I jest sharpened; you kin shave with it."

As the knife had a blade about a foot and a half long I said I would rather not shave with it; I might lop off an ear here and there.

"Anyhow," said the old scissors man as he put away his pack of tools and started off, "take it from me, things is looking up and that there depression is just about over."

And the Angel of the Dawn faded away and was gone.

FREE CHOICE.

Life is a shop counter where you can buy

You can garb it in scarlet, or swathe it in gray,
But do not complain if your clothes fit you ill;
For yours is the choice. You can buy what you will.

MARJORIE F. W.

AND NOW the national crime war is on and everybody is enrolled in the army just as I was getting ready to buy a toy popgun for my namesake, young Master Richard Henning Head of Honolulu. I'm afraid if I start home with that toy popgun three volunteers of the Anti-Crime army—say a hawk-eyed lady sweeper, a soda water clerk, and a member of the Every Friday Bridge and Dominoes club—would all spot me carrying that toy popgun and descend on me in a fierce assault, capture me, haul me to a police station and book me for carrying concealed weapons. And I'd be finger printed and go into the newspapers as Public Enemy No. 1. And they'd tell me to go back to Russia where I came from.

NO! NO! NO! Do not, I beg you, buy all the new Linebooks until I can get hold of one for Doc Congdon down at Nantucket. I must send the Doc a new 1934 Linebook. I've been shut in for a few days (gob a bab cold ib by heb) and I haven't been able to send a new Linebook to the Doc. And last summer Doc showed me all over Nantucket Island to view houses that were for rent. From Nantucket we went to 'Sconset, with its doorways embowered with roses, and then over the wide moorlands past Sankaty Light and up to Wauwinet and then clear across the island to Madaket and back again on the rutted roads that ever grew lovelier and lovelier. And Doc was such a good companion and talked so interestingly about everything we saw (he was born in Nantucket) that no matter what house he showed me or how pretty it was I would find something to kick about because I didn't want to end the trip and lose Doc. And what I am asking of you is please don't buy up all the Linebooks until I get a chance to get one for Doc Congdon down at Nantucket.

AND THE FRONT PAGE says that Mrs. Roosevelt has bought six neckties for the President's Christmas present. What's the use of being President then? You can't keep 'em from buying your neckties no matter who you are. It's some kind of law.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

HARMLESS HEART MURMURS.

Heart murmurs that do not mean heart disease may be detected in a considerable number of children. A clear recognition of this situation is important in order to avoid condemning to invalidism certain children who should be active participants in normal, healthful play. If a diagnosis of heart disease is made upon insufficient evidence parents are unnecessarily alarmed and their anxiety is certain to be reflected in the child's attitude and outlook.

It has been stated that nearly 10 per cent of all children have heart murmurs at some period before reaching the age of puberty. Fortunately only a small percentage of these murmurs indicate true heart disease.

Two sounds are made by the beating heart—"lub-dub"—called the first and second heart sounds. When the physician listens over the heart area both of these sounds are heard. They arise from the rather forcible closure of the heart valves, two valves closing with the first sound and two different valves closing with the second. No doubt the contraction of the heart muscle on the fluid contents of the heart chambers aids in the production of the sounds. When a valve does not close tightly the physician can hear the "blowing" sound made by the blood passing through the leaking valve.

It sometimes happens that in the course of a general illness heart murmurs are detected. They may not be due to disease of the heart itself, but may arise because of changes in the blood and the character of the contraction of the heart muscle. Careful physicians are usually able to distinguish between murmurs that arise from true heart disease and those that come from conditions that may be disregarded. Murmurs that are not attended with heart disease are called functional or benign, and usually disappear when the health returns to normal or, in children, with normal growth.

Functional murmurs may closely simulate those of true heart disease and frequently a history of the patient may afford the clew. There is usually no history of rheumatism, chorea, or repeated attacks of tonsilitis. If the size of the heart is normal, in other words, if there is no enlargement, and if there is no evidence of thickening of the muscle of the pumping chambers, then organic disease of the heart may generally be ruled out.

Physicians recognize that slight murmurs heard at the time of the first sound rarely indicate organic heart disease, but too often a bad prognosis is made and the patient and his family are frightened. It is conceded that these murmurs need to be studied, but more often than not they will be found to be functional and not organic.

Heart disease may exist without the slightest trace of a murmur and even with normal heart sounds, for example, in thyroid disease, in disease of the coronary vessels of the heart, and in angina pectoris. Sometimes murmurs heard over the heart area are not of heart origin at all, but are due to movements of air in the lungs occasioned by the contraction of the heart.

Common sense dictates that the best management of a functional heart murmur is to let it alone. As a precaution, however, foci of infection should be removed and if anemia is present means must be adopted to combat this condition. In other words, attention must be given to good hygiene. Most important of all, these persons must not be made mental invalids because of supposed organic disease. The heart requires no treatment, but the individual may require building up by the reestablishment of an appropriate routine of living.

DISEASED KIDNEY.

E. H. writes:

1. What can be done for a bladder that is ulcerated and shrunken due to a tubercular kidney?

2. Is an operation advisable if the person is young and has only one kidney?

3. Would frequent urination recur after a time?

REPLY.

1 and 2. No doubt the bladder has been infected from the kidney. Much can be accomplished in the hands of a competent urologist.

3. Yes, if the inflammation of the bladder is not relieved.

TINY POLITICAL SPEECHES.

C. L. C. writes: I have decided to write you my experience after reading your article on relaxation and repose. I have installed a small radio set at the side of my bed. After midnight there is nothing but jazz dance music and lovesick songs on the air. I have forced myself to become used to them and they drive all unpleasant memories from my mind. I relax and listen until I am dropping off to sleep, when I turn off the music, roll over, and go fast to sleep. I am 69 years old.

REPLY.

Political speeches will probably have the same effect, but beware of dramatized detective yarns or ghost stories.

NOISY STOMACH.

A reader writes: What is wrong with a person who almost all the time hears noises in the stomach?

REPLY.

Rumbling in the stomach and intestines is frequently due to swallowed air. But slowly and take little water with the food.

CHILD IS DEAF.

Mrs. E. F. writes: My 3½ year old son is deaf. I do not know when or how it occurred. The doctors tell me the reason he does not talk is because he cannot hear. Is there anything I can do for him?

REPLY.

There is probably a clinic in your vicinity where the child can be taught to speak. Helen Keller was not only deaf and dumb but blind. Through the faithful attention of a remarkable teacher, Anne Mansfield Sullivan, she has lived a most useful life. Her great progress in overcoming these handicaps has been a source of inspiration to others far less handicapped than she.

CASHIER'S CHECK.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—On May 24, 1932, I purchased a cashier's check on a bank which closed June 15, 1932. 1. The party to whom the check was sent states now that it was returned marked "Bank closed." 2. How long should a check be held before cashing? I also have the receipted bill dated May 31, 1932. Now payment is demanded a second time. Please give me your advice.

A. L. D.

1. We assume that you sent the check promptly enough so that the recipient had a fair opportunity to cash it.

2. The holder must stand such loss as is attributable to his own delay.

CORRESPONDENCE COURSES.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—About two years ago I enrolled in a school for civil service examination coaching. The school [1] promised to get me a job with the civil service and up to date nothing has come of it, owing to the fact that there has been no examination. What I would like to know is [2] could I get my money back? 3. I don't believe that the school had a right to accept my money at the time. E. S.

1. Our Legal Friend correspondence indicates widespread failure to carry out such promises.

2. Your rights depend largely on the wording of the written contract. Even if the contract is so worded as to give you a right to recover, you might be defeated by failure to find assets or by other facts.

3. Much of this business is close enough to the fraud line so that it might be worth your while to report your facts to the postoffice for investigation.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

INSURANCE BENEFICIARY.

Gary, Ind., Dec. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. The beneficiary of the insurance policy is made out to the wife—in case of death of both husband and wife, who would receive the payment since there is no will? 2. Is it to the husband or which one to make the will in this particular case? 3. What is the regular fee to make a will?

H. F. M.

1. If the proof indicated that the wife survived her husband the insurance would go to her heirs. If the proof indicated that the wife died first the insurance would go to his heirs.

2. In order to cover all contingencies, both should make wills.

3. Depends on the attorney you employ, on the complexity of the will, and on other facts not before us.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Farbay, Ph. D.

At one of our leading universities an experiment was recently conducted to determine what caused colds. Students volunteered to be subjected to rains and storms and other hazards. In the end it was found that getting wet had no direct relation to catching cold; that those who were most susceptible took colds whether they got wet or not, while those who seldom had colds did not get them, even though they got wet many times. Colds are caused by germs, not by the weather, and are usually caught from other people who have colds. The weather may make us more susceptible in some cases, but it does not cause the cold.

FAIR MADE FOUL.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—The English language is a precious heritage. Morality is a body of customs. May I enter a protest against a prevailing tendency to abuse the one and camouflage the other? We have seen the roadhouse styled an "inn"; the old saloon termed a "tavern." Now we behold the public enticer and common entertainer dubbed a "hostess"—an honorable word with a good meaning. O tempora! O mores! Why is it that we persist in applying fair words to foul things? Do we deceive ourselves into thinking that we are thereby making them respectable? Does our glossing over of what is vile make us think less harshly of evil? Or are we simply degenerating the English language?

Let us know what we are doing and saying. There have been beautiful words in the English language that have been ruined forever by misapplication. "Artful," "boor," "crafty," "knave," "lewd," "maudlin," "tawdry," "villain" are words which once had good meanings but which have deteriorated through misuse.

Let us remember that by applying fair words to foul things we are not changing the things, but we are changing the meaning of words. Words are like the garments that clothe the body; the garments change, but the body remains.

Immorality does some of its worst mischief when it gives honorable names to dishonorable things, when it attempts to make detestable things appear respectable. Christian morality does not ask any favors, but it does ask to be treated with honesty and sincerity.

Let us call things by their right names. Let us not play fast and loose with our precious heritage.

THE QUIET MINORITY.

Riverside, Ill., Dec. 12.—Thank you for the editorial, "Church and State." A quiet minority of the clergy—perhaps we ought to be more noisy—still holds to the position which you ably maintain. You might have added that if a clergyman clamors for the pardon of Tom Mooney, glorifies conscientious objectors, or demands that our present economic order be changed to another, then, forsooth, he is doing heaven's will. But if he happens to believe, as the writer does, that preparedness prevents war instead of provoking it, or that social injustice would be more flagrant under another economic order than it is under the present one—if, I say, a clergyman happens to believe and advocate these things, then, according to the self-styled "social minded" brethren, he is touched with infamy or lunacy! The situation is almost more ludicrous than it is serious.

HOUSEWIFE ORDERS HER COAL.

Wilmette, Ill., Dec. 12.—This fall when I ordered coal for my home I asked, as usual, "How much discount for cash," and was amazed at being told that the code does not allow any discount for cash in Wilmette but does in Chicago.

Now, I should like to know just where the constitution of these United States gives Franklin D. Roosevelt the right to virtually step into the home of a thrifty housewife and deny her a fair cash discount on a necessity of life, thus forcing her to help pay for coal charged and sent to deadbeats, or slow pay on the one hand and people in more comfortable circumstances on the other.

I went to the polls and voted the straight Republican ticket, something I had never done before. In the light of the returns next day this was not as futile as it seemed at first. I soon found there were 200 straight Republican ballots in my precinct, something which had never occurred before. Later I learned that 43 to 45 per cent of the popular vote was Republican and that Roosevelt's vote had fallen off 4 per cent. So, in this battle of thrift against waste and burocracy, thrift is really better entrenched than at first appears.

Instead of paying my bill immediately I waited thirty days. Why not? My bank deposit is insured and the dealer could offer no inducements.

Now, regardless of what I view as an insult to individual thrift and to true personal liberty, in my opinion, it is time for the American workman to wake up to the colossal stupidity of a policy which keeps money idle in the bank when it should be used over and over in the same length of time to help pay for jobs, profits, and general prosperity.

HOUSEWIFE.

THE BURNING OF THE GUNS.

Lake Bluff, Ill., Dec. 12.—I do not know all the circumstances connected with the story reported in this morning's TRIBUNE under the heading "Pupils Forget Burning Guns; Pelt Teacher." I strongly suspect an enterprising reporter used an incident to make what he thought was clever copy.

Be that as it may, it is most unfortunate that the article satirizes an attempt to counteract the influence of crime upon children who adopt its activities, weapons, language, and policies for their games and amusements. The parent-teacher association, which sponsored the movement, is to be commended for taking an active step, even if the results may have left something to be desired. The organization deserves the support of the press rather than its ridicule. The article in today's issue has fostered a derisive attitude in children toward all reform movements.

$100,000 PUBLIC CASH SOUGHT FOR SELF-HELP GROUP

elief Commission Is Told Venture Faces Failure.

A "self-help coöperative" organization which now faces failure after being privately operated for several months was recommended to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission yesterday as a project deserving $100,000 of government money. The organization is called Independent Products, Inc., and was started in September under leadership of the Rev. Frederick J. Schnell, pastor of the Broadway Methodist Episcopal church.

The corporation's present manufacturing facilities include a meat packing plant, a sausage factory, a dress-making establishment, and a household goods repair and exchange shop. Also included is a farmers' produce market at 3520 Elston avenue.

Report Its Credit Exhausted.

In a report given to relief commission members at their meeting yesterday by Maj. Arthur R. Lord, administrator of the commission's work division, it is proposed that federal funds be used to establish additional workshops for the manufacture and repair of furniture and for production of foods. The products would be distributed among the general public as well as members of the cooperative.

"This enterprise has exhausted its credit resources and unless aid is given, failure will be unavoidable," Maj. Lord stated in his report, which was approved by Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the commission.

"The result will be that most of the 85 persons now employed by the cooperative will be thrown immediately on the Cook county relief rolls," the report added.

It was recommended that the commission allow an emergency grant of $2,929 and forward to the Federal Emergency Relief administration an application for a grant of $97,500.

How Grant Would Be Used.

The grant would be used as follows: Twenty-five thousand dollars for additional facilities at North Aurora plant, now idle, for handling fresh meat; $7,580 for expansion of facilities at 4500 West Cermak road to make sausage and other meat products; $35,000 for setting up furniture and clothing workshops at 314 West 43d street; $15,000 for added equipment for model apron house at 160 North Wells street, and $15,000 for two more units of farmers' produce markets.

A saving in the result of keeping present employes off the relief rolls and of taking 20 persons from the rolls would amount to $124,800 in six months, it was said.

The commission was confronted by another controversial subject yesterday when leaders of the birth control movement appeared and demanded that the commission permit its case workers to direct "clients" to birth control clinics if the clients desire such information.

The commission took the matter under consideration.

GOOD FELLOWS TO RAISE FUNDS AT HOTEL PARTY

Children Will Bring Repaired Toys.

BY PHIL MAXWELL.

Proceeds from a Fairyland Christmas party and toy contest to be held next Saturday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock in the children's playroom of the Stevens hotel will go to the purchase of 12 baskets of food and toys for needy families, the names of which are to be obtained from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Good Fellow Department. Prizes valued at more than $150 will be given by Santa Claus to the boys and girls bringing in the best reconditioned toys.

Under the direction of Lily Ruth Hansen of the Stevens hotel staff, a program will be given by the Chicago Barnum School of Dramatic Art and Dancing and children from the Civic Music association. Tickets are 25 cents each and may be had by calling Wabash 4400.

Other Groups Plan Parties.

This is just one of many Christmas parties being given in Chicago for the purpose of assisting in the Good Fellow work. With only nine days left before Christmas may we suggest you plan your Christmas giving now? Call the Good Fellow department at 1 South Dearborn street and ask for the name of an unfortunate family. The phone number is Superior 0100.

Buy a good sized basket and fill it to the brim with food, candy, toys, and nuts, and either the day before Christmas or Christmas morning take it yourself to the Good Fellow family. You will reap the greatest joy you have ever experienced.

There are thousands of such unfortunate homes in Chicago. You can choose just the type of family you might wish. There are those who are asking for larger families, some with only girls in them, while a few insist on making happy an old couple at Christmas time.

Gift in Memory of Son.

One of the tenderest letters received by the Good Fellow department this year tells of the death in the family of a little boy and the father's wish to take a basket to a poor family in memory of their son. A portion of it said: "Buddy has been gone two years now. He was the handsomest little kid that ever lived, we thought. Although he was only 6 years old when he left us, he knew what it was to be unselfish and at his last Christmas he wanted to share some of his toys with a little neighbor boy who had had a meager Christmas. Won't you send me the name of a family with three or four children?"

A five minute talk on the Good Fellow work will be given by the Good Fellow editor this afternoon during the Midday Service period at 12:30 o'clock over W-G-N.

POLICE CAPTAIN SENTENCED—TO GOLDEN WEDDING!

Police Captain Gregory Moran, who is assigned to the Automobile court, was surprised yesterday when he was called before the bench.

"You are charged with living with the same woman for twenty-five years," Judge Joseph A. Graber told the captain. "It is also charged that you are planning to celebrate tomorrow night your silver anniversary. Guilty or not guilty?"

Told that the plea was guilty, the judge said: "I sentence you to twenty-five years more with the same woman; to your golden wedding at least."

"That's enough," Capt. Gregory said, blushed, and resumed: "That's a nice sentence, considering what a fine woman my wife is."

CHRISTMAS BOOKS IN REVIEW

Miss Strobel Pays Homage to New Poets

Reviews Recent Works of Established Writers.

BY MARION STROBEL.
[Author of "Once in a Blue Moon," etc., and former associate editor of Poetry.]

A FIRST step is always exciting. There is the ever present hazard of falling flat. There is the miraculous possibility of not falling. And between the two there are all gradations of triumph and peril. A first book of poems, if it succeeds at all, has, I think, this breathless quality in an excruciatingly concentrated form. The reader is given a delicious sensation of insecurity. In gratitude for this, and for the daring that causes it, I want to hail ten new poets before giving homage to the old.

W. H. Auden, the young English poet, has dipped his brilliant pen in vitriol and the result is intensely stimulating and frequently puzzling. A prose section of his "Poems" [Random House], called "Letter to a Wound," is a bitterness that will strike terror into the most apathetic heart. "Address to a Prize-Day" is funnier than any prize day ever was. Some of the poems are not clear, but others are as pointed as pins. It is impossible to predict the heights to which Mr. Auden's virtuosity may ascend.

Stephen Spender, because he is also English, and also went to Oxford, and because his first volume of "Poems" [Random House], appeared almost simultaneously with that of Auden, has been frequently associated with him. Their work is entirely dissimilar. Spender is a lyric poet. He is very uneven. At his best he has, what MacLeish calls "nobility of emotion." He has sincerity and energy. His poems are deeply felt and the direct technique is, at times, very moving. Mr. Auden's words sting the reader in innumerable unexpected places, Mr. Spender's are aimed at the heart.

Elder Olson, an American and a Chicagoan, has as sensitive an ear as any lyric poet writing today. There are echoes of George Dillon in some of his poems, but others have a twilight nostalgic quality, and sensuous rhythms, that are entirely individual. The lovely title, "Thing of Sorrow" [Macmillan], aptly describes the content.

In "Threshold and Hearth" [Macmillan] Marya Zaturenska shows delicacy and sincerity. Her metaphors, always pleasing to the ear, sometimes, however, offend the mind.

"The Trumpeting Crane" is a narrative poem by a new poet, Helene Margaret [Farrar & Rinehart]. It is dramatic and Miss Margaret's versatile technique is as clear and bright as the corn in her story.

Though Henry Chapin has written a juvenile, his "Leifsaga" [Farrar & Rinehart] is his first published poem of any length. It is a lusty, straightforward tale of the Norse discoveries of America.

In "Man with a Bull-Tongue Plow" [Sutton], Jesse Stuart, a Kentucky farmer, has collected over seven hundred more or less orthodox sonnets. This prolific output is sincere, pleasant, clear, and facile.

Ernest Walsh, who despite tuberculosis founded and edited "This Quarter" comes vividly back as an individual in his posthumous "Poems and Sonnets" [Harcourt Brace].

Vera Brittain, the author of the widely read novel "Testament of Youth," has collected her "Poems of the War and After" [Macmillan]. They are very slight and very sincere.

A refreshing New England wind blows through Kimball Flaccus's "Avalanche of April" [Scribners]. Occasional narcistic sentimentality is mitigated by sincerity and zest.

Several distinguished and well-known poets have new books. "Wine from These Grapes" [Harpers] is Edna St. Vincent Millay's latest collection. The content is varied, and certain of the sonnets in the sequence "Epitaph for the Race of Man" are Miss Millay at her very best.

Ezra Pound has "Eleven New Cantos" [Farrar & Rinehart]. Pound is more revered by his fellow writers than any poet today. Hemingway, Joyce, Walpole, Allen Tate, all offer their homage. Mr. Pound is not, however, easy reading.

T. S. Eliot's pageant play "The Rock" [Harcourt Brace], is as alive as Shan-Kar's shoulders.

Edwin Arlington Robinson, thrice winner of the Pulitzer prize, has written a new long symbolic poem called "Amaranth" [Macmillan]. When the cat "Ampersand" begins to speak I reach quickly for any one of Mr. Robinson's early lyrics.

It is consoling to find Genevieve Taggard still lustily singing. There is fine clangor in "Not Mine to Finish" [Harcourt Brace], and there is sincerity, but no subtlety of word sound.

A. E.'s new collection "The House of the Titans" [Macmillan], is tranquil and assured. The music, hauntingly Celtic.

Thomas Moult arrives with "The Best Poems of 1934" [Harcourt Brace].

Short Stories Prove Among Best Sellers

Twenty-two Volumes Delight Readers.

DESPITE the reiteration that books of short stories do not sell, one of the best sellers for weeks last spring was a volume of short stories, "Seven Gothic Tales," and twenty-three other volumes of popular tales have been published this fall to the delight of readers of that fascinating literary form.

When the Nobel award for literature for 1934 was given to Luigi Pirandello American readers had just had available "The Naked Truth" [Dutton], a collection of twelve of the famous "Novella per un Anno," into which Sig. Pirandello has put his best art. These stories are factual rather than mystical, and, except for one or two which might have been written by anybody, of the first water.

With a rich foreign flavor of another stimulating tartness are "The Salzburg Tales," by Christina Stead, a grouping after the fashion of the Canterbury Tales with the Salzburg festival as focal point and actions and emotions brilliantly roaming the universe. Henry Handel Richardson's "The End of a Childhood" tells much about the childhood of Cuffy Mahoney and of the heroic attempts of Richard Mahoney's wife in the years after "Ultima Thule" ended. It contains twelve other stories told with the author's customary skill.

Phyllis Bottome, another English woman who is best known as a novelist, offers us twenty impressive tales of "Innocence and Experience" [Houghton-Mifflin]. Also from England comes "General Buntop's Miracle and Other Stories" [Harcourt Brace], in which Martin Armstrong's varied genius is evident, from hilarious to solemn. And H. E. Bates, one of the English writers who go in for "art" in his tales, gives us "The Woman Who Had Imagination" [Macmillan] and thirteen other tales more memorable for their "atmosphere" than for their plot.

Some one unearthed some more of Donn Byrne's tales, and they are published (not to the glorification of a beloved name) in "An Alley of Flashing Spears" [Appleton-Century].

Of the volumes of American short stories this season the most spectacular was that from the pen of William Saroyan, and the most spectacular story in the book the title one, "The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze" [Random House], a tale of the last day on earth of a young writer who starved to death. The twenty-five other sketches are, for the most part, more like brilliant jottings in a journal—a little too self-conscious and autobiographical to be conventionally short stories.

Langston Hughes, a young Negro with a brilliant mind and a brilliant pen, tells more in the fourteen stories grouped under the title "The Ways of White Folks" [Knopf] than countless books of sociology. Roark Bradford, who has interpreted the Negroes of the deep south as few have done (his "Old Man Adam and His Chillun" was the source book of "Green Pastures," you remember), looks more deeply into their hearts in the stories in "Let the Band Play Dixie" [Harper's]. The book contains that memorable "Child of God" which won the O. Henry Memorial Prize.

Whit Burnett, one of the editors of the first magazine devoted exclusively to the short fictional form "story," gave us nineteen modern tales in "The Maker of Signs."

Sinister and tales of horror are the two novelettes and the two short stories in Gertrude Atherton's "The Foghorn and Other Stories" [Hough ton-Mifflin]. And Irvin S. Cobb's "Faith, Hope and Charity" [Bobbs-Merrill] deals entirely with crime and punishment, most of the crime murder. There is also a good deal that is grim, as well as thrilling, in "K-7, Spies at War" [Appleton-Century] as told to Burke Boyce by George F. Zimmer, head of the photographic division of the United States naval intelligence during the world war.

James T. Farrell, author of the realistic fictional life of Studs Lonigan, south side Chicago tough, uses the same kind of people and the same kind of actions and the same kind of talk in most of the sixteen stories in "Calico Shoes and Other Stories" [Vanguard]. They shock some readers and send others into transports of excitement over the author's realism. His genius lies, it seems to me, rather in the novel than in the short story, where his undeniable power is liable to be vitiated into the crude. Damon Runyon in "Blue Plate Special" [Stokes] is just a good story teller in Broadwayese. The tales have something akin to the more violent Mr. Farrell's in that they both essence a district and its types.

If you care little about Chicago's south side and less about Broadway, but leap with joy at the mention of a duck blind, there is "De Shootinest Gent'man," by Nash Buckingham [Derrydale Press], the only collection this year of sporting tales. Or if you just want a good clean laugh, you'll find it in Ellis Parker Butler's "Hunting the Wow" [McBride].

Five anthologies await the enthusiasts, Edward J. O'Brien's annual "The Best Short Stories, 1934," and "The Best British Short Stories, 1934" [Houghton-Mifflin], both of which show a high level of American and British tale without, I think, any detonations of genius. "The O. Henry Memorial Award Prize Stories" [Doubleday-Doran], edited by Harry Hansen, give the year's first prize to Louis Paul for "No More Trouble for Jedwick," which, I must confess, did not bounce me out of my chair for its genius; the second prize to Caroline Gorden for "Old Red," and the third to William Saroyan for "The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze," "Story in America, 1933-1934," edited by Whit Burnett and Martha Foley, reprints the most interesting of the stories in that intriguing magazine. And "Editor's Choice," by Alfred Dashiell, managing editor of Scribner's Magazine, interestingly states one editor's likes and illustrates them with sixteen fine, modern tales. F. B.

IN YEARS GONE BY

Twenty years ago this week the readers of the book page of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE were hearing for the first time about Sir J. M. Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton," James Stephens' "The Demi-Gods," Amy Lowell's revolutionary poetry, "Sword Blades and Poppy Seeds," John Galsworthy's "Memories," a lovely book about a loved dog, and Mme. L. de Hegermann-Lindercrone's still cherished "The Sunny Side of Diplomatic Life."

And ten years ago everybody was talking about [and buying] the best sellers:

FICTION.

"The White Monkey," by John Galsworthy.
"The Little French Girl," by Anne Douglas Sedgwick.
"The Green Hat," by Michael Arlen.
"Arnold Waterlow," by May Sinclair.
"The Old Ladies," by Hugh Walpole.
"Some Do Not," by Ford Madox Ford.

NONFICTION.

"Mark Twain's Autobiography."
"Woodrow Wilson," by William Allen White.
"Recollections of a Happy Life," by Maurice Francis Egan.

Swank Editions Get a Place on Christmas Lists

Picture Books Included in New Offerings.

OF books especially for Christmas—that is, picture books and books in especially fancy editions that are beautiful [though by no means dumb]—this season offers some manna. One of our favorites is the four volume "Marcel Proust" [Random House], which has both I. Q. and S. A. Another is "The Canterbury Tales of Geoffrey Chaucer," translated by J. U. Nicolson and illustrated by Rockwell Kent [Covici-Friede], a popular edition of the exquisite limited edition of a couple of years ago. And still another is a popular edition of the formerly platinum plated edition of Shakespeare's "Venus and Adonis," illustrated by Rockwell Kent [Leo Hart].

And speaking of Shakespeare, the Oxford University Press offered us last month the best one volume complete Shakespeare that we have ever met at the price, with the concentration on clear type and compactness rather than decoration.

Christopher Marlowe's "Hero and Leander" [Covici-Friede] has new illustrations by Richard Jones. Mary Shelley's "Frankenstein" [Smith-Haas] takes on added terror in Lynd Ward's powerful wood engravings. Willy Pogany did a series of interpretive etchings for the new edition of "The Song Celestial or Bhagavad-Gita," translated by Sir Edwin Arnold.

Two volumes of the new and delightfully illustrated "Vox Edition of the Works of Jane Austen," illustrated by Maximilian Vox [Dutton], gave us "Persuasion" and "Sense and Sensibility."

Boris Artzybasheff made amusing wood engravings to illustrate the new edition of Robert Nathan's "Jonah" [Knopf], which some of that brilliant young novelist's admirers think is his best book. And without illustrations, but with a delightful type page, is reprinted one of John Galsworthy's most famous short stories, "The Apple Tree" [Scribners].

Four books about Christmas are with us. Two of them are tiny, charming things, Julia Peterkin's story of her own holidays in "A Plantation Christmas" [Houghton-Mifflin] and Roark Bradford's "How Come Christmas" [Harpers], an old Negro preacher's explanation of the miracle.

A compendium of much knowledge about the season and the story of the nativity is "The Story of Christmas" [Macmillan], by Canon R. J. Campbell of Chichester cathedral, England. A Christmas annual of literature and art called simply "Christmas," published by the Augsburg Publishing house of Minneapolis, has, as leading article, "Glory to God," by the Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, Episcopal bishop of Chicago. And the famous Gustave Dore illustrations of the Holy Bible are gathered in one popular volume, "The Bible in Pictures" [Wise].

Books of photographs have been very popular this year, with "Portraits," by Mau Ray [Random], the most beautiful, and "Metropolis" [Harpers], assembled by Agnes Rogers and commented on by her husband, Frederick Lewis Allen, author of "Only Yesterday," popularly in the lead. It is a pictorial record of life in an American city—New York. Two other books of photographs of New York, with running comment, were "This Is New York" [David Kemp], edited by Gilbert Seldes, and "Manhattan Now and Long Ago," by Lucy Sprague Mitchell and Clara Lambert. "America Fights the Depression" [Coward-McCann] is a photographic record of the CWA. And "People on Parade" [David Kemp], by Jerome Sorbe, is full of intimate snapshots of the who's whosers of the stage, literature, society, and the other hard-working professions.

Peggy Bacon did a series of grand caricatures and witty word portraits of the great in "Off with Their Heads" [McBride]. John Held Jr.'s wood cuts illustrating "Grandfather's Follies" [Macaulay] would make a robot roar. Cecil Aldin's sketch book of dogs, "Just Among Friends" [Scribners], merely makes indisputable his reputation as the best there is for sympathetic dog sketches.

"Early Manor and Plantation Houses of Maryland," by Henry Chandlee Forman [privately printed by him at Easton, Maryland], is one of those thorough volumes that delight, beyond words, those interested in the subject.

Albert Jay Nock's "A Journey Into Rabelais' France" [Morrow] is illuminating in context—the work of a distinguished editor of the works of Rabelais—and illuminated by pen and ink drawings by Ruth Robinson.

Music World Presented with 2 Biographies

THE season has not been a very lush one for books about music and musicians. There have been only two major biographies, one volume of memoirs, two volumes of essays about music and three volumes of information.

Sacheverell Sitwell of the famous family has to his hand the most fantastic of material in the life of Liszt [Houghton Mifflin] and he makes the most brilliant possible use of that material. "Mendelssohn," by Schima Kaufman [Crowell] is frankly hero worshipful, as is evidenced by its subtitle "A Second Elijah." But the author was meticulously minute in his searchings for material on the life of his hero, and he took to that search not only his hero worship but the knowledge of a brilliant violinist at home with Mendelssohn's music as well as with his memory.

Rachmaninoff's "Recollections" [Macmillan] were dictated by the famous pianist, composer and conductor to a close friend, Oska von Riesemann, and they add to the stature of a great man.

Another fine pianist, Arthur Schnabel, gave an address at the University of Manchester which so pleased the authorities that it was published by the college, which in turn so delighted two young publishers in New York that they got permission to reprint it in book form. It is a "statement, for the present day music listener, of the nature of music as a component of the 'higher life'," according to I. A. Hirschmann's introduction.

In "The Facts of Life in Popular Song" [Whittlesey House] Sigmund Spaeth writes so amusingly and entertainingly that his almost encyclopedic mind about music is only a pleasant fragrance, not an intrusive anaesthetic.

"Composers of Today" [H. H. Wilson], compiled and edited by David Ewen, is a companion volume to those volumes utterly indispensable to any one interested in writing, "Living Authors" and "Authors Today and Yesterday." It is a brief but comprehensive biographical and critical guide to modern composers.

Medicine Topic of Five Books for Lay Reader

THE American reading public may be a little more doctor conscious than usual this year, for five volumes of literary importance have been published this fall about doctors and their relation to human history. They are all written for the layman and are all intensely interesting.

"The Doctor in History" [Yale University Press] is a fascinating record by Howard W. Haggard, who wrote "Devils Drugs and Doctors," of the march of doctors in the grand pageant of history. As other historians see time marching to the tune of wars and political upheavals and man's inhumanity to man, Dr. Haggard sees it marching to the even more thrilling tune of man's humanity to man. The battles fought against plagues and poxes, the annexation of greater and greater territories to the empire of health makes a record thrilling to a degree.

One of the leaders in that exciting war, Dr. Bailey K. Ashford, who discovered and conquered hookworm in Porto Rico, wrote his autobiography this year and called it "A Soldier in Science" [Morrow] and made of it a rich human document.

Dr. Ashford is mentioned in a slightly more technical history of "American Medicine" [Norton], by Dr. Henry E. Sigerist, which humanizes the caduceus. And Dr. Edward Podolsky in "Medicine Marches On" [Harpers] tells thrilling factual tales of the recent developments in the science of healing disease and prolonging life.

"Benjamin Rush" [University of Pennsylvania Press], by Dr. Nathan G. Goodman, is the first full biography of one of the pioneers in American medicine whose name in Chicago adorns one of the great medical schools of the world. Dr. Rush was an ardent citizen of the young United States, as well as a physician. F. B.

CHRISTMAS BOOKS IN REVIEW

Year Produces Many Volumes About Authors

Subject Is an Interesting One for Readers.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

WRITERS, who by their very sensitiveness to humankind are a little off the norm, and, in exact proportion to their genius unlike ordinary humans, are in their own lives often much more intriguing heroes than any fictional creations. For that reason every year a great many biographies and literary autobiographies find their way into the hands of eager readers.

The most important of the autobiographies this fall was H. G. Wells' "An Experiment in Autobiography" [Macmillan] because it was an experiment. Mr. Wells tried to look at his mind as an entity and chart its growth instead of recording his actions. He reversed the order of autobiography . . . gave the reader the outline of a mental life and left him to fill in the action.

Another well known English novelist, John Cowper Powys, wrote his "Autobiography" [Simon & Schuster] in the conventional self-confessional form . . . that is, he sets down with sometimes startling frankness the physical manifestations of his life, but he also interprets them psychologically. "The Letters of Gamaliel Bradford, 1918-'31" [Houghton Mifflin], edited by Van Wyck Brooks, intensify the existing picture of the strangely self-contained New Englander who was the first person to "psychograph" historical characters.

"Letters from John Galsworthy," edited by Edward Garnett [Scribners], commemorate a friendship of thirty-two years.

Three volumes of reminiscences concerned chiefly with literary figures of the last forty years are Hamlin Garland's "Afternoon Neighbors" [Macmillan], a pleasant addition to his autobiographical records, and the memoirs of two publishers, by J. Henry Harper of the fine old house of Harper & Brothers, "I Remember," one of the leading American publishers, and "Author Hunting," by Grant Richards [Coward-McCann], one of the best known English publishers.

Of the biographies of authors the most interesting of the year—of many years, it seems to me—is Frank Swinnerton's "The Georgian Scene" [Farrar & Rinehart], which is only in the merest outline biographical, so far as vital statistics are concerned, but so critically interpretive of the work of the best modern English writers that it illumines the whole period.

In translation there came to us from the pen of Mariano Tomas an excellent biography of his fellow Spaniard, "The Life and Misadventures of Miguel de Cervantes" [Houghton Mifflin]. "Don Quixote" we all know, but its author has been veiled mystery to most of us. Another strange soul . . . though clearer to us through his more voluminous and varied work, "Dostoievsky" [Harcourt-Brace], is revalued and his life clarified by A. Yarmolinsky, chief of the Slavonic division of the New York public library, who has put in years of research into this valuable volume.

The lusty but elusive "Dan Chaucer" [Bobbs-Merrill] is made simple and comprehensible in Henry Dwight Sedgwick's "Introduction to the Poet, His Poetry and His Times." Another known, but really little known, author, "Sir Richard Steele" [Scribners], whose work in the Tatler and the Spectator we all had to read in school and who, with Addison, was the actual mirror of a whole period, is biographed for the first time in our day by Willard Connely, who does his work con amore and with scholarly charm.

And again with deep love is written "Poet in Exile" [Viking], Antonina Vallentin's life of the tragic Heinrich Heine, who suffered passionately not only because he was a poet [and by nature poets always suffer more than the rest of us], but because he was a Jew. His life story won brilliant praise abroad not only as beautiful interpretive biography but for its "timeliness" in the history of Germany's relations with her literary Jews.

"Distinguished Women Writers," by Virginia Moore [Sutton], contains sixteen literary portraits from Sappho to Elinor Wylie.

"C. P. Scott of the Manchester Guardian" [Harcourt] was one of the most interesting men in modern journalism and his life story, written by J. L. Hammond, is called by H. W. Nevinson "the very model of biography." Political as well as literary England of the immediate past fills its pages.

"Eugene O'Neill: A Critical Study," by Sophus Keith Winther [Random House], revalues a controversial dramatist's work.

Maude Howe Elliott has given us an intimate picture of one of America's most popular novelists of the other day in "My Cousin, F. Marion Crawford" [Macmillan].

One book that writers themselves simply must have is Henry James' "The Art of the Novel" [Scribners], because in it is made plain the sometimes baffling art of the first great modern American novelist. For the first time the prefaces which Henry James wrote for the definitive edition of his works [available only by subscription] have been gathered together for our illumination. And another book which clarifies some of the modern literary mysteries is Regis Michaud's "Modern Thought and Literature in France" [Funk & Wagnalls], which is a brief but penetrating analysis of the French literary scene since the turn of the century.

Caricature of Sinclair Lewis

Sinclair Lewis in one of the decapitations of Peggy Bacon in her book of caricatures, "Off with Their Heads." In her appended notes she says of the only American winner of the Nobel prize for literature: "Flesh like canned tomatoes with the seeds in it . . . lips gathered on a drawstring with puzzled purse like an old lady's reticule . . . nose of a grocer adding up a slip . . . looks overheated, corrugated, modest, and oafish.

Peter Fleming Scores Again in Travel Tale

Droll, deft, delightful Peter Fleming, whose "Brazilian Adventure" was one of the unusual books of last year, has published another equally satisfying account of his travels—"One's Company" [Scribner's], a suave, humorous, brilliantly written and always entertaining account of a journey through China as special correspondent of the London Times.

Fleming combines the whimsical exaggerations of Jerome and the dry drolleries of Jacobs with an unusually agile and extensive vocabulary, a quaint style and a marvelous flair for describing people and incidents—he seldom bothers about scenery or structures. The natural result is an absorbingly entertaining travel tale, well equipped with chuckles and grins.

The last stage of his round-the-world wanderings was across the United States. His comments on the depression in New York, where "the air was dark with investors jumping off skyscrapers," and his British viewpoint of Yankee magazine advertising, are hilariously funny.

In "Brazilian Adventure" Fleming maintained the pose that jungle exploration was just about as safe as Bond street strolling. He did a mild bit of travel tale debunking.

In "One's Company" he pokes a bit of fun at war and foreign correspondents in general and at himself in particular. He likes to pretend that his interviews with big Chinese generals and statesmen and his comments on politics and policies are just casual and not to be taken too seriously.

But in this jaunt across Siberia and through Manchukuo and China he uncovered much of political and military significance.

Admiral Wiley Writes of Life Spent in Navy

Two diverting fall odysseys of world travel, both published by Doubleday-Doran, take the reader for jolly journeys to far flung ports, one in the company of a jovial, salty old admiral of the United States navy and the other with a suave, self-contained, and sophisticated Gotham drama critic.

"An Admiral from Texas," by Henry A. Wiley, U. S. N., formerly admiral and commander in chief United States fleet, is the inspiring autobiography of a southern youngster who went through Annapolis and on into active naval service. Wiley tells his life story with gusto, humor, and skill. His long and lively career on blue water was a thrilling one. He took part in the Spanish war (in which only one naval officer was killed) and he participated in the world war. It's one of the most entertaining naval biographies of many seasons.

Brooks Atkinson's "The Cingalese Prince" covers the haphazard round the world peregrinations of the drama critic of the New York Times in a big British tramp steamer from which the book gets its name.

"There was no past or future to ruffle an endless present. There was no time save now, and no place save here" is the author's definition of the ideal way to see the world.

The book's jacket carries the comment that this is "a philosopher's day book of adventure in strange ports and seas"—a concise and correct description.

The Old Debate About Art Still Rages in Books

Modernism Controversy Fuel for Authors.

ONE of the favorite expressions of mankind is that morality, or the theater, or what have you, "isn't what it used to be." A wit's quick addition to that remark is "and it never was." And nowhere is that truer than in the field of art. No generation is satisfied with the "modern" of the generation following it. And no controversy is more endless than whether "modern" art is art at all.

Each year a few books are published carrying on the endless debate, and this year no less than preceding ones offers readers its quota of controversial volumes. There has just come from the presses "Expressionism in Art," by Sheldon Cheney [Liveright], in which the [to many] incomprehensible is made comprehensible in Mr. Cheney's characteristic "primer" style. Two excellent monographs were published this fall by the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago, "Plastic Redirections in 20th Century Painting," by James Johnson Sweeney, and "The Meaning of Unintelligibility in Modern Art," by Edward F. Rothschild. And "Art Now" [Harcourt-Brace], by Herbert Read, is a brief, sympathetic account of the subject.

Henry Rankin Poore's "Thinkig Straight on Modern Art" [Putnams] and Thomas Craven's "Modern Art" [Simon & Schuster] are, for the most part, bewailments that art isn't what it used to be, and John Hemming Fry makes modern art sound very sinister in "The Revolt Against Beauty" [Putnams]. John Dewey, philosopher, resolves a good many of the general questions in his general philosophical discussion of "Art as Experience," a fine statement of the pragmatic part that art plays in modern life.

Clive Bell, noted English art critic [and incidentally brother-in-law to Virginia Woolff], frankly discusses "Enjoying Pictures" [Harcourt], which he does very much in the National gallery in London and in the Vatican. He explains his honest likes and dislikes. C. J. Bullict selected from A Century of Progress exhibitions of 1933 and 1934 the outstanding masterpieces to be reproduced and commented upon in a de luxe "Art Masterpieces" [Sterling North].

C. H. Collins Baker sent from England—through the American publishing house of Hale Cushman & Flint—his almost cyclopedic volume on "British Painting," with 268 illustrations, which includes an illuminating chapter on "Primitive Painting," by M. R. James. And from the same source came R. H. Wilenski's "Masters of English Painting," an erudite exposition [with 202 illustrations] of the history of painting in England up to the controversial modern period.

"Art in America in Modern Times," edited by Holger Cahill and Alfred H. Barr Jr. [Reynal & Hitchcock], contains the findings of a survey initiated by the General Federation of Women's Clubs under the American Federation of Arts. It contains countless reproductions, some in color, and forms the basis of a radio program on art in America which, through its sponsors, makes possible the low selling price of the volume. "Famous Paintings and Their Stories," by Marie Schubert [Grosset & Dunlap], is a very brief record with only passable reproductions containing sketchy information.

A history of architecture through the ages is Charles Harris Whitaker's "Rameses to Rockefeller" [Random House], a stimulating book for the laity.

English Retain Their Interest in Modern Poetry

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—A noteworthy sidelight upon the interest aroused by modern poetry is contributed by Geoffrey Grigson, the editor of New Verse. New Verse is a small periodical which is published every two months, and the editor says that in the two years of its life this periodical has only once sold fewer than twelve hundred copies. He concludes therefore that there is a public for modern poetry.

Nevertheless modern poetry is regarded by English publishers of experience as a drug in the market, and English booksellers do not stock the work of several admired and much boosted young poets.

I think there is an explanation of this state of affairs. Many people will buy a sixpenny magazine who will not spend 5 shillings on a small book by one man. In the same way, they will buy such an excellent anthology as Alida Monro's "Recent Poetry" [Gerald Howe], which is in its fifth thousand, because they hope to find in it, and do find in it, a clear exhibition of multiplied talents. They will buy the Hogarth Press anthology, "New Signatures," for the same reason.

They used in older days to buy Edward Marsh's "Georgian Poetry." But they are not greatly interested in individual poets. This is in spite of the fact that when modern poetry is discussed the same three young men are always brought in, praised, dissected to the moment, and left to their fate. The young men are W. H. Auden, Stephen Spender, and Cecil Day Lewis. One sees their names everywhere in the articles on poetry of today, but little is said of them which stimulates general curiosity as to their gifts or their minds.

There is far too strong a suggestion that the young poets are taking in each other's washing. For this reason New Verse, which in effect is a monthly anthology, deservedly draws to itself such interest as there is in general poetic tendencies. It is a most interesting periodical and one which all who care for the slightly threadbare texture of modern English poetry ought not to miss, but it will continue to satisfy most of those who are not themselves writing, or writing propaganda, for the poetic fashion. It is published by the editor from 4a Keats Grove, London, N. W. 3.

Authors Close Their Story of Noted Mutiny

Describe Bounty Crew on Pitcairn Island.

BY AL CHASE.

"Pitcairn's Island," by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall. [Little Brown.] Published Nov. 9.

JAMES NORMAN HALL and Charles Nordhoff have rounded out their stunning story of one of the sea's most dramatic tragedies—the famous mutiny on the British ship Bounty—with "Pitcairn's Island" a romantic though sanguinary sequel to the revolt of Fletcher Christian and his fellow seamen against the brutality of Capt. William Bligh.

"Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Men Against the Sea," the first two volumes of the Hall-Nordhoff south sea trilogy, had historical facts aplenty around which it was necessary to weave only a slight bit of fiction to lighten and color the tragic sea happenings.

In "Pitcairn's Island," however, Hall and Nordhoff have one of the greatest unsolved marine mysteries to tell about and their spirited solution may or may not be the correct one—it's only their guess. The story, of course, is based on an actual event and with real people for characters.

Only one of the fifteen white and native men who landed on Pitcairn in 1789 was alive when the Yankee sealer Topaz made a landfall there in 1808. He told a horrifying story of murder, love, and lust, but later to other sea captains who visited the island he gave entirely different versions.

From these varying narrations by Alexander Smith—the survivor—Hall and Nordhoff have sifted out, softened and romanticized the sinister history of the self-marooned group of twenty-seven white and native men and women into a thrilling and poignant tale of idyllic life and tragic death.

Whether it is historically correct or not doesn't matter. It's a stirring story, told with skill, force and imagination. Although not exactly a shipwreck [they burned the Bounty after beaching her] the narrative has all the thrill and appeal one gets from a tale of life on an island, cut off, apparently, from the rest of the world forever.

We doubt if "Pitcairn's Island" will have quite the popular appeal that "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Men Against the Sea" had. Blood flows a bit too freely. One wonders at times whether there'll be any characters left to tell the tale. Tragedy piles on tragedy—all but two of the male mutineers meeting sudden and terrible death—varying from deft removal of the white men's heads by natives to a quick and tragic extinction in plunges over island cliffs.

Even the feminine islanders took a lively share in the bloodshedding. They wiped out several of the native male murderers and they took pot shots at one or two of the white men.

After one has read "Pitcairn's Island" [not before] we suggest "The Tale of a Shipwreck" [Houghton Mifflin] by James Norman Hall. It appeared as "From Med to Mum" in the Atlantic monthly. This is a beautifully illustrated little volume, only 164 pages, telling of Hall's voyage in a schooner to the mutineers' hiding place to get first hand information and color for "Pitcairn's Island."

He met the descendants of the Bounty men and their native wives, spent a few days there and then was shipwrecked on the way back to his home in Tahiti. By itself it doesn't mean a great deal to the casual reader except as an example of delightful writing. For the person who has just read "Pitcairn's Island," it makes a deeply interesting epilog to the Bounty trilogy.

The mystery of what actually happened on Pitcairn has been a source of inspiration to many a writer since the Bounty mutineers landed there. Louis Becke, one of the finest of the south sea writers, is the author of a fictionized solution to the island puzzle in his "The Mutineer, a Romance of Pitcairn Island." Unfortunately, this is out of print.

68% more daily city and suburban circulation than the second paper—260,000 more families, or the equivalent of a city of more than 1,000,000 people!

78% more daily circulation in the city and suburbs than the third paper!

The Chicago Tribune on weekdays now has the greatest lead in city and suburban circulation it has ever had over the second and third Chicago daily papers.

Following are the averages from the publisher's statements for the six months' period ended September 30, 1934:

DAILY CIRCULATION

	CITY AND SUBURBAN	TOTAL
Daily Tribune	644,455	801,771
Second Paper	383,906	422,958
Third Paper	362,805	396,506

The Tribune's present daily city and suburban circulation is close to its all-time high—a figure attained in 1929. The second daily newspaper has less today than at any time during the past nine years. The third paper has less today than at any time during the past ten years.

The present rates of the Tribune give the advertiser a tremendous bonus both in total and in city and suburban circulation as compared to the second or third paper. In fact, the Tribune has practically as much total circulation as the next two papers combined—at a rate substantially lower than their combined rates.

Miss Hughes Will Be Bride at Rites Today

Grandfather to Officiate at Barrington Ceremony.

BY JUDITH CASS.

BISHOP CHARLES EDWARD WOODCOCK of the Episcopal diocese of Kentucky has journeyed to Barrington from his home in Louisville to officiate this afternoon at the marriage of his granddaughter, Miss Charlotte Elton Hughes, to Lawrence Ford Bateman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd L. Bateman of Barrington. Mrs. Woodcock was prevented from accompanying her husband because of illness and neither will the bride's paternal grandmother, Mrs. William M. Burton, be at the ceremony for she is ill in Savannah, Ga.

The service is to be read at 4:30 o'clock at Windridge, the residence in Barrington of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lee Hughes. Miss Kean Hughes will be her sister's only attendant and F. Donald Bateman will serve his brother as best man. Paul Corbett, who is married to the former Barbara Bateman, and John F. P. Farrar will usher.

Following the ceremony there will be a reception and then a bridal supper, after which Mr. Bateman and his bride will leave for a wedding trip. They will return to Barrington in time to spend Christmas in their new home in the village.

Two Debutantes Bow at Teas.

Two more young women joined the ranks of adult society yesterday at two gay debutante parties. They are Miss Louise Parsons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Parsons, who bowed at a tea at the Fortnightly club, and Miss Mildred Starck, daughter of the Philip T. Starcks, who was presented at a tea at home, followed by a dinner-dance also in the Starck home on Wellington avenue.

Miss Parsons and her mother, each complimenting the other with their velvet gowns of different shades of blue, received between two large standards of yellow roses before the fireplace in the drawing room of the club. The debutante's dress was of French blue with gold cord at the neck and around the waist. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Parsons' dress was of darker blue.

Assisting at the various tea and coffee tables were the Misses Bonnie-Jean Clark, Dorothy Wegg, Margery Garvy, Frances Jeffery, Barbara Fortune, Mary Harrington, Betty Babson, Nancy Doering, and Margaret Talbot. They and the debutante and their escorts were all invited to the Starck dinner-dance.

Miss Starck, tall and blonde, received with her mother and father and grandmother, Mrs. Louis A. Ruehl, in the living room at 330 Wellington avenue. The bud wore a stunning gown of apricot satin made with a long sleeved matching jacket trimmed with summer ermine, which she slipped off later for the dance, and brown orchids. Her mother wore a purple blue bagheera dres swith silver trimming and Mrs. Ruehl was in black lace.

Assisting Miss Starck were Miss Jeffery, Miss Doering, Miss Garvy, Miss Charlotte Hubbart, Miss Barbara Lawrence, Miss Jane Darling, Miss Betty McKay, Miss Marjorie Robinson, Miss Ruth Rodormer, Miss Medora Pelouze, Miss Virginia Thatcher, and Miss Barbara Shaffer.

A Busy Week-End for Young People.

For the debutantes over the week-end there are a dinner dance that Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins and their son-in-law and daughter, the junior Charles S. Deweys, are giving tonight at the Casino for Miss Ethel Johnston; a luncheon Mr. and Mrs. G. Corson Ellis are giving for Miss Johnston and Miss Ursulla Cull of England tomorrow in Lake Forest; a luncheon Mr. and Mrs. John E. Baker are giving, also in Lake Forest, for Bonnie-Jean Clark; a supper and hocky party the John Paul Wellings will give tomorrow night for Miss Nancy Doering and Miss Frances Jeffery, and one the Philip L. Reeds will give for Miss May Stillwell.

The Ellises and the Bakers will take their guests bobsledding or to the Winter club to skate after luncheon. The Bakers have limited their invitations to debutantes and their beaux, while Mr. and Mrs. Ellis have included a few of Mrs. Ellis' sister's, Miss Laura Thorne's post-deb friends. Miss Cull is Miss Thorne's house guest.

For a much younger crowd there is a dance at the Deerpath inn which the junior George W. Blossoms and the

There was a hush at the interrupter's cheek; but Belloc, lifting his head, only smiled, and like lightning answered the affront. The fluty French voice, rather high pitched, but never otherwise than pure and fluent; the French 'r' that is nearly a 'w'; the arrogance which his former modest demeanor had concealed—all rose. He called out: 'It's all wight; I'm only talking to myself.'"

DR. NATHAN FLAXMAN bulletins that he has at last discovered the value of a college education. A temporary employé at the main postoffice was impressed by the numerous large parcels addressed to the students at Notre Dame in South Bend. He commented to his family several times that it certainly looked like a big Christmas for the boys there. He couldn't understand, though, why all the gifts were in the same type package—a small suitcase with a strap or two securing the contents. A friend who had gone to college asked him if the address was on a sliding panel, and if some of the suitcases were canvas and some of lether.

"Yes," said the postoffice employé, "how did you know?"

"I went to college. That's the students' laundry being sent back from home," he pointed out.

French Casino Gives Another Revue Success

Good Manners Mark Trend Toward Nudity.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

European music hall entertainment on a scale which approaches that of the Broadway revues entered its second phase at the French Casino yesterday with the first public performances of "Hello Paris, Vienna Hello," and also the American debut of Johann Strauss III., grandson of the first Danubian waltz king and nephew of the second. Thus the new era of super-cabaret, or theater-restaurant, festivities, started in Chicago six months ago by the immensely popular "Folies Bergères," continues its development.

This elaborate and handsome frolic follows the "Folies Bergères" pattern, but extends its cosmopolitanism. The first section of the program is flashily Parisian; the second is romantically Viennese. Johann the Third, alert, 69 year old exponent of a great tradition in light music, has a fine orchestra of 35 men at his command, and spangled with decorations that carry back to the Hapsburg dynasty, he leads it like a maestro in an operetta libretto.

The parading of slender girls in the Paris music hall manner—that is, almost in utter, artful nakedness—is more abundant than in the "Folies Bergères." But there is tact in the selection of these figures and in their revealing adornments. The trend toward nudity is marked by good manners; moreover, there isn't a base joke or a bawdy leer in the performance.

Gay dances, excellent ballet numbers, unusual variety specialties, pantomimic merriment and first rate music hall singing are to be found in the copious program of twenty numbers, many of which have stage settings of pictorial value. There are sixty-five performers in the troupe, and their costumes would serve for a "Ziegfeld Follies." The finale, representing a court ball in Vienna at the time of Johann Strauss I. and worked up into a festival of homage to Johann III. is an episode of enchanting grace.

There is more humor in this show than in its predecessor, and the high point of comedy is reached when a fantastic creature named Robins takes the stage to offer a unique specialty. Technically he is merely a quick change clown, but he carries this form of trickery into the realm of the incredible. He comes from the Ambassadeurs of Paris and is a choice specimen of genius in a variety act.

The other principals are: The Andrée Trio, the Pierrotys, the Wiere Brothers, Spadolini, France,; Aubert and Jacques Josselin, all from Paris; Karen Zoska, from Russia; and Polly Frank from Vienna. The leading ballerina is Helene Trutovsky.

I saw this show at a pre-view when it had not acquired its proper pace and balance, but I am confident that it will equal the record of the "Folies Bergères." Performances begin at 10 p. m. and midnight.

Eva Le Gallienne will take her repertory company on tour again this winter. She is booked for an engagement in Chicago beginning Feb. 4, and probably will offer her recent New York production of Rostand's "L'Aiglon," in an adaptation by Clemence Dane.

Orchestra Board Presents Peace Plan to Stokowski

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The Philadelphia orchestra's board of directors tonight opened wide a door for Leopold Stokowski to continue with the orchestra, following upon charges made earlier that "misguided" friends of the conductor were injecting political "gang methods" into the controversy. The board in a letter invited Stokowski to conduct as many concerts as he wished next season, to sign a contract for 1936-'37, and to help them with naming a new manager and reorganizing the directorate.

Art Institute Has Reception to Open Show

Winter Season Tea Attracts 3,500 Women.

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

From 3 o'clock until 5:30 yesterday afternoon there was a steady stream of women walking up the steps of the Art institute, through the door into the foyer, then to the left to Fullerton hall, which had been transformed into a checkroom for the reception, there to check coats and galoshes.

Then up the great staircase, having given the guard at the foot of it the invitation, without which one had to produce credentials to prove one's right to enter, to the galleries which last summer displayed A Century of Progress paintings and in which yesterday were opened with the first of a series of winter exhibitions.

As interesting as the exhibitions were the tea tables in five of the galleries vied with the paintings as attractions and shortly after the opening hour women were lined two and three deep around the tables, as eager to see the decorations as they were to be served tea or coffee. The very long, narrow table in gallery 25, which was presided over by representatives of the Antiquarian society of the Art institute and the Fortnightly, elicited many ejaculations of admiration and at least one of surprise.

"From a costume in a tomb?" queried a tea drinker when she overheard Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson telling me what the center piece was. "Surely you don't mean that," she went on in a horrified voice.

In her charming, quiet way Mrs. Patterson explained that the bronze phoenix, which symbolizes eternal life, was clasped to the breast of an ancient Chinese when he was buried. It is a rare piece, dating from the Chou dynasty, and is one of Mrs. Patterson's prized Chinese antiquities.

The two bronze and crystal girandoles that Mrs. Walter S. Brewster had used on the table belong to Mrs. Patterson, also, but the two urns that held Jerusalem cherry trees are Mrs. Brewster's. The table, which was laid at one end of the gallery with George Bellows' portrait of his mother hanging just above the center of the table, was covered with a heavy silk in a rich empire green, dotted in gold.

It was an unusual and very effective table, and Mrs. Brewster was complimented extravagantly on it. Pouring and serving at it during the afternoon were Mrs. Brewster, Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Phillips, president of the Fortnightly; Mrs. James Ward Thorne, Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill, Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. Phillip Miller, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Potter Palmer, and Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr.

Many of the 3,500 guests who wandered through the galleries thought the table in gallery 30, presided over by members of the Association of Arts and Industries, the Renaissance club, and the Chicago Drama league, the most effective and timely. It was a lovely thing, in spite of the fact that its designer, Mrs. Frank M. Pebbles, felt that it was spoiled because there had to be three pourers at it instead of two, as planned, because of the crowds. The cloth was of silver and in the center was a mirror placque on which stood an exquisite opaque glass madonna.

Surrounding the placque was a wreath of silver leaves with clusters of silver cherries at intervals and flickering white candles of varying heights. Mrs. Walter Strong, Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, Mrs. Marco Adrogna, Mrs. Mathias J. Seifert, Mrs. George J. Denvir, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. Charles Davis, Mrs. Harry Fuller, and Mrs. Pebbles took turns pouring at this table.

A mass of white poinsettia in the center of the table arranged by the Arts club in gallery 48, attracted much attention, for these flowers are only about two years old and still are fairly scarce. A mosaic lace cloth and the Arts club's handsome silver completed the decorations of this table, at which representatives of the Contemporary and Friday clubs, as well as of the Arts club, poured. The hostesses were Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mrs. John Nef, Miss Lucie Hartrath, Mrs. Charles S. Reed, Mrs. John S. Broeksmit, Mrs. Grant H. Laing, Mrs. Paul Welling, Mrs. William G. Hibbard, and Mrs. Edward L. Hasler.

The table in gallery 45, decorated by Mrs. Lewis H. Dodd of the Chicago Woman's club was characterized by great dignity. It was covered with white damask and in an old silver loving cup was a tall bouquet of Easter lilies and a few blue iris. Mrs. Dodd, Mrs. Ozora S. Davis, and Mrs. Marvin Farr of the Woman's club; Mrs. Victor H. Munnecke, Mrs. Frances A. Barothy and Mrs. Paul Schulze of the Municipal Art league; Mrs. Philip L. Seman, Mrs. Theodore Rosenak, and Mrs. Harry J. Lackritz of the Chicago Woman's Aid, and Mrs. Yvonne De Luc Pryor, Mrs. Clay Judson, and Miss Jean Crawford Adams of the Art Institute Alumni associatfon presided at this table.

Members of the Arché and the Musicians' club of Women had charge of the table in gallery 27. It was laid with a filet lace cloth and the center piece was pink roses and white single chrysanthemums. The women assisting were Mrs. William Rothmann, Mrs. Joseph A. Jerger, Mrs. William G. Sackerson, Mrs. H. B. Vanzwoll, Mrs. A. F. Callahan, and Mrs. Walter Mathesius.

About 300 of those who attended the Art institute reception went before or after that to the Albert Roullier Art galleries in the Fine Arts building to view an exhibition of original etchings by Redmond Stephens Wright, a former Chicagoan.

Mr. Wright and his charming young wife, the former Glee Louise Viles, who arrived recently to spend Christmas in Chicago with her father, Lawrence M. Viles, and Miss Alice Roullier received the guests. Sherry was served and the party was very gay, being a sort of homecoming one for these young people, who had lived in Paris since their marriage, until they moved to New York last summer.

The Assembly Breaks Tradition in Decorations for the Ballroom

Circus Balloons and Colored Banners Replace Stately Palms of Former Days.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

TRADITION, mellowed and respected since the Victorian era, suffered a modern renaissance last night at the Assembly ball in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel.

Instead of the stately palms that for years have provided a dignified background for Chicago's professional, financial, and industrial leaders and their lovely ladies, circus balloons shaped into conical trees and red, white and blue banners wound in the balcony rails furnished the ballroom setting. The usual unadorned spectators' gallery was a gay, informal replica of a Parisian sidewalk café that invited guests to linger for more than an intermission.

Society's conservatives who translate an Assembly in terms of 16 button kid gloves, white ties, and a formal bow expressed not a little surprise, even a little dismay, at the departure from the elegant and sedate, while the younger, more liberal element found Christmas jollification in the setting designed by Ambrose C. Cramer.

Aside from the balloons, the banners, and the cafe, the party moved off in the manner accepted since the Assembly had its beginning in the Cinders balls of the late '70s. The wives of the governors [committee members in common parlance] covered their arms with long, snowy gloves and carried their bouquets of talisman roses and valley lilies as they received the 700 guests.

Gowns Newest and Loveliest.

Gowns were the newest and the loveliest. Without exception every gentleman was attired in full dress, and not a debutante was present, for Assembly "dictum" prescribes that no one younger than a post-deb shall attend the party and then not more than a dozen and a half first year post-debs. The usual scrambled egg sausage supper came at 2 o'clock and there was NO floor show for entertainment.

Also according to tradition it was approximately midnight by the time the receiving line had formed and the guests, pouring out of liveried motors, had begun to arrive. Parents and grandparents may criticize the giddy hours of the debutante generation, but when it comes to setting an example they provide little support for their pleading.

Heading the receiving line was Mrs. Arthur Meeker as the wife of the chairman of the board of governors that determines [by a set of rules yet unprinted] who is and who is not worthy of an invitation to the select sanctum of the Assembly. Mrs. Meeker's gown was strikingly designed of wine red taffeta, with a bouffant skirt, train, and off the shoulder neckline. Her jewels were a diamond necklace.

Taffeta and Moire Favorite Fabrics.

According to a hasty census, taffeta and moiré represented the height of fashion at the ball. On down the receiving line there were Mrs. John A. Stevenson in rose beige taffeta, Mrs. William H. Mitchell in brown moiré, Mrs. William R. Odell, stunning in black velvet fashioned with a train and the new slit skirt; Mrs. Howard F. Gillette, wearing black tulle combined with silver lamé, and Mrs. Morris Leidy Johnston in silver lamé and a handsome string of pearls.

Another member of the receiving line was Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, charming in pale blue crêpe beaded in sapphire blue. And still other governors' wives possessed of official duties were Mrs. William McCormick Blair, whose white satin gown matched that of Mrs. Stanley Field; Mrs. Lester Armour, wearing blacket velvet that had a silver lining; tall, stunning Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr. in silver lamé, and Mrs. Dexter Cummings in dull gold lamé, high in the front and extremely, décolleté in the back. Mrs. Blair was one of the few Assembly-goers who wore jewels in her hair. A band of pearls was especially becoming to her coiffure.

All of the governors and their ladies came on to the ball from dinner parties in private homes, at clubs, and at hotels. Mr. and Mrs. MacVeagh entertained six guests at dinner at their apartment, including Mr. and Mrs. John C. Mechem, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ayer, Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, and Leeds Mitchell. Mr. and Mrs. Cummings were host and hostess at the Casino to a party that included the George McLaughlins, Mr. and Mrs. W. Irving Osborne, the junior John B. Drakes, the Philip Pillsburys, the John Prossers, and the John Hamlines.

First Year Guests Dine at Casino.

There was no more excited dinner group at the Casino in the early evening than that to which Miss Louise Forgan was hostess, for as a first year post-deb she was entertaining most of the young women and beaux who were attending the assembly for the first time. Miss Leslie Keith, gowned in white moire and tulle and escorted by her fiancé, Robert Macdonald, was one of Miss Forgan's guests.

Others were Miss Beth Coleman, a picture in yellow moire with a cluster of lavender violets hugging the neckline of her dress; the beauteous, blonde Fleury Leonard in bouffant white moire, and Miss Allene Withers in black satin and gold lamé.

Appropriately enough Miss Barbara Bastien, escorted by her fiancé, Frank Armstrong, and Miss Peggy Hixon who was with Seymour Morris, chose to wear their debut gowns for their first Assembly ball. Still other first year post-debs dancing with the grown

The Forgotten Honeymoon

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Rhoda Cornboise's engagement to Maj. Ralph Stornack is arranged by her ambitious mother. Rhoda is in love with Colin Briarley, who is serving sentence unjustly for the murder of a Canadian solicitor in a London night club. Chief witness against Colin was Stornack, who was the solicitor's host. Jack Caermaen, an old pal of Colin's, is his warder. Caermaen takes Colin's place as prisoner, allowing Colin to use his week's vacation. Rhoda elopes with Colin on the eve of her marriage to Stornack. After a brief honeymoon Colin returns to prison. Rhoda returns home and feigns a lapse of memory. To admit her marriage would be fatal for Caermaen. Her mother besieges her to marry Stornack, who is still willing. He and his confederates know she has inherited the fortune of a Canadian relative. The solicitor had come to London to tell her of it. Caermaen has his solicitor, Jarroman, investigate Stornack. Rhoda is placed under her mother's charge by court order. Mrs. Cornboise takes Rhoda to France, where the son of Rhoda and Colin is born. The baby is left there when they return to London. Caermaen arranges to get Colin out of prison again for a few days. Rhoda flies with Colin to see their son. Mrs. Cornboise sees Colin and penetrates the mystery of his excursion from jail. She threatens to expose Caermaen if Rhoda doesn't marry Stornack. Colin again changes places with Caermaen and arrives in time to rescue Rhoda after she has married Stornack. Colin forces Stornack to make a written confession that he killed the solicitor, and obtains the papers from him which Rhoda had signed, transferring her fortune to him. Stornack admits the marriage was a fake. Colin allows him twelve hours to get away. Then he and Rhoda go after Stornack's confederates, Leningway and Galston and obtain confessions from them of their part in the crime. Colin returns to Mardlehurst prison, where a riot has broken out. After the trouble subsided some of the prisoners were transferred to another jail, among them Caermaen. Rhoda brings the confessions to Jarroman, who obtains Colin's pardon. The prisoners are transferred back to Mardlehurst. Colin is able to make the change with Caermaen just before he is called to receive his pardon.

INSTALLMENT XLVIII.

FREEDOM.

Two minutes later convict and escort stood before the governor. The governor gave one glance at the convict and snorted.

"Your number?"

"Eighty-seven, sir," came the clear answer.

"Name?"

"Colin Briarley, sir."

The governor turned to the assistant who was staring hard at the prisoner.

"I don't see anything wrong, Gibbon. I myself remember the prisoner's face quite well. Let me look at the photograph. . . . There you are!"

"Yes, sir. But it's not the man that was brought before me in the office. His voice is the same—and why didn't he answer my questions?"

"Why didn't you answer the officer's questions?" asked the governor.

"I thought I did answer, sir," said Colin Briarley. "I'm very sorry if I seemed insolent, but I couldn't understand." The officer kept glancing at a photograph and seemed to want me to say I was some one else. Perhaps I was a little confused, sir."

"Well?" asked the governor of the assistant.

"It's not the same man, sir."

"It's not the same photograph, I think, Gibbon. . . . Hm! This has happened before, you know. Because you will not make your men replace the dossiers the moment you've used them. I'll inspect your index this afternoon. See that it's all cleared up by the time I come 'round."

"Very good, sir!"

The governor turned to the convict and this time addressed him by name.

"Briarley, it is my very pleasant duty to inform you that in a very short time you will be granted a pardon. It appears that your statement at your trial that you were a victim of a conspiracy has been proved to be true. In some way, the man who did you this wrong seems to have fallen out—and the man Stornack, who gave evidence against you, was assassinated while he was escaping to France."

"Thank you, sir! I——" Colin came within an ace of saying that he was very glad to hear it.

"As a matter of fact, Briarley, that will affect you favorably. In the ordinary case, you would have had to wait until Stornack had been tried and convicted. As it is, your pardon will probably be granted in a day or two. In the meantime, you will be treated as though you were on the sick list. No duties. And sleep in the hospital."

"I greatly appreciate that, sir," said Colin deferentially.

"There's a bundle of letters for you. I've sent them to the hospital where they'll be waiting for you. You can answer them, of course. And I've had a personal telegram from your fiancée, asking if she would be allowed to see you. Would you like to see her?"

"No, thank you, sir!"

"Eh?"

"I wouldn't like her to see me inside a prison—it might haunt her imagination afterwards."

"I quite appreciate that," said the governor. "These cases are very tragic—they happen once in a generation. As it's a personal matter—what would you like me to reply to the lady? I cannot, of course, refuse her permission."

"If you would be good enough, sir, to say something like this: "Briarley requests you not to visit prison and asks me to assure you that all is correct!"

"Very well, Briarley!" The governor smiled, partly because he misinterpreted the message. Colin knew well that from the last words Rhoda would know that Jack Caermaen was safe.

The murder of Ralph Stornack was a crime committed on French soil and therefore the affair of the French government.

Neither Galston nor Leningway had been aware that he, too, had been on the steamer. It was Galston who spotted him on the dock-side and had told his companion, who had drawn his revolver and fired three times at close range. Leningway had stepped into a taxi and got clean away. Galston had fled in the opposite direction. But a foreign fugitive is at a terrible disadvantage through language and on the following night both had been arrested.

By our own standards it may have been questionable justice that they were both convicted of conspiring to murder and murdering—for Galston had had nothing to do with it beyond calling Leningway's attention to Stornack's presence. But as far as Galston was concerned it was at least poetic justice.

* * * * *

As soon as she received the governor's telegram Rhoda hurried to Mardlehurst where she put up at the hotel. She sent a note to Jack Caermaen and wondered why he did not come to see her, then guessed that he must be on night duty.

Before she went to bed the hotel filled to overflowing with press reporters and photographers from London and the other big centers—for it was now known that the pardon would take effect on the following day.

She wrote to Colin, teased him for not letting her come to the prison and told him that she would wait for him at the railroad station.

Next morning Rhoda left the hotel and arrived at the station half an hour too soon—then sat in the waiting room, staring at the hands of the clock. And she who had been ready to wait for twenty years, now found the delay almost unendurable.

She went out and bought two first class tickets, then back to the waiting room. The whole transaction had taken less than a minute.

She stood on the platform and at long last the train was signaled. Even then Colin did not come—did not come until the train was actually running in.

He gripped her by the arm, made as if to kiss her, then checked.

"We won't waste it. We'll probably get a carriage to ourselves."

But they did not, for just as the train was starting Jack Caermaen appeared on the platform. Rhoda waved and cried to him and the next moment he had swung into their compartment.

They were so pleased to see him that for the moment neither of them grasped the significance of his being in plain clothes. Colin gripped him by the hand. Rhoda announced her intention of kissing him and did so.

It was eventually Colin who said:

"I say, Jack, why aren't you on duty?"

Jack Caermaen lit a cigaret before answering and in his hesitation both Colin and Rhoda felt acute alarm.

"Well, you know, I'd been thinking it over and I came to the conclusion that, what with one thing and another, I don't reckon I'm cut out for the job of prison governor."

"Jack!" Rhoda had gone very white. "You——nothing went wrong? You haven't——told them yourself?"

"Good heavens, no!" He laughed. "I'm not a candidate for quod. No, I mean what I say. I suppose it's lack of character and all that, but—— I don't want to spend the rest of my working life in a prison. And so I resigned. And they very decently gave me extra leave so that I needn't actually do any more work at all as a warder."

"School Scandals" Tells What Teachers Did on Big Pay Day

Chicago school teachers were regaled last night at the Studebaker theater by the 1934 edition of "School Scandals," a musical burlesque on both the happy and troublesome sides of the educational profession. The revue, which will be repeated tonight for the benefit of needy teachers, has as its theme the reactions and experiences of Chicago teachers last August when they received seven months' back pay, totaling $22,000,000, in one lump. It is sponsored by the Chicago Teacher's federation.

A feature of the performance was the singing of Wilbert Leibling, 13 year old Chicago schoolboy soprano, who achieved quick fame after winning auditions at the World's Fair. Young Leibling, a pupil at the Lawson school.

BY MARY MEADE.

"We have plain farm milk in abundance—but no evaporated milk. What shall we do with your recipes when they call for the latter?" This query came to us recently from a farm home in Wisconsin. I believe it should find echoes of sympathy in other rural families which follow TRIBUNE recipes.

There are two answers. In the first place many recipes which specify evaporated milk include likewise an equivalent amount of water. Thus, if one cup of evaporated milk and one cup of water are called for, two cups of whole milk may be substituted for the combination. Evaporated milk, as we have mentioned in other columns, is simply whole sweet milk with approximately half of the water content removed. By returning this water we obtain whole milk once more.

But this does not always hold true. There are some recipes which use undiluted evaporated milk as an ingredient, but which call for no added liquid. The very concentration of the milk, its thickness and doubled flavor, are important points in these recipes. When you meet such formulas in THE TRIBUNE do not attempt to substitute bottled milk for the evaporated type. It just won't work. Instead, if a few cans of evaporated milk do not work into your budget go on to some other recipe better adapted to your supplies.

A short while ago we talked over the subject of lards, pointing out three of the most common types on the market adaptable for baking and home cookery. One variety we failed to mention which is too outstanding among lard products to overlook is the carefully developed hydrogenated lard which is now on the market and is felt by many cooks to be superior for a variety of uses to other sorts of shortening. It is completely odorless and flavorless, both before and after melting. It also boasts excellence of texture and creaming properties, good keeping quality, and a high smoking point.

Gives Analysis of Handwriting of Dr. Dafoe

GRAPHOLOGY COUPON
Your Handwriting Analyzed

Know your assets, handicaps, talents, and emotions. Obtain a personal graphology chart. Here are the rules:
1. Clip this coupon, attach a sample of handwriting, and mail to Muriel Stafford, box 1539, Chicago Tribune.
2. Enclose 10 cents (carefully wrapped) for each sample of handwriting you wish analyzed.
3. Enclose a self-addressed STAMPED envelope, folded once.

BY MURIEL STAFFORD.

It is often fascinating to study the handwriting of a man or woman who is in the news to see whether the writing conforms to our general opinion of the writer. Sometimes it does. Sometimes not.

Today's specimen is that of a professional man. He is modest, keen minded, ready for emergencies, with excellent judgment and fine powers of concentration. Executive ability is reflected as well.

Sincerely
A. R. Dafoe

And this, ladies and gentlemen, is the handwriting of Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe who brought the celebrated quintuplets into the world. His handwriting certainly shows that he was well equipped for the job.

You may be interested to know exactly how this handwriting reveals the characteristics I have mentioned. I shall take each quality and explain the way it is expressed in Dr. Dafoe's handwriting.

I mentioned first of all that this was obviously a professional handwriting. A professional man is inclined to write a small, well spaced, rapidly written hand.

Modesty, in the sense of unassuming, is shown in the very low capitals which are hardly taller than the small letters in this writing.

A keen mind is shown in the swiftness of the writing and the rather sharply topped letter "n."

Notice the small letter "y." The lower part is a straight downward stroke, very brief and with no loop or flourish whatever. Such a y or g repeated throughout an intelligent handwriting like this one denotes unusually direct thinking and fine powers of concentration.

Smart Luggage Ideal Gift for Fun Followers

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There is exciting new luggage around the shops ready for the lucky sun followers as well as the star specials on a Christmas gift list. Small week-end cases come in red, spinach green, swanky pigskins, dark blues and grand dark brown shades. Even the smallest sizes hold enough bottles, toilet requisites and gadgets with enough space to pack an extra thin silk frock as well as travel pajamas and robe.

The larger sizes are complete knockouts with every imaginable enamel and metal fitting, from pastel enamels to gleaming silver and gold, with smart chromium and color enamel combines going out almost faster than they can be counted.

Some dark green alligator cases are slick buys for the red heads on your list or the same things in ginger brown alligator. There are also some leaf green shades in smooth lethers with pale gray protective covers that will make any gadabout leave home at once.

Zippers are used with good results on the individual cases that hold the toilet articles. The toilet articles used to fit in a double tray formation that was clamped together, but the new models zip together, and they can be packed or carried separately from the larger case.

The smartest feminine luggage has been copied from the patterns in travel tweeds—a sort of a blurred diagonal and herringbone pattern in iron gray and dark beige. This baggage comes in all sizes of suit cases, hat boxes, small travel trunks, and small week-end cases. Black bands accent the gray models and dark brown the beige. Its about the swankiest stuff in town.

Good brief cases for the males on your list have changed. They still are plentiful in the old be-strapped affairs, but the slimmer, new creations are fitted with zippers, and some with big square-ish handles. They still have capacity but the folds and compartments have been cleverly flattened so that a 1934 brief case is the most compact and efficient of all the models.

For information on any article described in this column call Rhea Seeger, Superior 0100.

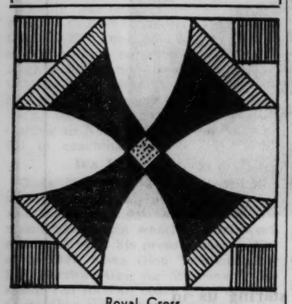
Colorful Quilt Conveys Theme of Regal Splendor



Royal Cross.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The original "Royal Cross" was pieced in royal colors—purple, gold, and white. Modern usage has permitted the quilt maker to create the "Royal Cross" with equal success and beauty in many soft, delicate colors. The quilt, reminiscent in theme of the regal splendor of the Dutch court, was pieced by a Dutch immigrant in Pennsylvania in 1869.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

The Assembly Sets Precedent in Decorations

up Assembly goers for the first time were Miss Josephine Templeton, whose huge white orchids were the focus of many eyes; blonde, piquant Virginia Ashcraft, Miss Lucy Harrison in cloth of silver set off by purple orchids, and Miss Jean Wilhelm in sapphire blue satin distinguished by a corded ruching at the hemline.

Eleanor Wheeler Hostess at Dinner.

Some of the post-debs and beaux who are veterans of two or three Assembly seasons went on to last night's ball from a Casino dinner at which Miss Eleanor Wheeler was the hostess. In this group there were Cyrus H. Adams III., Daggett Harvey, Hulburd Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Smith, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey Jr., Margaret Chapman, and Miss Jane Brooks.

Arriving at the Blackstone with Mr. and Mrs. John T. McCutcheon—Mrs. McCutcheon lovely in turquoise blue crêpe and gardenias—were their two dozen dinner guests. Included were the Alfred Hamills, Mr. and Mrs. Rosecrans Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, the Arthur Cables, Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor Whitman of Boston, who returns east tomorrow; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Barnes, and the Lawrence Houghtelings.

U. of C. Groups Will Present Christmas Pageant Tomorrow

The choir of the University of Chicago, the dramatic association and department of art will present three liturgical plays reënacted from French cathedral usage of medieval times at the sixth annual Christmas pageant at the University of Chicago chapel tomorrow evening.

The plays, consisting chiefly of Gregorian music, to be sung by 75 student members of the choir, will be produced as nearly as possible in the manner of their original production in medieval France.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Who wouldn't look a gift horse in the mouth when he's a porcelain Greek bearing a perfect Christmas present—an exquisite bottle of a beautiful new perfume with a carnation base?

One of the symptoms of the gay abandon that characterizes the carnival of Christmas this year is the breakdown of the old tradition agin' looking a gift horse in the mouth. A Chicago shop actually offers you a gift horse—and practically begs you to count its teeth or inspect its tonsils.

Does it sound mad? Well, it isn't. The gift horse isn't just a figure of speech with them. He's a very dapper dobbin of creamy white porcelain with eyes and mane of greenish gilt. By himself he's a most decorative little piece for the odd corners in a room that cry for the perfect touch and in duplicate he's a swanky pair of bookends. But his real aim in life on Christmas morning will be as a Greek bearing gifts. Like a thoroughbred tearing down the stretch his mouth is open—and in it or suspended from it can be a Yuletide present! It's a new and nobby idea.

Above you see him bearing a beautiful bottle of a beautiful new perfume, making other gifts a girl might find under her tree look like one of last year's hats. Both he and his offering are smart and superior.

Actually the scent is a lighter version of a well loved one that's been a swank perfume figure for some time. We liked it in its essence form—although it was so concentrated it was easy to err by using too much of it. In this new version it seems to us to have greater delicacy and, therefore, greater charm. The base is carnation—the fragrance that is threatening to dominate all others in popularity.

The women we've quizzed about it were unanimous in their approval. While it's airily feminine it has a spiciness that is plenty devastating. And the bottle! Cellini, who wrought the sumptuous and the exquisite, is probably pacing the terrestrial floor because he didn't design it first!

As a final hosanna, let us tell you that neither gift horse nor perfume is expensive. ELEANOR NANGLE.

CONQUERING CONTRACT
By P. HAL SIMS

THE MEANING OF NO TRUMP BIDS AFTER A TWO BID.

Later bids in terms of no trumps when made by opening bidder have a significance entirely different from that conveyed by the responding hand. I think I should make this difference as clear as I can.

When Responding Hand Bids No Trumps.

If in reply to an opening two bid in a suit your partner bids three no trumps, that is, of course, a constructive bid, which we have already discussed sufficiently. My reference now is to minimum overcalls in no trumps by the responder. These are absolutely negative bids, simply saying, "I am bidding because I am forbidden to pass below the game level. I am unable to give you any positive information in connection with the various questions you are asking me. Decide your own game contract for yourself." For instance, you make a two bid on a five card suit and two four card suits, with not more than two or three losers, as the case may be. You bid two in the five card suit; the response is two no trumps. Next, you bid three in the higher ranking of your two four card suits. Again he replies negatively—three no trumps. Persisting, you now bid four in the other four card suit. Now the responder, with a blank hand lacking trump support for any of the three suits, must be careful not to compel you to bid for more than game. If your first suit was a minor, he must now bid four no trumps, permitting you to sign off at five in your minor suit, a bid which you were prepared to reach from the moment that you looked at your hand. If, however, your first suit was a major, then he must not bid four no trumps as a denial of your three suits, because that will almost surely compel you to go to five in your major suit—a trick too high, a trick higher than you were prepared to bid when you made your two bid in the major suit, a bid which allows as many as three losers in your hand. In this case, therefore, responder without trump support for any of your suits must at this point, even with only two trumps for you, take you back to your first suit, the major suit in which you were from the first ready to play the hand at game. After all this is a five card suit; if it is not solid, then there are correspondingly fewer losers in the other suits. Actually on this bidding the two bidder can be absolutely certain of finding at least two trumps in responder's hand, giving them seven trumps, against six held by the defense. The only trouble can come if these six adverse trumps are held 5-1. You can almost surely cope with a 4-2 adverse trump split. Here is the reasoning which gives you this assurance of two trumps in dummy.

Counting the Responder's Hand.

Let us say you have made your two bid with five spades, four hearts, and four clubs. The response to two spades is two no trumps. Now you bid three hearts, and the reply is three no trumps. Four clubs by you, four spades by your partner, pass by you. Dummy will contain at least two spades. Why? Because:

First. Your partner's hand does not contain any six card suit, or he should have bid it as his first response, regardless of its highest card.

Second. It contains not more than three hearts and not more than three clubs, otherwise with x x x x, he should have shown preference for one of these suits.

Third. He has at most five diamonds [too weak to be bid], three hearts, and three clubs; therefore, he cannot have less than two spades.

Think over this and similar situations which can arise after a two bid when a trump fit is not found, and you will see why I refuse to admit a four card suit as the permissible basis either for a two bid or for a response to it. I will say more on this point.

Holiday Should Not Ruin Child's Routine Entirely

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

If this is your first Christmas with that blessed thing—a baby in the house—you're probably going around with a song in your heart.

The baby's first Christmas is simple for you because, being small, he just has to follow his usual routine of sleep and food and bath—with perhaps just some extra adoration.

But when he can run around—when he gets old enough to know what it's all about and to sense the anticipation and excitement of Christmas time, you must guard him somewhat from too many thrills, adventures in festive feeding, and an upset routine generally.

If your near-baby or small son or daughter is an intense child, first, handle him on Christmas day so that he does not get too excited at gift giving time.

Next, look out for his eating.

Also, see that he has his nap on Christmas day—or at least a restful time in a quiet room alone.

Also, be sure to get him away from his plethora of toys and the family hullabaloo for his daily dose of fresh air. Tears and even a tantrum may sprout if you don't.

Good morning!

That ingratiating pair, Miss Myrna Loy and Mr. William Powell, are again successfully teamed together in this one. Which announcement should bring joy to movie fans at large.

Both are popular—and Miss Loy's rapid ascent as an actress is a stimulating progress to contemplate. In the title rôle of Evelyn Prentice she triumphantly mounts one more round skyward—as I know you'll agree, especially after you've sat through the trial scenes toward the end.

This film is a courtroom drama. It's in no way unusual, as to story, until the finale when it springs a surprise as IS a surprise, but it manages to score all the way through because of able direction and some perfectly magnificent acting on the part of the leads and Una Merkel, Isabel Jewell, and Harvey Stephens, who head the supporting cast.

Isabel Jewell will astonish you. As Judith Wilson she forsakes comedy for tragedy and turns out a performance that is electrically effective.

Evelyn is the wife of a busy and successful lawyer, John Prentice. Her husband's preoccupation with his cases irks the lady.

"Do you realize, John," she asks, "that we have nothing but thieves, embezzlers, and murderers for breakfast, luncheon, and dinner?"

John realizes it all right, but he doesn't see just what he's going to do about it. . . . Mrs. Prentice turns to a Greenwich village poet for what she considers mere harmless passing of time. . . . Through this acquaintance she becomes involved in a murder. . . . See picture for further details.

The picture is finely staged. The Misses Loy and Merkel wear some stunning clothes. Dialog is, in the main, convincing and to the point. It becomes a bit soppy in some of the scenes involving little Cora Sue Collins, who as Dorothy Prentice is somewhat too weepy and saccharine, I thought, for a little girl in good health.

See you tomorrow.

Soiled Powder Puff Mark of Slovenliness

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There's more powder used by women than any other cosmetic item. A woman may not have a jar of cold cream, but she will have powder. Personally, I'd rather see the cleansing cream the preferred item. However, there's no reason to disbelieve that many faces are kept thoroughly clean with soap and water use. If, over the clean face, the powder always is used, the more sales power to powder. But powdering over a soiled face is just something that is causing complexions no end of blemish.

Seated next to me at a recent matinée was a rather smart woman. During intermission, when the lights were on, this matinée neighbor opened her bag widely and from a cluttered mess produced the ace in dirty powder puffs of my observation. The murder theme on the stage was not half so shuddery as the thought of the woman putting that puff to her face. But she did, and with no attempt at concealment, either. Gosh, what nasty things one thinks of a person like that. One thinks her house must be dirty, her dining table an unappetizing invitation to eat, her own intimate belongings such as corset, undies, et cetera, must be pretty terrible.

Belt with initialed buckle to go with it—you've heard that suggested before but you haven't heard the last of it. At $3.95 set

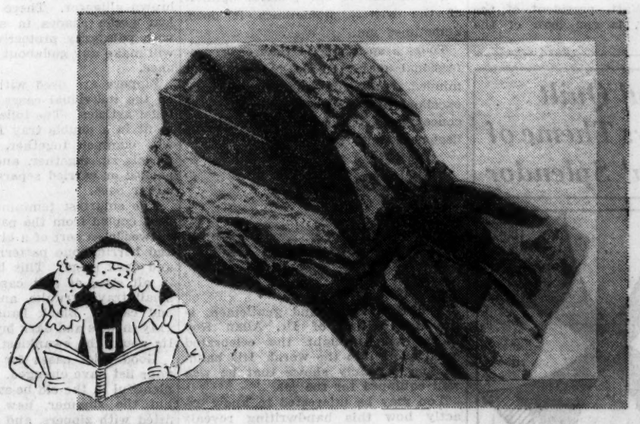
Silver plated military brush set— despite its "extra special gift" qualifications, it sets you back less than $5 even with the additional charge of 50c for monogramming, which we'll take care of and have ready in plenty of time for Christmas. Order monogram wanted by number. The bristles are of a fine, firm quality set in to stay as long as the backs last, which will be too many years from now to worry about. The top of the comb, as well as the brushes, is silver-plated.

At $2.50 pair

Pigskin leather gloves— overlooking the fact that you can't go wrong if you give gloves that come up to these in quality, fit and looks—there is also to be said for these gloves—they are, we have every reason to believe, the best value you'll run across this winter—there is the clasp wrist and slip-on style, and because the quantity is limited you'll do well to get an early start.



At $20

Silk crepe lined robe— with luxury staring us in the face, we can't get over feeling that this robe at $20 will go down as one of the great bargains of the year. Everything about it—from the heavy richly figured material of which it is tailored to the hand-knotted fringe of the silk crepe sash—speaks highly of its price. Turn back cuffs and roll collar are of the same silk crepe as the lining. In cinnamon, green, deep blue, maroon.

JOE LOUIS STOPS RAMAGE IN EIGHTH ROUND

FACULTY AWAITS RESIGNATION OF HANLEY AT N. U.

Opposition to Coach Grows.

Want Morrison

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Vanderbilt university has chosen Ray Morrison, football coach at Southern Methodist university, as coach at Vanderbilt, Eldon B. Stevenson of Nashville, Tenn., president of the southern university's alumni association, announced tonight. Stevenson said that Morrison, who has led Southern Methodist to football heights, had not accepted the Vanderbilt offer.

Morrison, if he accepts the offer, would succeed Dan McGugin, who resigned last month after thirty years.

Unless all signs fail, Dick Hanley will resign as Northwestern's football coach today. The resignation is expected because the fact became known yesterday that the university athletic committee had signified its intention of recommending that Hanley's contract should not be renewed. In view of this attitude, if correct, Hanley has the choice of resigning or facing expulsion when his contract ends in July, 1935.

The question of football coach may not primarily involve Hanley's coaching success, although Northwestern's teams have had only mediocre records since 1931, when the Wildcats last tied for the Western conference championship.

Alumni, Faculty Split Up.

Those opposed to Hanley's retention include not only the faculty committee, but a large section of his faculty associates, it is said. And while some alumni groups have intimated that Hanley might at some future time achieve further success, others, equally important, have become dissatisfied because of matters outside the field of coaching.

It would seem, according to these men, that a football coach not only is responsible for his team, but that his multitudinous contacts with alumni, townspeople, and faculty should produce coöperation. This is the unwritten charge brought by the faculty committee and alumni, it is said.

It also is reported that the faculty committee has refrained from recommending Hanley's discharge in order to give him time to resign. Failing in that, the report was spread that the recommendation would be forthcoming and in this fashion the issue was forced.

Hanley Sought Change.

In recent years it has been no secret that Hanley was open to employment at any major university. Since these opportunities were not forthcoming at Fordham, which hired Jim Crowley, or at University of California where Bill Ingram recently stepped out and Stub Allison, his assistant, was appointed, Hanley had no alternative except to remain for the duration of his contract.

A prominent football coach yesterday admitted he had advised Hanley to resign immediately rather than accept a one year contract which, it is possible, he might have secured.

The members of the faculty committee which controls recommendation of appointments are Prof. O. F. Long, chairman; Profs. Walter K. Smart, E. J. Moulton, William G. Smith, Arthur Kendall, Franklin Bliss Snyder, and William J. Farquharson.

He Puts Off Quitting.

In a second statement on the situation yesterday Hanley said he had contemplated resigning at the annual football banquet last Saturday but had refrained. He intimated many alumni had urged him to stay and that most of the present difficulties were due to his failure to play a successful hand as a politician.

Hanley also is reported to have been irked by the salary reductions he received during the depression. These reductions, however, applied to all members of the athletic department.

Gossip yesterday centered on the possible choices for football coach next fall. C. F. Vance, who has won three championships as coach at Evanston High school, has been mentioned. Others have asserted that the football job should be given to Dutch Lonborg, basketball coach, who before coming to Northwestern, was successful in coaching football.

It's Up to Hanley.

Ossie Solem, now head coach and athletic director at Iowa, is considered another possibility, although it remains to be seen whether Northwestern could meet his present salary. Not since 1927, when Glen Thistlethwaite left Northwestern for Wisconsin, has a Big Ten football coach gone directly to another conference institution. Dr. Clarence Spears, now at Wisconsin, coached two years at Oregon after leaving Minnesota.

Reports from Lincoln, Neb., yesterday said that Dana X. Bible, coach of the University of Nebraska, had been approached concerning acceptance of the Northwestern position. Bible, however, is reported to have replied to a telephone query concerning his availability that he was well satisfied with his present position.

Neither President Walter Dill Scott, who was reported as having conferred with Hanley Thursday, nor Prof. Long would be interviewed yesterday. Apparently the next move, in view of the fact that Hanley has not been offered a contract, is up to Hanley.

NORTHWESTERN QUINTET BEATS PITT, 42 TO 28

Wildcats Pile Up 31 to 9 Lead at Half.

Northwestern's basketball team scored its third straight victory of the season when it turned back Pittsburgh, 42 to 28, at Patten gumnasium last night.

A whirlwind first half in which they piled up a 31 to 9 lead enabled the Wildcats to stave off a determined Pitt rally in the final period, a rally which whittled Northwestern's lead to 11 points at one stage.

Check Pitt Offense.

The Wildcats, with a lineup composed of two seniors and a trio of sophomores, controled the play throughout the opening period. Lyle Fisher, veteran forward, led the assault with 17 points, all but one of which were scored in the first half. He was removed early in the second period after receiving a hand injury in a collision with Emrick.

At the same time the Wildcats completely bottled up the Panther offense, holding the eastern quintet to a pair of free throws in the first 14 minutes of play. Only after the visitors resorted to long shots did they make a goal from the field. This was accomplished by Bill Jesko, substitute forward, whose basket gave his mates four points at a time when Northwestern was coasting along with 23 points.

Pitt Cuts N. U. Lead.

Pitt whittled into Northwestern's lead by running up 9 straight points at the outset of the second period.

ILLINOIS, 30; WABASH, 27

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 14.—An Illinois basketball team on which the majority of players were sophomores showed its mettle tonight by overtaking and passing a veteran Wabash quintet to win by a score of 30 to 27.

Wabash led until Guttschow's basket tied the score at 22 all, with six minutes to play. Jack Beynon's basket put the Illini in the lead, which they maintained till the finish, when Riegel's tip in shot made victory certain.

Gene Rovenstine, Wabash forward, led the scoring with five baskets and three free throws for a total of 13 points. Capt. Frank Froschauer led the Illini with 11 points, five baskets and one free throw.

Illinois Wesleyan defeated the Illinois B team, 33 to 32. Weger's free throw broke a tie and won for Wesleyan. Score:

In the WAKE of the NEWS

SUNSHINE THOUGHTS.

FRIEND STEWART: Well, Stewart, I received your note saying to use my own judgment about telegraphing Friend Arch about how poorly I was feeling and it didn't sound extra-enthusiastic to me. But after that blizzard came I felt still worse and seemed to be declining rapidly, so I decided to take a chance.

I can't quite figure out Arch's reply from Los Angeles; that is, whether he exercised his sense of humor or was just plain sarcastic, although he usually isn't like that. His wire read: "If you're going to have your annual nervous breakdown better have it at once and get it over with. Sunshine here. Regards."

Of course that puts it up to me, and I'm meeting the situation promptly, as I always do whenever I attempt any hard work for you or Arch. There was one deterring factor, however. On my present salary I'm not able to save much money and my jingle on hand didn't make much noise. Of course you have nothing to do with my salary, but I'm just explaining.

So the only plan that suggested itself to get away now was to visit my favorite banker, so I went down to see Jack Craddock, who used to go to school with me, and told him what I wanted. And he said: "What for, how much, and what collateral?" So I gave him my bond and he said: "That's hardly enough for what you want," and I said, "Why not?"

Then Jack said: "Because this bond has defaulted." Well, I wasn't particularly surprised at that, because defaulting is the best little thing that real estate bonds have done for the last five years and I realized it wasn't the kind of stuff I'd want to leave to my heirs, if I leave anything to my heirs. Well, it looked bad, so I coughed a few times and tried to appear wan.

Then Jack said: "You need to go to California?" and I said: "That's what the docs say," which wasn't exactly a lie, because any doc tells you to go to California if you get a chance. So he said: "Well, you've been a pretty good customer of this bank since 1903, principally in a borrowing capacity [only he didn't say it sarcastic like it sounds], so I'll make you a loan, a little less than you ask, on the bid value of this bond and your own responsibility," which I took to be something like when the judge releases you without bail on your own recognizance.

So you see I won't have quite as much money as I may need, and I'll have to be economical and may have to wire Arch for an advance order on the auditor, and how Arch dislikes to issue 'em, and I don't blame him at that.

So that part is all settled, except the date of getaway. We're going to hitch up the old bus and go over plains and mountains via the "Covered Wagon" route. Mrs. Wake and Elder Daughter Wake will do most of the driving. Younger Daughter Wake isn't going. She's like the girl who had a book and didn't want another for Christmas. She's been to California. Anyway, she's engaged and maybe that's the reason, so she'll keep the home electricity burning.

Now, you know I don't care for touring—never even driven to Florida. So that started a family argument right away. Our route is 2,615 miles. I thought 12 to 14 days would be about right. The other Wakes thought about 7 or 8 days. So I imagine there'll be a compromise, because in my whole married life I've never earned better than a draw in any argument.

Well, Stewart, I better stop now, because I have some Sunday Wakes to get up for Bruce in advance—those Way Back Whens—and it might be well to have a couple on hand for you in case we get a flat tire and can't reach postoffice or telegraph station. I'll let you know when I go. Regards. HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

"EXPERIMENTAL" GAME IS WON BY KANSAS STATE

Lawrence, Kas., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Dr. F. C. Allen's experimental basketball game, with the goals hoisted to the 12 foot level and field goals counting three points instead of two, ended in a 39 to 35 overtime victory for Kansas State college over Allen's Bix Six champion Kansas Jayhawkers tonight.

Had the game been scored under the present regulations alloting two points for field goals, State would have won, 28-26. If the game had been timed normally without timeouts for returning the ball to center after goals were made, Kansas State would have won four and one-half minutes sooner by 30 to 29.

BIG PROFITS OF RACE GAMBLERS CHARGED IN SUIT

Plaintifs Demand Share of $900,000 Gains.

Reports were current yesterday that Edward J. R. Kelly, 1107 Pratt boulevard, former secretary of Bentley, Murray & Co., publishers, was ready to testify in court that the Bentley firm had paid $900,000 in five years to the General News Bureau, Inc., a race information service, under a profit sharing agreement.

John J. Lynch, Lionel C. Lenz, and Edward N. Lenz, owners of 50 per cent of the stock in the General News Bureau, have brought suit in the Circuit court against James M. Ragen, vice president of the bureau, Moe L. Annenberg, and several other defendants, including the Bentley-Murray firm, for an accounting of funds.

Ask for Share of Profits.

The plaintiffs allege they have received no division of profits since 1929 and that the officers have called no stockholders' meetings since that time. The profits are estimated by those filing the suit at $200,000 annually.

Attorney Robert N. Golding, representing the defendants, said he had been told Kelly was ready to testify.

"But what difference will it make if he does?" the attorney demanded. "Our defense is in the record. We contend this is a fight over the split of the illegal profits in an illegal business, and that a court of equity cannot be appealed to for such a decision. At the proper time we shall make a motion that the case be dismissed on this ground."

Kelly Out of Town.

At his residence last night it was said that Kelly is out of town on a hunting trip and could not be reached.

Charles W. Bidwill, head of Bentley, Murray & Co., made a deposition on Dec. 7 in the case. His company printed entry sheets, such as are used by bookmakers, Bidwill said. It was contended in the original suit that the General News bureau gave the Universal Publishing company the exclusive right to print entry sheets and that the Universal had sublet its contracts to Bidwill's firm.

It was said that Bidwill has dismissed Kelly from his employ. Further depositions in the case are to be taken on Dec. 22.

BILL TILDEN SEES FUTURE FOR PRO TENNIS IN EUROPE

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—William T. Tilden, veteran professional tennis star, returned on the Bremen today from a brief playing visit to London and Paris. He was enthusiastic about the future of pro tennis in Europe as a result of the attendance at the matches in which Ellsworth Vines and Bruce Barnes also participated.

"I was somewhat worried about London," he admitted. "I had been told that England would never go in for professional tennis. We played five matches in London, and, in spite of the fact that for three days we had one of those dense fogs, all games were well attended."

Tilden also told of the formation of an international association of professional tennis players. M. Bonnordell, Paris, a wealthy sportsman, had agreed to be honorary president and had donated a cup for international competition, Tilden said.

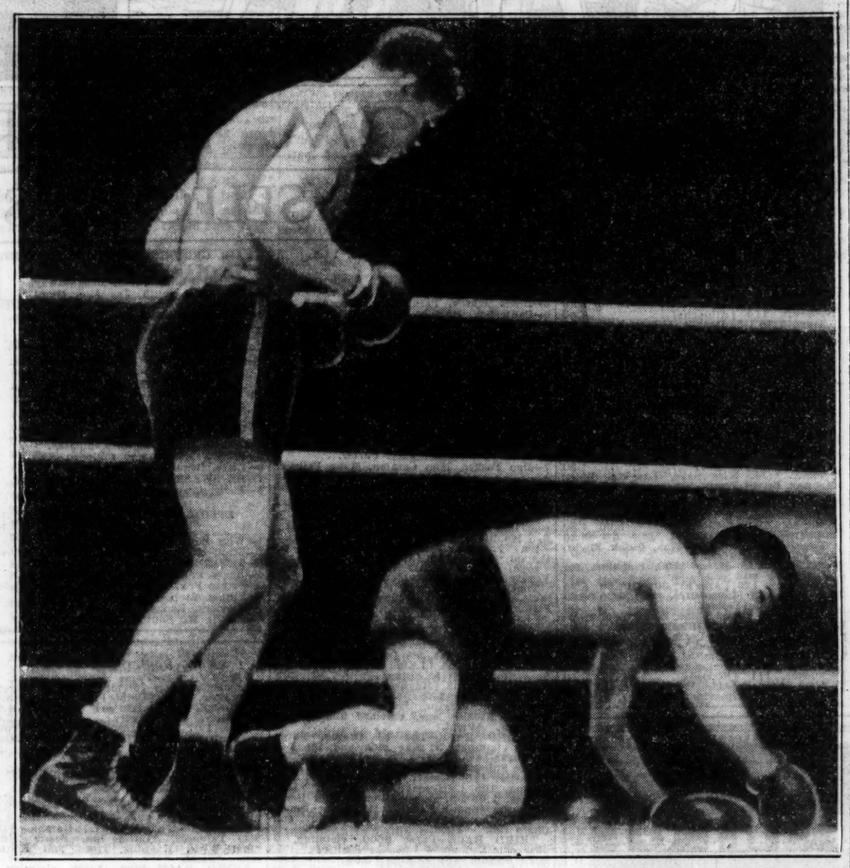
Harry Shanley, Former Baseball Player, Dies

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Dr. Harry R. Shanley, formerly a member of the Boston Braves and Detroit Tigers, died in a local hospital today of heart disease. Dr. Shanley, who was 45, is survived by his widow and a daughter, Helen. He played with the Denver Bears, the Braves, and the Tigers before and after his graduation from the dental school of Columbia university in 1917.

Bell Paroled for Trial in Gun Possession Case

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Berkeley Bell, 29 year old tennis star, was paroled today in Magistrates court for trial in Special Sessions court on a charge of illegal possession of two revolvers, in violation of the Sullivan law. The pistols allegedly were found in Bell's apartment several months ago by detectives investigating another matter.

MAKING IT AN EVEN DOZEN



Another boxer who tried to stop the rise of Detroit's Joe Louis in heavyweight ranks went the way of 11 others last night at the Stadium. Louis (left) has just sent Lee Ramage to the canvas with one of his crushing blows in the eighth round. Ramage was knocked down four times in this round and on the last one his handlers threw in the towel and Louis was declared winner by a technical knockout. A crowd of 14,988 paid $29,986 to see the fight. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Hooley Smith to Harass Hawks in Tomorrow's Game

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The simple fact that the Montreal Maroons are coming to town tomorrow night to battle the world's champion Blackhawks would be sufficient in itself to create a stir among hocky enthusiasts who have seen the two play in the past, but there is further incentive in the announcement this year. Leading the big boys from Montreal will be none other than Thomas Patrick Gorman, the carfty one who managed the Hawks to the Stanley cup last year, and his old pal, Lionel Conacher, who was the soul of the Hawk defense in the march to the title.

HOOLEY SMITH.

Then, too, there will be another party on the ice wearing the numeral 7 between his shoulder blades, a gent who would be well remembered by Blackhawk people without benefit of Gorman or Conacher. He is Hooley Smith, christened Reginald but dubbed Hooley by his dad after the comic strip character of Happy Hooligan.

An All Around Athlete.

There is none in the National Hocky league who will say you nay if you should call Reginald, or Hooley, one of the great defensive forwards of the game. Howie Morenz has been known far and often as the Babe Ruth of hocky, but Hooley is famed as far and as often as its Ty Cobb. He has matched Tyrus not only in daring and cunning, but has more than once evinced the same talent for belligerence, and has done a goodly quota of time in rinkside bastiles.

Conacher enjoys a deserved renown as Canada's greatest all around athlete, but Smith can match him in several branches of sport, for before he went at hocky as a profession he was an able oarsman, rugby player, and amateur boxer. Born in Toronto 31 years ago come Jan. 7, he first made his mark in hocky with the Granites of his home town, who eventually were to represent the dominion at the Olympic games. At first he was stationed at wing, but because of his genius for play making and his peculiar aptness at hook checking, he was soon shifted to center.

Plays with Senators.

Eventually he made his professional debut with the old Ottawa Senators, who at that time were running the show in the National Hocky league. In his first year with them his youthful cockiness irritated several of the oldsters and they began to ride him, but Hooley would have none of this. One day he is reported to have told them that he was there to play hocky and that if any of the newspaper stars present wished to do anything about it he would take them on one and all. That ended the riding and Hooley was accepted for his own pugnacious self.

The Montreal Maroons began to cast covetous eyes upon him, but it took $22,500 in cash and the veteran Punch Broadbent to make Ottawa let go of the boy. That was in the season of 1927-'28 and he has been a power with the Maroons ever since. While with them he was a member of their famous S line, the other members being Nels Stewart and Babe Siebert, both now with Boston. This trio had no rivals in the league for pugnacity, being the original Three Bad Boys of hocky. In the case of Smith, however, the years have had a mellowing effect, and he is no longer the quarrelsome young man he was some years back.

Scores 269 Points.

In ten years of major league hocky Smith has piled up a scoring record of 269 points, excluding this season's games. The remarkable fact about that total is that the assists nearly equal the goals, proving Hooley's value as a team player. In his decade of work he has batted home 141 goals and has set the puck up for others 128 times. In five Stanley cup appearances he has counted 7 goals and 3 assists.

Hooley is a gentleman farmer just outside of Montreal in the off season. This year he has been placed at center, not between two regulars, but as a steadying influence on a couple of youngsters, Herb Cain and Gus Marker, with whom he has been highly effective.

McPhail Answers American League on Night Baseball

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 14. — American league magnates are a lot of old meanies for giving the razz to the National league's noble experiment in night baseball. Larry MacPhail, vice president of the Cincinnati Reds, whose club sponsored the movement for baseball by floodlight, said so indignantly today as he trundled his bags trainward and bade a none too friendly farewell to New York.

He added that without Babe Ruth the American leaguers don't quite know what the score is.

And just to make sure the folks back in southern Ohio would know how he felt about it MacPhail—whose baseball experience was limited to a brief connection with minor league clubs before he became a member of the Cincinnati Reds' brain trust a year ago—all but burned the wires with a sizzling indictment of the American leaguers in a telegram.

"The American league, according to some of the New York papers, thinks the great national game has been defiled by the permission given unanimously to the Cincinnati club by the National league to play seven night games in 1935," he wired to various baseball writers.

"Neither the Cincinnati club nor the National league is worried much about what the American league thinks about anything. When the suggestion first was advanced that players be numbered the American league took nine years to think it over.

"The American league has spent the last nine years publicizing Babe Ruth, and now that the Babe is passing out of the picture the American league has nothing else to talk about and does not seem to know what to do about it."

None of the American league magnates, to whom MacPhail's message was relayed, would comment tonight. Several said they had cracked lips and were under orders not to smile under any circumstances.

Fuller Triumphs Over Cool in Ten Round Bout

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Sammy Fuller, Boston Italian, advanced a step nearer a shot at Champion Barney Ross' lightweight crown tonight by scoring a ten round decision over Eddie Cool, Philadelphia.

FLOORS COAST HEAVYWEIGHT FOUR TIMES

14,988 Pay $29,986 to See Bout.

BY FRENCH LANE.

On up the ladder toward the world's heavyweight championship rushed Joe Louis of Detroit at the Chicago Stadium last night. This time it was Lee Ramage of California who served as another step in the former Golden Glove's climb by succumbing on a technical knockout in the eighth round.

The time is a quarter before 11 o'clock, and 14,988 spectators who have paid $29,986 to see the show are becoming fidgety. They have forgotten Christmas and Santa Claus for the moment to see Louis deliver the jaw crashing, sleep producing blow that is being talked about all over America.

For seven rounds Louis tosses old Mary Ann in the direction of Ramage's receding chin and not once does it land with full force. A clever back pedaling defensive fighter is this Ramage fellow.

Down Goes Ramage.

The eighth round opens. Ramage appears as fresh and elusive as ever. Suddenly, after a minute of fighting, Louis backs the Californian into the ropes. He shoots two terrific left hooks to the chin. They are delivered with the speed of a cannon ball. Down goes the half smiling, half snarling Ramage. He is prone for the nine count, but comes up looking for trouble.

Once more the panther-like Louis leaps forward. He flails away with both hands. A left and a right catch Ramage on the chin. Down goes California again. Once more the referee counts nine in perfect beat. Then up comes the courageous Ramage.

Ramage is glassy eyed, but he's game. He wobbles on both feet. Still he motions for Louis to come on.

The big Negro comes on. He crashes a terrific right into Ramage's jaw. Ramage hasn't time to lift his hands in a half way defense. Down he goes again.

He's Still Going Down.

Still he knows what's going on. He looks appealingly toward the handlers in his corner. A heartless guy, one of his handlers, motions for him to get up and fight. Up he goes. It is brutal by this time, but what is Louis to do?

The pantherlike body of Louis goes hurtling through the air once more. He hooks a left to Ramage's chin and sends a right cross almost to the same spot.

Down goes the Ramage boy in a heap like a handful of mud. The heartless fellow in his corner says "Aw, hell." Then he tosses in the towel and Louis is the winner on a technical knockout after 2 minutes and 51 seconds of fighting in the eighth round.

After the second knockdown the crowd yelled at Referee Phil Collins: "Stop the fight." He turned a deaf ear to it all and let the massacre go on until the game kid from California all but had his head knocked off.

That's the story of the way a fighter who packs a punch climbed on up the championship ladder.

Started in Amateurs.

From out of THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves tournament last March came this slashing, jaw crashing Mr. Louis, a tall Negro kid from Detroit, to win the championship in the light-heavyweight division.

He turned professional in July and this was his twelfth fight as a pro. It was his twelfth straight victory also and Ramage was his tenth knock out victim.

Who's going to stop this new "black peril" among the heavyweights? Maybe Maxie Baer will do it.

Remember, I say maybe.

Teddy Yarosz, middleweight champion, defeated Kid Leonard, East Moline, Ill., in the ten round fight that followed the Louis battle. Leonard weighed 161, and the champion, who hails from Pittsburgh, Pa., scaled 164¼, for their overweight match.

Moon Mullins, Vincennes, Ind., featherweight, pounded out a six round decision over Ross Fields of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Johnny Vorce of Detroit, Mich., beat Alec Borshuk, Windsor, Ont., in the first six round preliminary.

Al Ettore, Philadelphia, Pa., beat Adolph Wiater of Green Bay, Wis., in ten rounds. Wiater had very little defense for Ettore's left hooks to the body.

Pug Lund Thinks Over Motion Picture Offer

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Francis [Pug] Lund, half back and captain of the undefeated 1934 University of Minnesota football team, is contemplating entering the movies. Lund today said he had received an offer from a Hollywood film company. The letter was brief, but it was believed that if he accepts he would draw a part in a football picture.

Hubbell Accidentally Wounds Hunting Partner

Shawnee, Okla., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Paul Shobe, Meeker oil driller, was in a hospital here tonight recovering from gun shot wounds in his right shoulder accidentally inflicted by Carl Hubbell, New York Giant pitcher. Shobe, whose injury is not serious, said he suffered the wound while he and the pitcher were bird hunting today.

KNAKE, VETERAN BADGER GUARD, IS RULED INELIGIBLE

Wisconsin and Marquette Play Tonight.

Madison, Wis., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Robert Knake, veteran University of Wisconsin basketball center, was declared ineligible today on the eve of the game with Marquette, which will be played tomorrow night in the Wisconsin fieldhouse before a capacity crowd of 8,250.

Announcement of Knake's ineligibility was made by the university athletic department through Athletic Director Walter E. Meanwell. Knake, a senior from Washburn, Wis., was withdrawn from further competition, Dr. Meanwell's statement said, because of a semester of competition he had at St. Thomas college, St. Paul, before transferring to Wisconsin. The Badgers had conceded Knake would become ineligible at the end of this semester.

Badgers Take Action.

Dr. Meanwell's statement made it clear that Knake had not been withdrawn because of protest or inquiry lodged against him by any other school, but that the action was purely voluntary.

Knake entered St. Thomas in the fall of 1930, and because that school has only a one semester requirement for freshmen eligibility, he competed during the second semester of that year. He transferred to Wisconsin in the fall of 1931 and competed here during the 1932-'33 and 1933-'34 basketball seasons. It was presumed that because Knabe played but one semester at St. Thomas, he was eligible for five semesters at Wisconsin to complete the three years of eligibility allowed by the Big Ten.

Stege to Start.

After the Chicago meeting of athletic directors, coaches, and faculty representatives, a different light was thrown on the transfer rule, resulting in the voluntary action by the university today.

With Knake out of the lineup, Coach Bud Foster plans to send Ed Stege, rangy junior from Oak Park, Ill., against the Hilltoppers, with Charlie Jones, Freeport, Ill., sophomore, in reserve.

MAROONS PLAY ARMOUR

Still sparring for experience, pending the time Bill Haarlow can play at the end of the month, the University of Chicago basketball team will meet Armour institute at the Midway fieldhouse tonight.

There is less height in the Maroon ranks than in any recent season, and the lack of that quality told heavily against the team in the defeat Wednesday by North Central. The Maroon shooters must be "hot" if the team is to win, it appears, and North Central succeeded in holding Wally Duvall and George Pritikin, Norgren's new forwards, in check.

The Armour quintet defeated Chicago last season, and may repeat tonight, although the Maroons are accorded an edge.

Probable lineups:

PITT FACES IOWA

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—A crowd of about 10,000 is expected for the University of Iowa's first major basketball game of the season against Pittsburgh university tomorrow night.

Although the Iowans are rated second choice against the invading Panthers, the improvement of Coach Rollie Williams' team against Carleton Monday night has brightened the outlook for the intersectional engagement. Some 3,000 tickets had been reserved this afternoon.

INDIANA PLAYS DE PAUW

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Coach Everett S. Dean continued to juggle the Indiana university basketball lineup today as he held a final drill for the De Pauw game here tomorrow night.

With seven men seeking starting positions, Dean has come to the conclusion his quintet this year must be made up of seven regulars. Unfortunately outside of those seven, material is inferior.

OHIO PLAYS CARLETON

Columbus, O., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Ohio State's basketball team plays its third game tomorrow, meeting Carleton college of Northfield, Minn. The contest is the outstanding event of the Buckeyes' annual basketball clinic.

More than 200 officials and coaches are to attend the game as guests of Ohio State athletic officials, following an afternoon of rules discussions and other matters pertaining to basketball.

L. W. St. John, athletic director and chairman of the national basketball rules committee; Marsh Diebold, Carleton coach; Francis Schmidt, Ohio State football coach, and H. R. Townsend, Ohio High school commissioner of athletics, will address the clinic.

In Carleton, Ohio State faces a team which has compiled an enviable record in the last six years. It, however, has been defeated by three Big Ten teams this year—Northwestern, Iowa and Wisconsin.

Ohio State, winner over Ohio university, 31 to 30, and Marietta College, 32 to 21, will start the same lineup which opened the game against Marietta earlier in the week.

MOON MULLINS—STICK IT OUT, PLUSHIE

NO! LADY PLUSHBOTTOM IS NOT IN. WHAT CAN I DO FOR YOU, SIR?
YOU CAN GO TAKE A RUNNING BROAD JUMP OFF A BRIDGE, FATTY- I WANT TO SEE EMMY.
MY WORD! WHAT TO DO? IT WOULD CAUSE TALK IF I CALLED THE COPS.
WELL, THE BEST PIECE OF ADVICE I CAN GIVE YOU IS TO TAKE A GOOD STOUT STICK AND KNOCK SOME SENSE INTO HIS HEAD.
SAY YOU- IF YOU STICK THAT MAP OF YOURS OUT HERE AGAIN, WHEN I ASK FOR EMMY THEY'LL THINK YOU'RE WEARING A FALSE FACE WHEN THEY CARRY YOU BACK IN.
W-W-WHAT, WILLIAM-IS YOUR NEXT BEST PIECE OF ADVICE.

West Chicago, York Divide Double Header

York High school of Elmhurst and West Chicago divided a West Suburban conference double header last night on the latter's court. Len Rudolph led the York heavyweights to a 30 to 24 victory, while the West Chicago lightweights triumphed, 24 to 19. Bill Diese paced the West Chicago attack in the lightweight game, scoring three baskets and two free throws.

Hinsdale and Downers Grove were heavyweight victors in other league games. Hinsdale defeated Maine, 30 to 16, while Downers Grove scored in an overtime period to win from Glenbard, 27 to 24.

Renninger Leads in Scoring.

Jim Renninger, star forward, led Downers Grove to victory. He scored 12 points, one of his four field goals being made in the extra period. Glenbard led at the half, 9 to 6, and maintained its lead at the end of the third period, 15 to 14. The regulation game ended with the score tied, 23 to 23.

In lightweight contests, Maine handed Hinsdale a 33 to 14 defeat, while Glenbard defeated Downers Grove, 19 to 16. It was Maine's second conference victory of the season.

Oak Park, Deerfield Win.

The Suburban league heavyweight winners in the second round of games were Oak Park and Deerfield. Oak Park, with Ralph Anscen scoring five baskets, defeated Morton, 30 to 28. Deerfield triumphed over Waukegan, 19 to 15.

Oak Park and Deerfield also were victorious in lightweight contests. The Oak Park ponies triumphed, 28 to 21, and the Deerfield lights won, 19 to 15.

EDDIE GERARD TO RETAIN JOB AS EAGLES' MANAGER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 14.—The recently announced resignation of Eddie Gerard as manager of the St. Louis Eagles of the National Hocky league was only a leave of absence, according to an announcement today by directors of the club, all resident here.

Gerard left with a request that George Boucher, former playing star and manager of the club last year when it was known as the Ottawa Senators, be appointed to take his place temporarily. The Eagles lost 11 out of 13 games under Gerard and were beaten by Detroit last night, 11 to 2, under Boucher's direction. The officials said Gerard did not resign and that the terms of his contract would be filled.

Coliseum Match Will Eliminate One Contender

Jim McMillen and Joe Savoldi have been wrestling frequently in various parts of the country, but when they get together at the Coliseum Monday night it will be the first bout between recognized title contenders during the 1934 indoor season.

When Jim Londos defeated Ed [Strangler] Lewis at Wrigley field last September he eliminated the oldest and probably the most universally recognized challenger. Defeat of Lewis cut the field of contenders to four.

They were Jim McMillen, Joe Savoldi, Don George, and Jim Browning. Since then Browning has fallen by the wayside.

Now Londos and White have announced they will not meet the winner of Monday night's bout between McMillen and Savoldi, which will definitly eliminate one of them from contendership.

The Illinois commission, consequently, will be asked to order Londos to meet the winner of the Coliseum bout under pain of disbarment in Illinois.

Boys Attend Party

Underprivileged youth and business men met last night in the annual Halsted street-Lake Shore drive get-together at the Chicago Athletic association, 12 South Michigan avenue. The association and the Chicago Boys' club jointly sponsor the affair each year.

More than 300 boys attended the party. They gave a concert, took part in athletic events, and displayed their handicraft. The business men also provided entertainment.

Under the leadership of W. H. Regnery, president, and John H. Witter, general superintendent, the boys' club, with headquarters at 120 South La Salle street and four branches throughout the city, now has a membership of 16,000. The Athletic association's part in the affair was under the direction of William B. Simpson, president.

Amherst, Mass., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—It was announced today that Albert Flanagan Winston, Evanston, Ill., has been elected captain of the Amherst soccer team for 1935.

Jack Gibbons, Tony Zale to Fight Monday

Jack Gibbons, Chicago middleweight, who is unbeaten in the professional boxing ranks, will be seeking his seventh victory when he meets Tony Zale, veteran Gary, Ind., boxer, in the ten round windup of the weekly show at the Midway arena Monday night. Gibbons has scored six consecutive victories since turning professional.

Zale, a member of the Chicago Golden Gloves team last March, has had 87 fights. Among the boxers he has beaten since he gave up his amateur standing are Johnny Liston, Ossie Jefferson, Einer Hedquist, Bobby Milsapp, and Frankie Misko.

The second ten round bout of the night will bring together Jimmy Christy of the Catholic Youth organization and Dave Barry, Springfield. It will be their second meeting. Christy won a close decision in their first bout. In other bouts Hughie Allen will meet Eddie Jackson in a six round bout and Bobby Mullins will meet Joe Esposito in the five round opener.

Reddy Mason, veteran Chicago fight manager, will celebrate his fiftieth birthday by sending two of his fighters, Johnny and Frankie Mirabel, in the feature bouts at the Marigold Gardens Monday night. Frankie will meet Paul Lee, Indianapolis, in an eight rounder and Johnny will fight Jimmy Richards in a four round bout.

The outstanding achievement in Mason's career was to pilot the late Harry Greb to the top. The pair earned $700,000 in purses. Mason believes Frankie Mirabel will become one of the outstanding featherweights in the country.

Eight bouts, featuring several Catholic Youth organization champions, will be held at the Evanston High school armory Wednesday night. The proceeds of the show will be turned over to charity.

Max Baer, heavyweight champion, may appear at the K. of C. clubhouse, 4711 Madison street, Monday night to watch the eight amateur bouts sponsored by the Mastro Boxing club. The windup match will bring together Ed Luebker and George Snoddy, heavyweights.

Michigan Nets $145,070 on 1933 Eleven

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Michigan's 1933 football team, national champion, brought $188,313.70 into the Wolverine coffers, sufficient to permit the athletic control board to make a better showing during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, than it had made for several years previously, it was announced tonight by Chairman Ralph W. Aigler.

The football team's contribution represented almost all of the $194,279.37 in receipts realized from activities. Football alone operated at a profit. its net was $145,070.72, while the net profit of all sports was $103,859.04, after subtraction of deficits in the other sports.

The athletic board paid off $45,000 in bank loans last year, or 50 per cent more than it paid in the previous year. It also spent $4,000 for plant addition; paid $36,000 interest on stadium bonds, and maintained most of its activities. It did not pay off any of the principal on stadium bonds.

Final figures on attendance at 1933 football games showed that a total of 269,161 saw the team play, as against an estimated total of 263,000 this year.

Injured Stars Watch Stanford Squad Practice

Stanford University, Cal., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Stanford's halt and lame still were in evidence today as Coach Tiny Thornhill sent the Indians through a brisk workout for the Rose bowl football clash with Alabama at Pasadena New Year's day.

Thornhill found some consolation in the clearing up of a suspected appendicitis case. Jack Drown, tackle, was out of the hospital with nothing more than the aftermath of a mild cramp.

Other injured and ill stars, except one, were up and about, but not in suits. The cripples, Bobby Grayson, Keither Topping, Claude Callaway, Monk Moscrip, and Frank Alustiza, were expected to be back in uniform Thursday. Stan Anderson, full back understudy to Grayson, still is confined with pneumonia, and his status is doubtful, even as a New Year's day starter.

The squad will work out tomorrow, following which all practice will be suspended during final examinations. The boys will hit the books until Dec. 20.

While the Stanford leader confidently expects to have his team at nearly full strength before the Rose bowl meeting, he is apprehensive because of the long layoff many of his stars will have.

Adams Tells of Talk About Job for Ruth

Boston, Mass., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Confirmation that he had discussed with Col. Jacob Ruppert the possibility of luring Babe Ruth away from the New York Yankees and the American league came tonight from Charles F. Adams, one of the Boston Braves' principal stockholders.

Despite denials from other sources, Adams said that in the course of a casual conversation with Col. Ruppert yesterday he had suggested that the Braves would be glad to sign Ruth as assistant to Manager Bill McKechnie.

Adams Discusses Matter.

"I did discuss Ruth's future with Ruppert, my old business acquaintance," Adams said tonight. "But nothing definite came of it.

"As head of a chain store corporation, I have had business dealing with Mr. Ruppert for some time. When I met him during yesterday's final baseball meeting we talked about our mutual interests and then took up baseball.

Adams Makes Suggestion.

"As a stockholder of the Boston Braves, I told Mr. Ruppert that if he failed to find a place for Ruth in his own league, I was sure that Manager Bill McKechnie of the Boston Braves would be glad to have him as his assistant. Mr. Ruppert expressed his thanks and that ended the matter. I understand that Ruth's approval must be obtained before he can be moved from the New York Yankees."

De Paul Five Seeks 20th in Row Tonight

Undefeated last season and winner over Illinois in its opening game Monday night De Paul university's basketball team will seek its twentieth consecutive victory tonight when it meets Kalamazoo college at the De Paul gym.

Coach Jim Kelly, not entirely pleased with the performance against the Illini, will try a new starting lineup. The defense appeared to crumble in the final minutes of the Illinois game and Kelly was forced to watch an 11 point lead dwindle to 3 points.

Capt. Frank Linskey will be at guard and Ray Adams, who set the scoring pace at Champaign, will start at forward again. But Walt Diduch has been shifted to center instead of Nich Yost. Diduch, who is 6 feet 4 inches, has a slight advantage over Yost in height and also is more experienced.

Bob Sand, reputed to be one of the most skilled shots on the squad, will draw a forward assignment in place of Ed Campion. Sand stands 6 feet 2 inches. Bill Wendt, who started as guard against Illinois, will yield his place to Phil Krause tonight. Krause was football captain.

Kalamazoo lost 35 to 18 to Notre Dame last Friday night. The probable lineup:

DE PAUL.		KALAMAZOO.
Adams	R. F.	Survilla
Sand	L. F.	McClellan
Diduch	C.	Finlay
Linskey	R. G.	Kreibard
Krause	L. G.	Gast

LOYOLA TO PLAY RIPON

Winner of its opening game with Arkansas State, Loyola university's basketball team will meet a veteran Ripon college five tonight at the Loyola gymnasium. The game will start at 8:15 p. m.

With four lettermen and a sophomore in its starting lineup, Ripon is reported to have its strongest team in the last five years. Fred Lohr and Myron Marshek, guards, Ken Smith, center, and Earl Christ, forward, were regulars last year when Loyola won a 45 to 23 victory.

RIPON.		LOYOLA.

TERRY TO STAND PAT ON GIANTS FOR 1935 RACE

Bill Says He's Ready Now to Win the Pennant.

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Bill Terry has abandoned plans to remodel the New York Giants. The manager of the club, who indicated that he would institute a wholesale shakeup after the Giants failed to capture the pennant in the closing day of the National league race, said today he would not trade any of his players or figure in any more deals.

During the recent major league meeting Terry obtained an infielder and outfielder from Philadelphia; a pitcher from Pittsburgh and a pitcher and an infielder from the Cincinnati Reds.

All Set to Win.

"We're all set now to win the National league championship," Terry said. "I believe Dick Bartell will have a great year at shortstop; George Davis is a good man for center field; Mark Koenig is a great infielder and Leon Chagnon and Allyn Stout will serve as relief pitchers."

Terry, however, said he could use another hard hitting outfielder, but he will not part with one of his four starting pitchers.

Hornsby Wants Players.

Eddie Collins and Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox left New York today for Boston. Both regretted their failure to obtain Oscar Melillo, star second baseman of the St. Louis Browns. The White Sox offered cash and players for Melillo, and Tom Yawkey, owner of the Red Sox, also bid money for Oscar.

"You can't play a stack of ten dollar bills in the infield," Hornsby told Collins and Cronin. "I want players."

YACHT OWNERS GET TROPHIES AT DINNER TONIGHT

The annual winner's dinner of the Jackson Park Yacht club, to be held tonight at 7:30, at the Stock Yards inn, will bring together sail and power boat sportsmen of Chicago, Michigan City, St. Joseph, and Milwaukee. Cups, trophies, and medals are to be awarded the winners of 1934 major races, as well as the club's season champions.

A member of the crew of the schooner Bagheera, owned and sailed by Robert P. Benedict, is Miss Faraday Benedict, daughter of the skipper. As one of the crew of Bagheera in the Noble trophy race to Michigan City, last September, she will be the only woman to receive a medal at the banquet. The other members of the yacht's crew are Dr. William A. Thomas, Bud Buker, Norm Daniels, George Radalick, Arch Reiman, and G. Reiman. The Mackinac and Michigan City victor, Princess, E. Jedzrykowski and Karl Kallgren's racing sloop, is to be honored with more than one prize. Champions in the Star and Jack class sloops also will receive awards.

SCHURADS PLAY ALL-STARS.

Bob Koehler's Schurads and a football team comprising the pick of the other elevens in the Portage Park district will play at Spencer Coal field in a Christmas charity game tomorrow.

A. J. DREXEL SR., DEAN OF BANKING FAMILY, IS DEAD

Was Famed as Host to European Royalty.

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Anthony J. Drexel Sr., 70, dean of the Philadelphia banking family, died in his suite in the Hotel Ambassador today.

ANTHONY DREXEL SR.

Among those at the bedside were his son, Anthony J. Drexel Jr., and his daughter, the countess of Winchilsea.

Mr. Drexel Sr., who had resided in Paris for many years, came over on the Berengaria early this month for treatment by specialists here. His condition had been critical for several days.

Lived in Europe.

Shortly after the elder Drexel inherited a fortune from his father—the Anthony J. Drexel who was a partner of J. P. Morgan and who founded the Drexel institute in Philadelphia—he decided to live in Europe.

For a number of years he had a residence in London, where he was often seen in court circles with his wife, the former Margarita Armstrong of the Baltimore Armstrongs. He was an intimate friend of King Edward VII., whom he entertained in his home on Grosvenor square and aboard his yacht. He also knew William II. of Germany when he was kaiser.

Goes to France.

Since 1915, however, after a bitterly contested separation trial which was won by his wife, Mr. Drexel had passed most of his time in France, where he had homes in Paris and in the provinces.

Mr. Drexel married Miss Margarita Armstrong in 1886. There were four children, all of whom survive. They are Anthony J. Drexel Jr., who married the former Miss Marjorie G. Gould, daughter of the late George J. Gould and the late Mrs. Edith Kingdon Gould; Margaretta, who was married in 1910 to Viscount Maidstone, the present earl of Winchilsea; John Armstrong Drexel and Louis G. N. Drexel, both of whom live in London.

MOVIES' "PONZI" ENDS LIFE WITH 21 STORY LEAP

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Michael Roomanoff, called the "Hollywood Ponzi" when fraud charges were pending against him three years ago, leaped to his death today from the 21st floor of the city hall tower.

MICHAEL ROOMANOFF.

The Russian left with a friend, Dr. Alexis Kall, a note listing friends and sums owing them, totaling about $4,000, and saying, "I ask him to give you $4,000." Dr. Kall said he believed "him" to be Ben Stoloff, Hollywood movie director, who had befriended Roomanoff, and who, he understood, holds a $30,000 insurance policy on Roomanoff's life.

As Roomanoff's body hurtled past a 12th floor window of the city hall tower a woman juror screamed and fainted. The body caromed from a coping at the 11th floor and crashed on the roof of the 10th floor wing.

In 1931 Roomanoff was accused of defrauding Hollywood Russian movie players and musicians of money they gave him to invest for them. Prosecutors said he received probably upward of $200,000 for investment. The charges finally were dismissed.

T. A. WATSON, 80, MAKER OF FIRST TELEPHONE, DIES

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Thomas A. Watson, 80, manufacturer of the first telephone instrument, is dead. Watson, who was also the first person to hear a human voice over the device, died of heart disease last night at his winter home on Pass-Grille Key here.

In describing the first actual reception of a human voice over a wire on March 10, 1876, Watson recalled that it involved the accidental spilling of acid. He and the instrument's inventor, Prof. Alexander Graham Bell, had arranged wires leading from a room on the top floor of a Boston boarding house to a room on the floor below and were trying out the device when the incident occurred.

Waiting tensely in the lower room with his ear glued to the one-way reception apparatus, Watson heard Dr. Bell shout excitedly: "Mr. Watson! Come here; I want——"

Dashing upstairs, Watson found Prof. Bell frantically brushing at his arms and clothing. He had spilled a bottle of acid on himself and the first words heard over a telephone composed his summons for assistance.

2 Cousins of Tammany Hall Treasurer Are Found Dead

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Two sisters, described by the police as distant cousins of Philip F. Donohue, treasurer of Tammany hall, were found dead today in a poorly furnished flat on East 31st street. There was nothing suspicious about the deaths but autopsies will be performed to determine the cause. The sisters, Margaret Donohue, 72 years old, and Suzanne, 74, were the only occupants of the house. Although the two women lived frugally, it was not believed that they died of starvation because food was found in the house.

DELAY IN ALARM CHARGED IN QUIZ ON LANSING FIRE

Inquest on Deaths of 30 Monday.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Delay in notifying the fire department and arousing guests of the Hotel Kerns was a contributing factor in the loss of 30 lives early Tuesday, Charles E. Gauss, Michigan insurance commissioner, said today. Gauss heads a corps of investigators who declared last night after questioning three employés of the hotel that too much time was spent in trying to awaken David Monroe, manager of the hotel, who died in the fire.

Subpenas were served on 16 persons late today summoning them to a coroner's inquest Monday at which, it is expected, the complete testimony of the hotel staf at the hour of the fire will be repeated publicly. It was made available in substance last night. Isaac Jones, night clerk; Cleo Evans, bell boy, and William Blank, scrubman, were the witnesses and their stories are not "seriously in conflict," according to E. M. Welch, deputy fire marshal.

Sixteen Will Testify.

This trio and 13 others who were among the first to reach the hotel when the alarm was given will testify Monday. Other witnesses may be announced later.

The essence of the important testimony was that the fire was "suspected for at least 15 minutes before the alarm was given to the department," in Mr. Welch's words, and that "it has been definitly established that the fire originated in room 134, the parlor of Manager Monroe's suite."

Authorities tonight were told that Mr. and Mrs. Don Kalletta of Oak Park, Ill., who have been on an auto trip through Michigan, have not been heard from since the fire. They advised relatives, according to word from Chicago, that they would stay at the Hotel Kerns Monday night.

The fifteenth body was removed from the hotel ruins today and thirteen others died of injuries, bringing the toll to twenty-eight bodies. Two more will undoubtedly be found, state police believe, based on the list of known missing. Memorial services for the dead will be held in many churches here Sunday.

Equipment Held Adequate.

Fire protection and other safety equipment of the hotel were adequate, according to a report made last January by Herbert A. Stolenbur, deputy state factory inspector in the department of labor and industry.

Since all hope of recovering even a portion of the hotel register disappeared today, when the charred débris of the lobby desk was sifted, it will never be known just how many persons were in the hotel Tuesday morning. The best estimate is 230.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Keep an ear out for these broadcasts:

Eddie Cantor will speak from Rome from 1:30 to 1:36 o'clock this afternoon over WMAQ-NBC. The banjo eyed comedian's topic: "My Interview with Mussolini."

The Dionne quintet will harmonize via Columbia next Thursday. (Wonder if Loretta Poynton, Dolores Gillen, Sally Belle Cox, and Madeleine Pierce will stand by for sound effects? They're radio's best baby impersonators.)

Phil Spitalny is to introduce an all girls' orchestra and singing ensemble over CBS at 7 p. m., Jan. 3. (And the "Voice of Experience" says there will be a flock of girl announcers on the air by the end of 1935.)

Quin Ryan will put on a two hour amateur show from 4 to 6 over W-G-N today. Everything from jug bands to kazoo players on this mad matinee.

There'll be a Christmas broadcast over NBC from the Roman catacombs by the Benedictine choir.

And NBC engineers have dragged their equipment up Mount Vesuvius and are waiting for a propitious moment to turn on the microphones.

The fathers in Little America will give Mr. Claus instructions on what to bring their youngsters at home in the two way Byrd broadcast next Wednesday evening.

Louis J. Haddad, director of the Bridge Club of the Air, heard at 9:15 Tuesday and Friday evenings over W-G-N, yesterday was elected president of the American Bridge league in New York City, where the organization held its annual meeting and a national tournament for two trophies the last week. The Bridge Club of the Air, which solves all manner of knotty problems, is sponsored by a leading State street store.

Fred Waring's show will go to a full hour Thursday evenings, beginning Jan. 3. . . . Boake Carter, news commentator, will do his broadcast Monday evening from the radio exhibition at the Hotel Drake. Next night the Broadway Limited will be halted 20 minutes at Piqua, O., for his broadcast. . . . Harriet Cruise, the girl with the tear stained voice, will open at the State-Lake tomorrow. . . . Edward Davies, that grand baritone of the Sentinels Serenade, will get a buildup by an expert shortly. Mme. Schumann-Heink will call attention to his superiority when she joins that program.

For those who have been asking: Marjorie Hannan, a former Albertina Rasch dancer, plays the heroine in "Sally of the Talkies." . . . Kathryn Witwer, who swapped her services as a stenographer for vocal lessons a few years ago, believes in Santa Claus. On Christmas day she will make her network debut with such headliners as Lionel Barrymore, Beatrice Lillie, George Olsen, and Ethel Shutta on that three hour motor show. . . . The Southernaires, NBC quartet, will give a concert at Orchestra hall tomorrow. . . . Mrs. Roosevelt's commercial program folds after her broadcast tomorrow evening.

COMPLETE BRIEF HITTING MOONEY BID FOR LIBERTY

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 14.—(AP)—A legal brief attacking Tom Mooney's new bid before the United States Supreme court for vindication and freedom was completed here tonight, marking another step in the 17 year old battle over his conviction for the San Francisco preparedness day bombing of 1916.

William F. Cleary, assistant state attorney general, announced the brief would contend the granting of permission to Mooney to file habeas corpus proceedings would open the legal doors for other convicted persons to attack old court judgments.

"The brief also will contend that Mooney's attorneys have not raised a federal issue," said Cleary, "and that Mooney has not been denied due process of law.

"There must be some finality to the actions of courts at law," Cleary added. He asserted that jurisprudence held that where a person had been convicted under a constitutionally valid law and where he had been afforded notice and opportunity for defense the judgment rendered by the court was final "and in full compliance with the fourteenth amendment [the due process requirement]."

Campbell Named Pastor at Our Lady of Lourdes

Cardinal Mundelein announced yesterday the appointment of the Rev John P. Campbell as rector of Our Lady of Lourdes church, 4650 North Ashland avenue, to succeed the late Rev. M. J. Scanlan. Father Campbell, who is active in the work of the Catholic Youth organzation, comes to the city after a pastorate of seven years at St. Leonard's church in Berwyn.

The following wills were admitted to probate yesterday and filed with Clerk Mitchell C. Robin:

BENJAMIN D. CHILDS, died Nov. 24. Estate $15,000 to three daughters, Martha C. Moss, Margaret C. Furman, and Mae C. Allen, co-executrixes.

WILLIAM E. EADIE, died Dec. 4. Estate $5,000 to widow and executrix, Sarah Eadie.

DOROTHY PICK, died March 13. Estate $5,800 to mother and brother. Albert Pick Jr., brother, executor.

BENJAMIN MARCH, U. OF MICHIGAN CURATOR, DIES

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 14.—(AP)—For the second time death intervened today in a love triangle to remove a husband who permitted his wife to test her love for another man, then took her back when the "experiment" proved a failure.

The husband was Benjamin March, 35, curator of the University of Michigan museum of anthropology for the last year, but curator of Asiatic art at the Detroit Institute of Arts when he became involved in the drama four years ago. He died at his home here today following a five weeks' illness.

His wife had revealed her love for Thomas A. Newton, son of a wealthy Detroit family, and March agreed that she go away with him under an "experimental" arrangement.

It was understood that should his wife tire of the "experiment" she should return to her husband, and that if she did not March would give her freedom.

Newton and Mrs. March went to Miami, Fla. Three weeks later Mrs. March telegraphed her husband she was returning. While she was on a Detroit bound train Newton was found dying of a self-inflicted wound.

Mr. and Mrs. March were reconciled, and the bizarre interlude was regarded as a closed book.

CANDY PEDDLER FATALLY HURT BY MOTOR CAR

John Lalos, 43 years old, a candy peddler of 428 South Halsted street, was fatally injured last night when struck by an automobile at Randolph and Canal streets. He died while being taken to the Iroquois hospital.

James J. Bellow, 2270 West 37th street, driver of the machine, was questioned by police, but not held. Lalos' death brought the 1934 motor death toll in Cook county to 1,192.

David C. Cook III., of Elgin, heir to the fortune of the David C. Cook Publishing company, and Bernard Lantz, also of Elgin, who were seriously injured in an automobile accident Thursday night, were reported as "doing nicely" last night.

Mrs. Julia S. Mahin, Widow of Advertising Man, Dies

Mrs. Julia S. Mahin, widow of John Lee Mahin, pioneer advertising executive who died in 1930, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles T. Adams of 125 Birch street, Winnetka. Death was due to heart disease. Mrs. Mahin was 67 years old. She was the daughter of John Henry Snitzler, Chicago merchant of half a century ago. She is survived by a son, John Lee Mahin Jr., scenario editor for the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company, and two daughters, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. John Reynolds Hammett.

Appendicitis Mere Trifle to Hospital Bookkeeper

A little thing like appendicitis doesn't stop a willing worker like Elmer O. Massman, 25 years old, of 6744 West 21st street, Berwyn. Massman, an accountant employed by the Englewood hospital, suffered an attack on Dec. 7 and an operation was performed. The next day, at Massman's request, his books were brought to his bed, and he resumed his work there. Yesterday he said he was ready to get up and transfer his business back to his desk.

TREASURY TRIES TO END FEAR OF SURPLUS TAXES

Explains Attitude of Department.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Reassuring statements today on the treasury's attitude toward assessment of taxes on corporation surpluses under the revenue acts of 1932 and 1934 were given today by department officials, who emphasized that the policy pursued would be one of fair treatment to all.

GUY T. HELVERING

There have been many reports recently of apprehension among business men, and officials felt that once the administration policy was clarified executives should readily know whether the accumulated surpluses were reasonable within the meaning of the law as interpreted by the treasury.

Surplus funds of corporations are taxable under section 104 of the revenue act of 1932, which fixed at 50 per cent the levy on unreasonable accumulations of any corporation for the purpose of preventing the imposition of the surtax on its shareholders, and section 102 of the revenue act of 1934 which would levy 25 per cent on such accumulations not over $100,000 and 35 per cent on the excess of that amount.

Rule on Holding Companies.

Section 351 of the revenue act of 1934 also would levy a 30 per cent tax on the undistributed adjusted net income of every personal holding company not over $100,000 and 40 per cent on the excess of that sum. The provision of the 1934 act apply to incomes of 1933 and later years.

Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, outlined the government policy on some questions involved, in the following statement:

"No operating corporation accumulating surpluses and using the same in the business in which it is engaged shall be apprehensive. As an illustration, a manufacturing company in good faith setting up surpluses for the purpose of acquiring materials offsetting a fluctuation in wage scale, carrying the proper amounts to offset accounts receivable or accumulating a reasonable reserve to pay present indebtedness, would not be taxed under section 102 of the law of 1934 for accumulating unreasonable surpluses.

Examples Are Given.

"It would be an entirely different matter, however, if it accumulated these surpluses for the purpose of purchasing stocks, bonds, and securities of other corporations. For example, a corporation in the soap manufacturing business using the earnings to acquire large blocks of bonds and securities and with large surpluses already accumulated, should not be allowed to escape a tax under this section if the additional surplus was for the purpose of expansion of business into another field as for instance, the grocery business.

"Nor should an automobile business be allowed to build up large surpluses for the purpose of acquiring a railroad or mining properties simply because it ships its products over railroads and uses the output of mines in the manufacture of its products."

Aimed at Holding Units.

The 1934 revenue act cited as prima facie evidence of a purpose to avoid surtax, which would warant tax assessments on surpluses by the treasury, "the fact that any corporation is a mere holding or investment company, or that the gains or profits are permitted to accumulate beyond the reasonable needs of the business."

Secretary Morgenthau, it was stated, feels that if the treasury cannot explain the law and the policy intelligently, there must be something wrong. In any event the department will try to express its viewpoint with the utmost frankness. While it is agreed that differences of opinion may exist on what is and what is not a reasonable surplus, and that some cases may be carried to the board of tax appeals for rulings, it is hoped that in most instances this will be unnecessary.

Farmers Vote to Continue Cotton Control

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

With almost one million votes tabulated, returns on the Bankhead act poll of southern cotton producers early today showed indorsement of the compulsory control measure by a 9 to 1 majority.

The trend, which was indicated from the first returns, held true throughout the tabulation from 17 states. Oklahome and California failed to show the two-thirds majority set by the law as necessary for its continuance in 1935.

Two States Oppose Plan.

Oklahoma voted 41,741 for continuance of the act and 27,145 against, while all other states showed overwhelming majorities in favor. In Alabama, home state of Senator Bankhead, whose name the law bears, 141,229 cotton growers voted in favor, compared with 7,032 against.

Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia opposed the measure, but returns in his state showed 121,329 for and 18,630 against.

Will Clayton, cotton factor, and others in Texas assailed the compulsion plan. Partial returns in the Lone Star state were 68,139 for and 9,278 against.

Records Half of Vote.

The late tabulation was believed final since it recorded almost one-half of the votes eligible. About 2,600,000 growers were officially registered by the farm administration as having the right to vote, and Secretary Wallace estimated previously that about half of that number would cast ballots.

The vote of cotton farmers on retention of compulsory cotton production control for another year, as compiled from official sources by the Associated Press, stood as follows:

	Favoring.	Against.
Alabama	141,229	7,032
Arkansas	64,389	3,009
Arizona	1,161	459
California	1,051	585
Florida	1,656	60
Georgia	121,329	18,630
Kentucky	92	35
Louisiana	96,173	2,566
Mississippi	168,824	5,143
Missouri	4,547	779
North Carolina	105,022	8,968
Oklahoma	41,741	27,145
South Carolina	29,154	2,109
Tennessee	47,247	4,925
Texas	68,139	9,278
Virginia	7,273	244
Totals	805,027	90,957

In Washington, as the vote progressed, Senator Bankhead went to the White House carrying two good luck pieces—a chestnut and a rabbit's foot. He showed them to the President with the comment that he was "hoping and praying" for a favorable vote on his measure.

Negroes Vote Freely.

All bona fide cotton producers were eligible to vote, the election being held under the auspices of the county control committees which helped administer the measure this year. Negroes were reported voting freely and in Georgia one commented, "We don't vote much, but we likes to."

Plans for carrying forward the combined voluntary and compulsory cotton production program meanwhile were dusted off to bring the administration's goal of a 12,000,00 bale crop next year. Actual production from 28,000,000 acres this year was 9,700,000 bales, well under the Bankhead law limit. The administration plans for 34,000,000 acres to be under cultivation next

OIL COMPANIES END VIOLATION OF MARKET PACT

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The few major oil companies selling third grade gasoline in New Jersey in alleged violation of the marketing agreement credited with ending the recent price war will advance prices of this grade to the same level as that posted for regular grade motor fuel tomorrow.

In effect this represents abandonment of this grade of gasoline, because it is obvious that motorists will not buy admittedly inferior motor fuel at the same quotation asked for regular, or standard gasoline.

Major companies have been trying to coördinate all companies on this question to stave off a threat from the independents, that unless these conditions were corrected a renewal of the price cutting might be erpected to develop shortly.

STEEL AND TIN MILLS STEP UP OPERATIONS IN SEVERAL DISTRICTS

Cleveland, O., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Operations in Lorain and Cleveland steel mills will be stepped up in the industry's drive toward recovery, mill officials in both cities said tonight.

More than five thousand men will be at work in the Lorain mills of the National Tube company next week as the mills reach 60 per cent of capacity output for the first time since June. Open hearth furnaces will be operating at 83 per cent capacity and blast furnaces at 40 per cent. Production of the pipe mills will be increased.

Officials of the American Steel and Wire company here said they believe the slow but steady recovery of the last eight weeks will continue.

Heavy commitments from the automobile industry have given the Cleveland mills hope that they soon will be operating at a rate above 50 per cent, the present level.

Rise in Youngstown Area.

Youngstown, O., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Steel output in this district next week will rise to above 40 per cent of capacity for the first time since last June. Thousands of men who have been working one or two days a week will get additional employment. Preliminary schedules indicate that thirty-five of the eighty-three open hearth furnaces in the district will be active.

Weirton to Employ More.

Weirton, W. Va., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The Weirton Steel company announced today that next week the company will operate twenty of its twenty-six hot mills in its tin mills. This will require the employment of about five hundred more men.

Tin Mills at 100 Per Cent Capacity.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Follansbee Bros. company announced today that tin mill operations at the plant have been increased to 100 per cent capacity from 60 per cent.

WARD'S PROFITS DIP, BUT EXCEED TOTAL YEAR AGO

Net profits of Montgomery Ward & Co. in November showed a sharp drop from October, but were improved over November of last year, according to figures released yesterday by the company. Net profit of $695,715 for the month was 48.7 per cent below that of October, but 26 per cent higher than a year ago.

In October net profit, after all charges, including depreciation and federal and state income taxes, amounted to $1,364,553. In November, 1933, net profit after all charges totaled $552,114.

For the first ten months of the year net profits of $7,878,167 were 615 per cent above the $1,122,909 reported for the corresponding period of last year.

Steel Union Case Against Chicago Firm Up Dec. 19

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The complaint of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers against Clayton Mark & Co. of Chicago will be heard by the national steel labor board at a session to be held here on Dec. 19. The union is complaining that the company has refused, in violation of section 7A of the NIRA, to meet for collective bargaining with the union committee which the workers elected last May.

AAA HAS COTTON SURPLUS, BUT BUYS IN JAPAN

Reships Low Grade Back to U. S.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Although the cotton pool of the AAA has about 1,700,000 bales of surplus cotton on hand, 14,000 of 50,000 bales being supplied by the pool to the relief administration for making mattresses are being sent from Japan, 2,000 from Bremen, and 1,500 from Liverpool.

This cotton was shipped abroad two years ago by private companies and was generally regarded as off the world market. The companies were unable to dispose of it because of its low grade, it was said.

The cotton pool is paying "slightly below the market price" for redelivery in this country.

10,000 Bales Due Today.

A shipment of 10,000 bales from Japan is due to arrive in Houston tomorrow, on the Wichita, operated by the Roosevelt lines, according to information received by the company from its agent at Kobe. It is reported that this shipment represents all except 4,000 bales of the cotton being sent from Japan for the relief administration.

The company reported that it was an "unusual shipment," but that its agent did not inform them of the shippers' or consignees' identity. From another source it was learned that the brokerage firm of Anderson & Clayton of Houston was delivering the product.

Officials of the Federal Surplus Relief corporation, which is handling the transaction for the FERA, said they had not been informed that the cotton was being shipped from abroad.

The cotton was obtained in a transaction whereby high grade cotton held by the pool was sold to provide funds for the purchase of low grade "upland cotton," such as that used in the making of relief mattresses.

Differ on Available Supply.

Officials of the department of agriculture reported that they had been unable to find low grade cotton on the American market. FERA officials, on the other hand, said that they had found no difficulty in buying such cotton.

The firm of Anderson & Clayton was said by agricultural officials to have been low bidder when the pool bought the low grade cotton. The same company also bought 460 bales of the high grade cotton sold in the first place to provide funds for the purchase.

It was said, however, that the cotton was not being brought back from abroad because of any appreciable difference in the cost, as all cotton bought by and for the relief administration had been obtained at below market price. Officials refused to reveal the price paid.

NORTH. PACIFIC PURCHASES 10,000 TONS OF RAILS

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The Northern Pacific railway has ordered 10,000 tons of rail, 6,000 from the Illinois Steel company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, 3,500 from the Bethlehem Steel corporation, and 500 from the Colorado Fuel and Iron company.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad will be in the market for about 10,000 tons of 112 pound rail next spring, according to Chicago advices quoting Ralph Budd, president. Budd said that the company planned to lay about 100 miles of rail in the spring, which would require about 17,500 tons of 112 pound rail. The company has 7,000 tons of rail on hand.

Pullman, Inc., has ordered cars, to air-condition 878 cars, from the B. F. Sturtevant company.

BANK OFFICIALS IN PHILADELPHIA SENT TO PRISON

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 14. — [Special.]—Three officers of the Franklin Trust company, one of the largest of the Philadelphia banks which closed during a series of runs in October, 1931, were sentenced today to five to ten years each in the county prison.

C. Addison Harris J., who was president of the bank; Edwin S. Conro, who was treasurer, and Arthur D. Dauphinee, who was vice president, were convicted Tuesday of misapplying $234,000 of the bank's funds. Harris and Dauphinee also were convicted on embezzlement counts.

Schaller, Palyi Tell Bankers Recovery Role

The part which bankers may or should take in bringing about theirs and the nation's prosperity was tackled from two angles last night before 400 members of the Illinois Bankers association at the Union League club.

George J. Schaller, governor of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, urged bankers to go out of their way to lend a helping hand to business, and indirectly to profit personally from development of greater volume of sound, interest bearing loans.

The bank customer, he counseled, has been as "shell shocked" as have some bankers in the course of the depression. As a result, he is hesitant and needs encouragement to venture enlargement or improvement of his business.

Dr. Palyi's View.

Presenting another side of the problem was Dr. Melchior Palyi, visiting professor at the University of Chicago and former adviser to the reichsbank. His was a warning against unwise investment of bank moneys which would sacrifice liquidity and encourage another boom with its subsequent misery of depression.

He pictured the bankers as custodians of credit, charged with the safety of depositors' funds as their first responsibility. Participation in social programs must be subordinated, he said.

If banks extend credits too freely, he warned, they encourage industry to overproduction and subsequent stagnation. He presented the problem as a delicate one, where enough but not too much credit should be given to business. If they overdo a good thing, their paper becomes poor and liquidity disappears, he said.

Warns About Liquidity.

Dr. Palyi pointed out also that overinvestment in government securities may lead to the same undesirable loss in liquidity—a theory too often overlooked, he asserted. The professor took pains to define liquidity as something more than cash, but more a matter of "shiftability" of assets, their "shiftability" depending upon their soundness as contrasted with overinvestment.

There was nothing in Gov. Schaller's address to contradict any of Dr. Palyi's warnings. He was asking bankers to meet present problems aggressively though on a sound basis.

He defended banks from criticisms that their loaning policy has not been liberal enough, and expressed the opinion that the treasury's credit survey in the Chicago Federal Reserve district will bear him out. It is a matter of digging up good loans rather than tightness in granting requests.

EXPECT COURT RULE ON RAIL PENSION MONDAY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The action of the District of Columbia Supreme court holding invalid the railroad retirement act has been submitted to the Supreme court for review and the court is expected to announce next Monday whether it will consider the case or require the District of Columbia Court of Appeals to act on it first.

It is expected in legal circles that the high court will grant a review and that the case will be set for argument, probably in January. The government is exerting all its influence to expedite an early decision.

WINTRY WEATHER LENDS ZEST TO HOLIDAY TRADE

Review Forecasts Big Gain Over Last Year.

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The nation-wide cold wave added further zest to pre-Christmas advances in retail trade last week, while wholesale volume in most lines enjoyed a sharp spurt over the same week a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet's Review reported today.

Added to the cold weather, which affected nearly all sections of the country, was a surge in Christmas buying that has not been equaled since 1929 and which "is building hopes that the December retail volume may surpass that of last year by 20 to 30 per cent."

In the middle west the winter weather, coupled with bank payoffs and holiday buying, lifted retail sales 40 to 60 per cent above the previous week, and 16 to 25 per cent above the same period a year ago.

Other Sections Report Gains.

Gains ranging from 25 to 30 per cent were shown in the south, with reports from some of the tobacco areas indicating conditions 50 to 100 per cent better than at this time a year ago. Clear, cold weather aided the normal Christmas gains in the southwest, which marked up average increases of around 20 to 25 per cent.

Sales on the Pacific coast overcame the softening tendency which appeared in some branches during November, average volume picking up 20 to 25 per cent gains over 1933. Christmas volume is rising to the highest point since 1930.

The New England area likewise converted November losses into gains, average volume rising 5 to 8 per cent above the 1933 figures, while in most sections of the east retailers have succeeded in surpassing last year's record by 8 to 12 per cent.

Few Unfavorable Reports.

The Review found that "unfavorable reports now have all but disappeared."

"In fact," it stated, "confidence has been widening so steadily during recent weeks that, for the first time in years, it is spreading at a faster rate than business gains, reversing the relative status of psychology and accomplishment.

"With the groundwork for advancement secure, there is a rapidly increased number of concerns booking a larger volume of business, while preparations for a more intensive drive in 1935 are under way or in contemplation."

Discussing the spurt in wholesale business, the Review stated: "Wholesale volume in most lines was 5 to 15 per cent larger than a week earlier, due to the heavy receipts of requests for immediate shipment of wearing apparel and the reorders for some of the best selling items in Christmas goods."

COTTON BARTER WITH GERMANY UP TO PRESIDENT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was described in authoritative quarters today as likely to be called on to make the final decision on the merits of a proposed barter transaction under which 500,000 bales of cotton, valued at $30,000,000, would be exchanged for German products.

The President's decision was said to depend upon whether the value of the transaction would outweigh any detrimental effect it might have on the administration's world-wide program for expanding trade through reciprocal agreements with 25 other countries. The President was described as interested in the transaction because of the large amount of surplus cotton which would be disposed of under the arrangement.

Under the arrangement, tentatively approved by the Export-Import bank, the treasury, and German business organizations, Germany would purchase 500,000 bales of cotton at approximately 3 cents per pound above the market. The American cotton producers would be paid 25 per cent in cash and 75 per cent in credits in marks established in Germany. The credits could be used only for the purchase of German export products.

Atlanta Reserve Bank Cuts Rediscount Rate to 2½ Pct.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The rediscount rate of the Atlanta Federal Reserve bank was dropped today by the federal reserve board from 3 to 2½ per cent, effective tomorrow. The change was understood to be prompted by variations in current money market rates.

Week's Upturn in Rail Trafic Exceeds Seasonal Increase

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Freight trafic last week conformed closely with expectations by showing a more than seasonal gain. The total of 551,011 cars was 62,893 cars ahead of the preceding week, which included the Thanksgiving holiday.

There also was an increase of 9,019 cars over the corresponding week of 1933 and 30,404 cars more than two years ago. In the preceding week loadings had reached the lowest level in a year due largely to the holiday.

Total freight trafic for the year to date amounts to 29,232,644 cars, compared with 27,674,404 in the corresponding period of last year and 26,764,372 in 1932.

DETROIT'S GAS RATE RISE LAID TO NRA EXPENSE

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—An increase in gas rates, effective Jan. 8, is announced by the Detroit City Gas company, through its president, William G. Woolfolk.

In a letter to Mayor Couzens Woolfolk said that decreasing revenues and rapidly increasing costs make the new rates necessary. He estimated that the bill of the average customer whose monthly use of gas is 3,000 cubic feet, will be increased 18 cents a month.

Gas company officials said that under the recovery policy of the government, costs have been going up for months and are still climbing. Since the 1 te reduction, which the company made voluntarily about two and a half years ago, sales of gas have decreased about $1,800,000 a year, and, due to the increased pay rolls, it is costing $675,000 per year more to produce a lesser amount of gas.

The present price for gas per 1,000 feet is 77 cents and the new figure will be 83 cents.

The Beverly Hills checks will be distributed Monday to bring total repayments to 25 per cent. The current disbursement is $29,604, and was accumulated in ordinary liquidation. Preferred creditors have received $37,940 and bills of $165,384 have been paid.

Stock Antics First Clew to Wilson Plans

BY HOWARD WOOD.

La Salle street was greatly mystified yesterday by the goings on in Wilson & Co. stock, and the company's stockholders were in a daze.

For two weeks quotations on Wilson & Co. preferred, class A and common stocks have been darting around on the New York stock exchange. Stockholders began to guess that something was going on, but no information was forthcoming from the management.

About a week ago there were persistent rumors that the company was about to announce a recapitalization plan. Nothing definite was given out by the company, however, until yesterday when, after a secret session, the directors announced only the barest details of an offer to exchange shares of new preferred and common stock to holders of outstanding shares of preferred, class A and common stock.

Despite the fact that the company's fiscal year ended six weeks ago, the offer was not accompanied by an annual report which might assist stockholders anxious to discover the fairness of the company's offer.

* *

Holders of the outstanding $100 par $7 dividend preferred stock, on which unpaid accumulated dividends total $26.25 per share, are offered 1.43 shares of new $6 dividend preferred for each old share and accrued dividends. In view of the fact that dividends are to be paid on the new preferred this offer seems reasonable.

Holders of the outstanding 313,236 shares of outstanding class A stock, however, are to get only five shares of new common for each class A share held, and they are asked to forget the accumulated unpaid dividends amounting to $20 per share.

Common stockholders are offered one new common share for each old share held.

In view of the fact that at the time of the last annual statement the company carried the stated value of the A stock in its balance sheet at $50 per share and stated value of the common at only slightly more than $5 per share—a ten to one ratio—the inducement to class A stockholders to accept the exchange offer appears to be slim. Including the $20 unpaid accrued dividends on the A stock the ratio would be about 14 to 1, and yet the A stock holders are given only a 5 to 1 offer.

Gen. Dawes Fires Another Shot at Economist Ayres.

The clash of opinions between business forecasters over the outlook for recovery in 1935 continued yesterday with another blast by Gen. Charles G. Dawes at Col. Leonard P. Ayres, chairman of the economic policy commission of the American Bankers' association and Cleveland economist.

Col. Ayres early this week declared that recovery in the durable goods industries depends upon government action to restore the confidence of investors and amendments to the securities act. Gen. Dawes attacked this stand and pronounced the natural forces of recovery through mass buying to be irresistible. Col. Ayres replied by insisting that recovery hinges upon the renewal of long term bond financing.

Gen. Dawes came back yesterday with the following statement:

"While the security act and other legislation may, by restrictions, increase the long time cost of capital to producers and consumers yet, if a mass demand for durable goods exists this summer, the capital necessary to finance its satisfaction will be easily found, especially in this period of excessive reserves."

Little Firms Can't Finance; Big Ones Don't Have To.

If this is true it opens up some interesting possibilities. For one thing, it means that while the smaller manufacturers and distributors are kept from expanding their activities through the functioning of the new securities legislation, which makes new long term capital hard to raise, the big corporations that piled up vast surpluses during the boom years will be able to take advantage of any increase in public demand by financing their operations out of their own idle funds. In other words, the securities act will be helping the big fellows by hindering the little fellows.

Federal Housing Administrator Moffett on Thursday declared that corporations were beginning to expand. American Telephone, he said, plans to spend 200 millions enlarging its facilities. Standard Oil of New Jersey between 60 and 70 millions, and Ford 50 millions.

American Telephone has a surplus of about 400 millions. Standard of New Jersey has more than 400 millions even after the recent payoff of 90 millions of its debentures. Ford at the close of 1933 had 576 millions of surplus.

A striking contrast is afforded by the case of one rather small but enterprising concern which has been shopping around La Salle street for the flotation of a $350,000 bond issue, but he gave up in despair upon learning that the cost of raising this amount, due largely to the exactions of the securities act, would consume about 10 per cent of the principal.

WILSON BOARD APPROVES NEW CAPITAL SETUP

Will Trade in Senior, Class A Shares.

Recapitalization of Wilson & Co., third largest meat packing firm, which will eliminate preferred dividend accumulations amounting to $12,000,000, was approved by directors yesterday. The plan will be submitted to stockholders at the company's annual meeting Feb. 19. Stockholders will be informed of the details of the plan at an early date, it was announced.

The plan provides for elimination of the class A stock through exchange into new common on the basis of five common shares for each class A share, and exchange of 7 per cent preferred shares into new 6 per cent preferred, without par value, at the rate of 1.4292 shares of 6 per cent preferred for each 7 per cent share. Accumulated dividends on the preferred stocks total $26.25 per share.

New Preferred Provisions.

The new preferred will be entitled to dividends from Feb. 1, next, and will be callable at $100 and accumulated dividends. In the event of liquidation it will be entitled to $100 a share and accrued dividends before anything is distributed to common stockholders.

The present common stock will be exchanged for new on a share for share basis. An early resumption of common dividends upon consummation of the plan was indicated by the directors. The class A stock outstanding is entitled to cumulative dividends of $5 annually from Nov. 1, 1930, but payments have never been made on the stock.

As of Oct. 23, 1933, there were outstanding 227,248 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock, 313,236 class A shares and 534,983 shares of common stock.

The directors issued no statement of earnings for the fiscal year just closed, explaining that the audit had not been completed. It was said preliminary figures indicated earnings have been such as to justify inauguration of common dividends when the plan becomes effective.

Similar to Armour Plan.

The plan, similar to that recently developed by Armour & Co., was made necessary because the financial position of the company prevented payment of dividend arrears in cash. Payment in stock would have necessitated filing a voluminous report with the securities commission, which is obviated through a direct exchange.

Whether the change was disappointing to stockholders or speculators who were taking profits following the recent advance is guesswork, but all the company's issues tumbled sharply on the New York Stock exchange following announcement of the plan.

The preferred stock nose-dived 5⅛ points to 97, closing at its low for the day. The common shares eased 1⅛ points to 57⅜, while the class A stock fell 2⅞ points to 28⅝. In the ten days from Dec. 3 to 13 the class A shares rose 6 points to 32⅜ and the preferred gained 11 points to 105.

U. S. OIL BOARD ORDERS COMPANY UNION DISSOLVED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—A precedent smashing decision of the petroleum labor policy board, ordering the Texas company to dissolve a company union at its West Tulsa, Okla., refinery, was approved today by Secretary Ickes.

The decision said the union was formed in violation of law and that unless within 15 days the company disbanded it "the case will be referred to the proper governmental agency for appropriate action." The ruling was the first in which any of the federal labor boards had ordered abolition of a union fostered by a company.

The board said workers were not given an opportunity to vote on the plan proposed by the company and that a majority favored representation by the International Association of Oil Field, Gas Well, and Refinery Workers of America.

The decision was based upon a detailed inquiry and several hearings. The board charged that employés were "coerced" into joining the company representatiotn plan for collective bargaining and that a heavy majority at a secret election conducted by the labor policy board, voted against the company plan.

MERCHANDISING STOCKS PUT PEP IN DULL MARKET

Yule Trade Aids Low Priced Store Issues.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 14.—Low-priced merchandise shares were accorded the bargain counter prominence in today's dealings on the stock exchange. McCrory shares moved into new high ground on gains of 1 to 2 points; the four classes of City Stores achieved moderate gains and other issues of the group were turned over in volume at better prices. Continued reports of good retail buying, due in a measure to the holiday season, were factors of the group's strength.

The market elsewhere was spotty and price movements generally unimportant. Radio and R. K. O. put on sideshows of account. Both issues were turned over in heavy volume, but the net changes in both cases were slight. In the case of R. K. O., a subsidiary of Radio corporation, one sale of 25,000 shares at 1¾ gave the tape-watchers something to chat about. The stock closed at 2.

Radio "B" Declines.

Radio B lost nearly a point in brisk selling. Selling of the corporation's common stock was inspired by reports that these shares would be penalized in the pending reorganization setup.

Railroad shares made an effort to do better in the early dealings, being stimulated by forecasts of a more favorable carloadings report for the week, but the move faded out before getting very far.

Automobile issues held firm in spite of nervousness over the withdrawal of the unions from the industry's labor adjustment board.

Rumors of an impending markup in the world price of silver brought some buying into the white metals group. U. S. Smelting rose more than a point.

Du Pont sagged fractionally with further disquieting revelations in the munitions inquiry. Atlas Powder preferred dropped nearly 2 points.

Utilities Ignore News Items.

The Tennessee Valley authority's advice to municipalities in its territory to go ahead with plans to construct their own utility plant failed to disturb the power and light shares. Neither did the stocks pay any particular attention to the rate advance posted by the Detroit Gas company. Price movements were of a pattern with the rest of the list.

Oils were lower in spite of the posting of higher prices by New Jersey independents following the settlement of the gasoline price war.

The biggest price change recorded in a long while was on a fifty-share lot of Coca-Cola International sold at 314, a gain of 133 points over the previous sale. It had not been traded in since July, 1933.

Preferred Issues Rise.

Preferred stocks, as usual, made the widest swings on the whole, and a sizable list of them advanced from 1 to 4 points. On the "off" side of the column several shares had losses of 2 to more than 5 points.

INSURANCE AIDS MILLIONS IN '34, SAYS BEHRENS

Half of People Protected, Officials Are Told.

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Twenty-one million persons were benefited directly or indirectly by life insurance payments in the United States and Canada during 1934, Herman A. Behrens, president of the Continental Assurance company of Chicago, told the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents here today. Payments were made to 7 million persons, he said.

"It is found that over 6 million living policy holders, either because of reaching a certain age or for other reasons, received payments which touched over 18½ million lives," Behrens, declared. "In addition death claims were paid to 800,000 persons, benefiting 2½ million widows, children and other dependents."

Discusses Chicago Charity.

Behrens, who heads Chicago's community chest, said annual expenditures for maintenance of private charities in that city require 12½ million dollars.

"This seems pitifully small in the light of what it accomplishes," he said. "It seemed smaller to me than to most people when I realized that a lot of somebodies had failed to carry the 300 millions of life insurance, the interest on which would have yielded this annual income that private charities are using to maintain standards of civilization.

"Were it not for the 20 million citizens aided by life insurance payments in 1934 how much greater would have been the demand on private charities? As fine and wonderful as is charity it is much finer to strive for independence."

Half of People Insured.

E. B. Stevenson Jr., vice president of the National Life and Accident Insurance company of Nashville, Tenn., told the presidents that half the individuals in this country and Canada are now secured to some degree by life insurance protection. Seventy-five per cent of all life insurance in the world is in America, he said.

A review of the record during the current depression shows that Americans have continued their purchases of new life insurance in remarkable degree, he declared.

Wisely exercised diversification in the best available securities has been a highly important factor in life insurance investment success, O. J. Arnold, president of the Northwestern National Life Insurance company, told the convention. The record indicates that a continuation of the policy of diversification is the surest guide for the future, Arnold said.

SUNSET PACIFIC ASSETS SOLD FOR $5,000,000

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Assets of Sunset Pacific Oil company, successor to the ill-fated Julian Petroleum company, were sold at auction on the courthouse steps today. The Sunset Oil company, representing a reorganization group of stockholders and the only bidder, purchased the assets for $5,000,000.

The only step remaining to make the sale official is approval by United States District Judge Harry Holizer who will review the sale Dec. 28. The collapse of Julian Petroleum company here eight years ago cost Los Angeles investing public more than $60,000,000 and broke several Los Angeles banks.

Arthur M. Loeb, who has battled for many months in behalf of certain stockholders of the old Julian company and its successor, created a stir when he offered a bid of 15 cents for 1,000,000 shares of the stock of the California Eastern Oil company. Special Master George Colby, who acted as auctioneer, ignored Loeb's bid and called for other bids, but none was offered and the stock was not again put up for sale.

RECEIVER NAMED FOR DOWNTOWN BUILDING GROUP

Glen C. Crawford, real estate dealer at 139 North Clark street, was named receiver for the Randolph Hotel corporation by Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski yesterday. The corporation operates and leases out the Bismarck hotel, the Palace theater, and the Metropolitan building, 134 North La Salle street.

At the same time Judge Klarkowski announced the appointment of Malcolm J. Boyle, contractor, as trustee for the same property.

The appointments came after the Central Republic Trust company, itself recently placed in receivership, had withdrawn as trustee in possession. They were made on the motion of Jacob H. Jaffe, attorney representing a group of bondholders.

There was a $7,750,000 bond issue against the property which has been paid down to $7,250,000. Reorganization of the property was asked in a petition filed recently in the federal court under section 77-B of the bankruptcy act.

CRUDE RUBBER USED INCREASES 20.8 PCT. IN YEAR

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Consumption of crude rubber is increasing. The Rubber Manufacturing association reports that the amount used by manufacturers during November was 34,842 long tons, or 11.1 per cent more than was consumed in October, when the total was 31,347 tons. The November figures were 20.8 per cent higher than those for that month last year, when 28,831 tons was consumed.

Imports of crude rubber also registered an increase. The total for November is estimated at 36,233 tons, or 2.3 per cent more than imports of 35,298 tons received in October, but 14.6 per cent less than the 42,448 tons imported in November, 1933.

The association estimates total domestic stocks of crude rubber on hand Nov. 30 at 361,236 long tons. That compares with 362,018 tons on hand Oct. 31.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 14.—The bond market was irregular today although price movements were mostly small. Transactions totaled $10,754,000 as compared with $11,841,000 on Thursday.

United States government obligations were irregular and quiet, sales amounting to less than a million dollars. Price changes ranged from advances of 1-32 to 2-32 point to declines of 1-32 to 4-32.

Three Issues Active.

The most activity was in the treasury 3¼s of 1944-'46, which advanced 2-32 point, and in the federal farm mortgage and the Home Owners Loan issues, both of which were slightly higher.

A feature of the market was the activity and strength in the Chilean issues on further reports of a proposed debt readjustment. With the exception of the Chilean issues, the foreign section was uninteresting. Some of the Brazilian obligations, however, including both issues of Rio de Janeiro 8s, which lost sharply recently, were still lower. Japanese and Serbian issues were generally higher. German 5½s lost fractionally but the 7s were steady.

Corporate Loans Irregular.

Domestic corporation loans were irregular, the utilities and rails generally advancing, while the industrials were lower. The Interborough Rapid Transit 6s continued to feature the local traction issues and again established a new high level for the year. The Canadian National Railway issues, which are guaranteed by the Canadian government, were active and strong around their best levels for the year.

MacAndrews & Forbes.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me information as to MacAndrews and Forbes company?—C. H.

Answer: MacAndrews and Forbes company's principal product is licorice paste, which is used chiefly in manufacture of smoking and chewing tobaccos. It is also used in preparation of fire extinguishing chemicals. Other lines are boxboard and wallboard. The company was formerly represented in the rug and carpet business, but this has been discontinued. Its investment in that industry was written down to realizable value in 1932. Its principal plant is in Camden, N. J.

The company has given a good account of itself in the last decade. Since 1922 earnings have fluctuated from a high of $1,596,000 to a low of $682,000. For the first nine months of 1934 net income was $725,000, or $2.09 per common share, against $619,000, or $1.73 per common share, for the corresponding 1933 period.

The four year record of earnings follows:

	Sales.	Net income.	Inc. per com. share.
1933	$5,173,000	$ 900,000	$2.57
1932	4,505,000	682,000	1.83
1931	5,195,000	931,000	2.44
1930	6,287,000	1,094,000	2.88

Current position at the close of 1933 was strong. Cash assets alone were about four times total current liabilities. There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 19,904 shares of $100 par 6 per cent preferred and 303,894 shares of $10 par common. The common pays regular dividends of 50 cents a quarter. An extra of 35 cents a share was paid on Jan. 15, 1934.

The preferred is high grade. The common deserves a fairly good rating.

Standard Oil (N. Y.) 4 1-2s.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me the rating of Standard Oil of New York 4½s, 1951?—R. S. L.

Answer: In July, 1931, Standard Oil Company of New York and Vacuum Oil company merged to form Socony-Vacuum Oil company, Inc., a $990,000,000 concern. It covers New York and New England quite extensively and also conducts business in the middle west, southwest, and along the Pacific coast. Foreign business is extensive.

The company's funded debt in comparison to net worth ($82,458,000 to $848,400,000) is conservative, current position is impressive, and trade position is excellent. Earnings have regularly covered bond charges by wide margins.

Although the 4½s, due 1951, are unsecured, the favorable factors entitle the bonds to a sound rating. They are callable at 101 and interest to Dec. 15, 1936, after which date they are callable at par and accrued interest.

ILLINOIS CROPS WORTH 33% MORE THAN LAST YEAR

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The gross value of Illinois farm crops, based on November prices, is 33 per cent larger than a year ago, Agricultural Statistician A. J. Surratt announced today. The gross value of the seven crops was placed at $197,142,000, an increase of $48,610,000 during the year.

Although surveys by the Illinois and federal departments of agriculture show that production decreased for five of the seven major crops, the gross value at the farm decreased only for peaches. Surratt said that Illinois produced more than 50 per cent of the soy beans grown in the nation this year.

Surratt reported the 1934 preliminary production estimates in bushels, the 1933 gross farm value and the 1934 value as follows:

	[000 omitted.]
Corn	143,336	$78,662	$111,802
Wheat	29,000	20,289	22,620
Oats	37,748	21,265	18,119
Soy beans	8,048	2,828	6,841
Tame hay, tons	2,468	21,462	34,482
Apples	2,162	2,200	2,486
Peaches	528	1,826	792
